Spheroidal Spectacles AND EYE GLASSES ARE the best for the preservation of the sight, and took the medal at the Centennial Exhibition. The lenses are made of the best material, uniform in density, and of high refractive power, their perfect polish and spheroidal shape adapt them to ease and improve the sight of the wearer. The eye being the most delicate organ great care should be exercised in selecting spectacles; if it is not enough that the glass be of the right focus, but the lenses must be perfectly centered and in many cases perfect relief is only given by having each eye fitted separately. To effect this the lenses are made interchangeable, and having an Optometer to measure the sight, a perfect fit is guaranteed. Call and examine before purchasing any other kind. IVANHOE. (BY SIR WALTER SCOTT, BART.) CHAPTER XXVI. [CONTINUED.]

When the Jester, arrayed in the cowl and frock of the hermit, and having his knotted cord twisted around his middle, stood before the portal of the castle of Front de Boeuf, the warden demanded of him his name and errand. 'Pax vobiscum,' answered the Jester, 'I am a poor brother of the Order of St Francis, who come hither to do my office to certain unhappy prisoners now secured within this castle.'

'Thou art a bold friar,' said the warden, 'to come either, where, saving our own drunken confessor, a cock of thy feather hath not crowded these twenty years.'

'Yet, I pray thee, do mine errand to the lord of the castle,' answered the pretended friar; 'trust me it will find good acceptance with him, and the cock shall hear him.'

'Gramercy,' said the warden; 'but if I come to shame for leaving my post upon this errand, I will try whether a friar's gray gown be proof against a gray goose shaft.'

With this threat he left his turret, and carried to the hall of the castle his unwonted intelligence, that a holy friar stood before the gate and demanded instant admission. With no small wonder he received his master's commands to admit the holy man immediately; and, having previously manned the entrance to guard against surprise, he obeyed, without farther scruple, the commands which he had received. The hair brained self-conceit which had imboldened Wamba to undertake this dangerous office, was scarce sufficient to support him when he found himself in the presence of a man so dreadful, and so much dreaded as Reginald Front-de-Boeuf, and he brought out his pax vobiscum, to which he, in a good measure, trusted for supporting his character, with more anxiety and hesitation than had hitherto accompanied it. 'But Front-de-Boeuf was accustomed to see men of all ranks tremble in his presence, so that the timidity of the supposed father did not give him any cause of suspicion. 'Who and whence art thou, priest?' said he. 'Pax vobiscum,' reiterated the Jester, 'I am a poor servant of St. Francis, who, travelling through this wilderness have fallen among thieves, (as Scripture hath it), quidam viator incidit in latrones, which thieves have sent me unto this castle in order to do my ghostly office on two persons condemned by your honorable justice.'

'Ay, right,' answered Front-de-Boeuf; 'and canst thou tell me, holy father, the number of those banditti?'

'Gallant sir,' answered the Jester, 'nomen illis legio, their name is legion.'

'Tell me in plain terms what numbers there are, or, priest, thy cloak and cord will ill protect thee.'

'Alas!' said the supposed friar, 'cor meum eructavit, that is to say, I was like to burst with fear! but I conceive they may be--what of yeomen--what of commons, at least five hundred men.'

When the Jester, arrayed in the cowl and frock of the hermit, and having his knotted cord twisted around his middle, stood before the portal of the castle of Front de Boeuf, the warden demanded of him his name and errand. 'Pax vobiscum,' answered the Jester, 'I am a poor brother of the Order of St Francis, who come hither to do my office to certain unhappy prisoners now secured within this castle.'
