IMPORTANT APPENDIX TO THE EMPEROR'S LETTER.

A sequel to M. Edmond About's pamphlet, "La Prince en 1860," made its appearance on Tuesday at Paris, in the form of a printed paper, "Le Syria et l'Affaire." It is intended to proceed from the Government workshop where such productions are made, and has produced great sensation. As the mere substance fails to convey an idea of the peculiar insolence and sophistry of this last Government edition, extracts from it will, perhaps, prove serviceable and interesting to the army opinion. The author has had a wonderfully softening effect upon the Moniteur. Post. The headings of the quotations are not to be met with in the original:

The "Mission" of France.

"At certain periods of history there is under the impulse of certain laws of illumination and ages of enlightenment people form political combinations unknown to the past. We are 'witnessing' at one of these critical moments in the life of mankind. The Syrian question is but one of the knots of a very complicated situation. The whole of Europe is in a state of expectation and anxiety, waiting for developments which may indicate the formation of a lasting peace both in Europe and the East. No great object can only be attained through the organization of the continent shall be in conformity with the wishes and requirements of the present; questions of nationalities struggling beneath the yoke, hostile religious tendencies (mosques), incendiary movements, language radically opposed which stir up within these European states an undestanding of agitation which promises a destruction of confidence and hinder progress of civilization. Peace, that ultimate of the ambition of all governments, can only be permanently secured when permanent causes of disturbance shall have disappeared. We wish to arrive at a double result:

"1. When we are in a position to favor the formation of an homogeneous and rational state, the mission of which would be to absorb and conciliate the mighty unity populations having ideas or tendencies in common.

"2. To try and carry out that principle, without having recourse to arms.

Russia and France.

At first sight France and Russia appear to have realized the idea of an unification. Those who have arrived there those two Powers have arrived by the most different roads at that unity which alone is able to create durable empires, not ephemeral circumferences, the limits of which may be changed any day by the fortune of war. . . . The Czar, meditating for the last 15 years over the will of Peter the Great, have not ceased to cast covetous glances on Turkey. . . . Must France continue to protest against the annexation of the Czars to the encroaching of the Sultan? We do not. If Russia lent us her co-operation for the "re-division" of the Rhine frontier, it appears to us that a kingdom would not too high a price for her alliance. Thanks to that combination, France might resume her rights in the Rhine, and the geographer Sirab 18 years ago. We know that the Czar is in a hurry in having plans of aggrandizement. Now if Russia can be satisfied in the same way as we look at the Rhine, can one not turn these analogous pretensions to some account, and force upon Europe the acceptance of a combination, which would align Turkey to Russia, to France that Rhine frontier which Napoleon I. considered in 1814 as a sine qua non condition of his existence as a sovereign."

Character of the Pretensions of France and Russia.

"There are only two millions of Turks in Europe, whereas there are 12,000,000 of Germans. The German head is the Czar. The Greek insurrection, which lasted nine years, was but the prelude of the movement which is preparing in those regions, and which the massacres in Syria may now be a signal for break out. The Greek Christians are only waiting for an order from their chief of St. Petersburg to march on Constantinople, and shattering a projected attack on Venice.

STATE OF MATTER IN TEXAS.—For some time past we have been hearing of a very distressing state of matters down in the state of Texas: insurrection, and a threatening of the safety of the lives of the citizens, forming the cause of this terror on the part of resident citizens. And it is freely alleged that those atrocities are suggested to the slaves by masters who assume to be in league with that portion of our northern people termed "Abolitionists." The truth of this we cannot permit ourselves for one moment to believe, but it is possible that some individuals, who are in league with the slaves, are plotting to perpetrate such outrages.

About 40,000 people, who had assembled on the quay to witness the landing were not only disappointed, but drenched.

At the conclusion, the Speaker was desired to kneel down, and the Prince taking an unbuttoned waistcoat from the Duke of Newcastle, struck the Speaker, saying, "The Queen was then introduced, and an address was read by the Speaker, Mr. Henry Smith, on whom the honor of Knighthood was bestowed.

After this the officers of the guard were presented, the Anglican Bishop and Clergy, who presented an address, and received an appropriate reply. About a thousand persons were present, and a large audience of the Royal National Statistical Society was present.

At the conclusion of the service, the Prince left the hall.

In the afternoon, the Prince drove to Montmorency Falls.

There were a dozen arches on the road, and the houses were drawn up, with flags, etc. The crowds on the roadside were immense, and the Prince was delighted.

He visited the natural steps, and returned to town to dinner at 7 o'clock with a select party. A ball comes off at Music Hall in night.

At Quebec, Aug. 22, 1860.—The ball last night, in honor of the Prince of Wales, was a great success. Music Hall was beautifully fitted up. The Prince arrived punctually, and took the ball with the lady of Mayor Langelier. The tour from Quebec to Charlottetown, the 17th Regiment and Canadian Rifles paraded the streets of the city. The Prince danced nearly every dance, and left at 4 o'clock in the morning. Toward the close a little middle accident tripped the Prince, who fell on one knee. His partner did not fall. The mostaggerated rumors.

The evening was spent in a grand ballroom.

The Prince was entertained at luncheon.

After lunch the Prince visited the citadel. At the exhibition of fireworks an unfortunate accident occurred.

On the platform, with a number of spectators upon it, a gun exploded, and the Ursuline Convent was partially destroyed. An address was sent by a young lady pupil, which the Prince replied to. Returning to the Palace, the Prince was entertained at luncheon.

After the Prince leaves for Three Rivers at 10 o'clock to-morrow morning. He remains there for a day.

Montreal, Aug. 24, 1860.—These rivers were brilliantly illuminated at night in honor of the Prince.

The Ursuline Convent was the scene of the catastrophe.

Eighteen hundred Garibaldians had landed in Calabria, Garibaldi is reported to have been at Naples to confer with the revolutionary leaders.

Report says Austria will renounce the treaty of Villafranca, and entirely oppose Garibaldi in Naples.

It was reported that if Garibaldi made Naples, Genoa, and Sicily, he would immediately renounce the alliance with Austria, and that Austria will renounce the obligation of Villafranca, and attack Garibaldi.

Austria was assuming a threatening attitude, and there were rumors of an approaching manifesto on the Emperor's behalf, denouncing the rebellion of the Villefranche.

Austria had already demanded explanations from Piedmont concerning Garibaldi's letter to Victor Emanuel, showing a projected attack on Venie.

There was great activity manifested in the Austrian marine department.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 1, 1860.

The Press and the Prince's Reception at Charlottetown.

In our last number, we copied a paragraph from the letter of the correspondent of the New York Tribune in reference to the visit of the Prince of Wales to this Island. This paragraph, we regret to observe, is going the round of the Provincial papers, as if it were a true account of the conduct of our people on the occasion, in which case it would no doubt be of interest—most melancholy interest, as a parallel to what it describes, has scarcely ever occurred in the history of man.

We understand that the Commissioners appointed by Royal Commission to settle the question arising out of the Land Tenures of this Island, have arrived here during the present week. The time of their meeting for the transaction of business will probably be announced in the Royal Gazette of Tuesday next. We also learn that the Proprietors have retained at their Counsel before the Commissioners, Mr. Haliburton of Halifax; and that the Government of this Island have employed Samuel Thomson Esquire of St. John, N. B. and the Hon. Joseph Henley, as Counsel for the Tenantry. These latter gentlemen, we believe, are at the service of Tenants who may have complaints to urge against Landlords as such.

At the Prince of Wales' levee held at Quebec on the 21st of August, His Royal Highness conferred the Honor of Knighthood on Hon. George Brown, Speaker of the Legislative Council of Canada, and on William Henry Smith, Speaker of the Lower House.

A quantity of new matter, together with some advertisements, in type, have been crowded out of this day's issue.

LOSSES BY FIRE.—We regret to learn that Mr. Donald MacRae, farmer, Murray Harbour Road, had his house burned down on Tuesday the 21st inst. The fire is believed to have originated in the stable, but the cause of the loss is not known.

The Prince was very dull: Rentes 65°.

The Sardinian loan closed with subscriptions to the amount of three times the sum needed.
