ES MONARCH OF MINERAL WATERS

A. ROBERT, Agent, Chatham.

UNDER NOSE OF POLICE.

Art Gallery Is Robbed of Its Masterpieces.

London, May 29.—Almost under the noses of the police who were guarding the Royal Academy pictures now on exhibition in Burlington House, one of the private galleries in Bond street, just around the corner, was swept clean of its pictures during the night. The thieves got away with 55 canvasses without leaving a clue to their identity.

The pictures belonged to an artist who was to have opened an exhibition of them yesterday.

WHEN YOUR BACK HURTS

Of course it's hard to work. Stooping over hurts, lifting is tadious, and you wonder what to do. Ever try Nerviline? Nothing like it for weak or lame back. It penetrates to the core of the pain, eases from the first application, brings cure that d fies a relapse. No liniment is so clean, so soothing, so certain to kill muscular rheumatic or sciatica pills. Your dealer sells Polson's Nerviline in large 25c. bottles. Why not try it?

West York Nominations.

Weston, May 27.—When Returning Officer Joseph Keefler called for nom-inations to fill the vacancy in West York at Dufferin Hall on Saturday, less than a dozen electors were in attendance. Before the hour for receiving nominations had expired the room contained a fair sprinkling.

The nominations were:
The nominations were:
Frederick J. Peel, patternmaker, Toronto Junction; Esten Williams of the Township of Etobicoke, fruiterer, and Forbes Godfrey, physician, of the Township of Etobicoke.

NO LINIMENT CAN CURE IT.

That pain between the eyes isn't That pain between the eyes isn't neuralgia. Many think so, but it is catarrh, plain, ordinary catarrh that needs attention right now. Your proper lead is to use Catarrhozone. Doctors recognize it as a cure that surpasses all others. Sure, because it does reach the trouble; safe, because there are no drugs to take; ou breaths its healing vapor direct to the cause of the trouble, and cure is guaranteed. Origin of the Custom Found in Human Sacrifices.

If fair young women sponsors who take a great deal of pride in breaking a bottle of champagne over the prow of a ship as she slides into the water for her first float knew something about the origin and significance of the launching custom the chances are they would not be so eager to see the bottle crash and the foaming liquid wet the sides of the vessel. ressel.

It is a survival of a barbaric cusvessel.

It is a survival of a barbaric custom, when sacrifices were made to the gods, and some living victim or offering was held up and its throat cut so that the blood flowed over the prow of the ship being launched. The vessel was baptized in warm blood. Now sparkling wine or pure water is used, and the change has many advantages, though the symbolism remains.

There is another curious custom aboard ship that is interesting in the way it has been handed down to us. When a dignitary visits a foreign country, the moment that his ship enters port a formal salute is fired as a signal of welcome. This custom was observed years ago, when it was considered the correct thing for a port to fire its guns to show the visiting stranger that the citizens and authorities placed such confidence in his friendliness that it was not considered necessary to keep the guns loaded, so all the shot was discharged.

Sea Serpent Angry.

A young Scotsman named McNaughton, of Weston-super-Mare, Somerset, claims to have had an encounter with a sea serpent. He had taken a small boat out of Clevedon, and his story of his adventure is as follows: "I was conscious of a splash and sort of gurgle at the rear of the boat. I turned suddenly and uttered a cry of horror. Scarcely twenty vards away I saw suddenly and uttered a cry of norror. Scarcely twenty yards away I saw—but really, I don't know how to describe it. It looked more like a huge mummy, the same as you see in the British Museum. From what I saw of the creature it appeared about ten or twelve feet long. It had large, of the creature it appeared about ten or twelve feet long. It had large, sunken eyes, enveloped in a sort of hairy flap—I can't describe it better. At first I felt a kind of petrified sen-sation. I was transfixed with terror. Everything seemed so unreal. Then the snake-like creature dived and dis-appeared. I was beginning to think the snake-like creature dived and disappeared. I was beginning to think it was a product of my imagination, a pure hallucination, when the water around the boat seemed to bulge and heave. The same black mass floated to the surface; the boat commenced to toss and whirl. I thought my day of reckoning had arrived. Then the creature dived again and again, many times, the boat every minute appearcreature dived again and again, many times, the boat every minute appearing about to capsize, then righting itself in the most remarkable fashion. What happened after I can only dimity recollect. The flabby monster seemed to leap out of the water as straight as an arrow for me. I hardly know what I did. I think I must have ducked and crashed the oar into the creature. At any rate, I was flung violently into the water. When I regained the surface I managed to clamber into the boat. My terrible enemy was nowhere in sight. In a clamber into the boat. My terrible enemy was nowhere in sight. In a dazed condition, scarcely knowing what I was doing, I succeeded in reaching Portishead." It is suggested that the serpent was nothing more dangerous than a porpoise, but Mr. McNaughton claims that his account is corroborated by witnesses on the shore.

Nation's Loss Through Drink. Nation's Loss Through Drink.
Sir Thomas Whittaker, M.P., was one of the chief speakers at the annual "At Home" of the Keighley and District Chamber of Commerce, held in the Temperance Institute, Keighley, Eng., recently. Speaking before the large gathering of the commercial and trade leaders of the district, he gave some striking illustrations of the large expenditure of the nation on drink. He said: "The £175,000,000 we are now spending on intoxicants repare now spending on intoxicants represents an enormous drain on our naresents an enormous drain of our ha-tional resources, in view of the in-creasing keenness of present day com-petition. To illustrate: This same amount of money would either pay for all the flour, bread, milk, butter, People ask "Why do you claim that Veteran's Sure Cure, one medicine cures Rheumatism, Backache, Sciatica, Dyspepsia, Bright's Disease, etc." We reply, because 16 years practical use has proved that V. Among flowers, for instance, the beautiful snowdrop, the hyacinth, jonquil and narcissus are all poisonous, and to eat the smallest part of the root of either of them would produce fatal results, while the juices of the leaves will cause violent vomiting. The berries of the yew tree have killed many people, and the opium obtained from poppies has also claimed its victims. Lady's slipper and lily of the valley are both dangerous, and if the blossoms of crocus are chewed they will cause vomiting. Flowers from bulbous roots, however, seem to be the most dangerous, and it might not be out of place to dealers in these to label them with a crossbones and mark them poison.

The Iron Crown.

The Iron Crown.

The famous iron crown of Lombardy was of gold and precious stones set in a thin ring of iron which was believed to have been formed from a nail of Christ's cross. It was made by order of the Queen of the Longobards in 591 and presented to her husband. With this crown Charlemagne was crowned and after him all the emperors who were kings of Lombardy. It was this same crown that Napoleon put on his head at Milan on May 26, 1805, exclaiming as he did so: "God has given it to me! Wom to him who touches it!"
