LIFT OFF CORNS! Apply few drops then lift sore, touchy corns off with fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little Erezone on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then you lift it right out. Yes, magic!

A tiny bottle of Erezone costs but a few cents as any drug store, but is sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and calluses, without soreness or irritation. Erezone is the sensational discovery of a Cincinnati genius. It is wonderful!

MADE ODD CHOICE OF "LOOT" Sailors Had Little Time to Select, and Result Showed Wide Diversity of Taste.

What would you take if a great many of the choicest goods of the world were spread before you and you had approximately a half hour to load yourself with legitimate loot? This problem came before British sailors whose destroyer had answered the call of distress of a torpedoed liner. The ship was sinking slowly. It had been hit by two torpedoes and could not possibly be saved. The forward bulk-heads still held, and it was certain that a half hour remained for the destroyer's boarding party and the liner's crew to make good and "help themselves."

This is the story: One sailor took a knife, fork and spoon of the liner's best silver. An assistant paymaster, who writes a diary to add hours, took her bundles of typewriter paper. A petty officer spent the entire half hour trying to remove a delicious morsel of food from a tin of sardines, but came away empty-handed. A cook took a carving knife. Another cook took an easy chair. A petty officer took an armful of fine linen for his mother. Many sailors took blankets. The ship's crew were content with their own personal kit. In addition to usual articles in a liner's dining salons and cabins, there were automobiles on board, victrolas, pianos and a purser's safe of the latest model. However, nobody seemed to want them, and they went down with the ship.

MARY CARILLONS WERE SAVED Famous Belle of Belgium Not All Destroyed by Mun Ravages of the Country.

Thinking of peace memorials, the United States will be richer for the possession of carillons, those gigantic bell-planes, as they might be called, for which Belgium was, and happily so, famous. Many of her carillons, with tones so to be heard, ranging from little ones that weigh only a few pounds to big ones of six or seven tons, were destroyed by shell fire of enemy spotters, but some of the best have survived unharmed. The bells of Leuven were taken away by the Germans, and recaptured and brought back by the British. The carillon of Malines survived in a tower that was seven times hit by artillery; but the keyboard was smashed from which Josef Benay, one of the greatest bell-masters in the world, bravely rang out the national air of Belgium while the invaders were getting ready to enter the town. And now the carillon of Malines can resume its task of playing weekly concerts, one of which, just before the war, is said to have had an audience of at least 30,000.

Had Imitation Submarine Target. The skill with which the American gunners frustrated the attacks of U-boats was due, in a large measure, to the use of an ingenious target for gun practice during the war, devised by a writer in Popular Mechanics Magazine. The device consisted of a frame-work, about 30 feet long and five feet wide, built to be drawn through the water, with an imitation conning tower and periscope mounted on the upper end. A heavy cable behind the ship by means of two cables attached one above the other. By pulling on the upper one, the upper side of the frame was made to project forward, causing the target to rise to the surface, while, by pulling on the lower cable the device would quickly submerge. Officers out of sight of the gunners manipulated the apparatus, frequently changing the range by paying out or taking in the cables.

Unpopular Job. Few persons were desirous of qualifying for the task of destroying 24,000 pounds of dynamite and other high explosives, stored until recently in an abandoned magazine. The unpopularity of the job was increased by the fact that a previous attempt to burn the explosives had resulted in a fatal explosion. A man named the experiment was set. Finally an expert was employed who carefully opened each box with a wooden wedge and mallet and examined the contents. In most cases he found that the material could be destroyed by dumping it into the sea, saturating it with oil, and then lighting it with a fuse that permitted withdrawal before explosion took place.

Asphodel as Source of Alcohol. The asphodel, which contains much starch in its tubers, grows as a common weed (scorzonera) in many parts of Italy—in fact, it has been called "the plague of the Mediterranean." At one time it was cultivated as a source of industrial spirit, but owing to difficulties in the rectification the culture was abandoned. If these difficulties could be overcome Italy would be able to considerably increase her home supply of spirit.

INGALLS' EULOGY OF GRASS Brilliant Piece of Writing by Famous Kansan Will Forever Hold Place in Literature.

"Lying in the sunshine among the buttercups and dandelions of May, scarcely higher in intelligence than the minute tenants of that mimic wilderness, our earliest recollections are of grass, and when the fitful fever is ended and the foolish wrangle of the market and the forum is closed, grass heals over the scar which our descent into the bosom of earth has made and the carpet of the infant becomes the blanket of the dead. Grass is the fervency of nature—her constant benediction. Fields trampled with battle, saturated with blood, torn with the ruts of cannon, grow green again with grass, and carnage is forgotten. Streets abandoned by traffic become grass-grown like rural lanes and are obliterated. Forests decay, harvests perish, flowers vanish, but grass is immortal. Belonged by the sunless hours of winter, it withdraws into the impenetrable fortress of its subterranean vitality and emerges upon the first solicitation of spring. Born by the winds, by the wandering birds, propagated by the subtle agriculture of the elements which are its ministers and servants, it softens the rude outline of the world. It bears no biography of bloom to charm the senses with fragrance or splendor, but its homely hue is more enchanting than the lily or the rose. It yields no fruit in earth or air, and yet, should its harvest fall for a single year, famine would depopulate the world."

This classic by John J. Ingalls, was first printed in the Despatch Herald, says the Kansas Magazine, when Senator Ingalls was one of its owners.

"CARAVAN KITCHENS" TO STAY Introduced as Wartime Measure in England, They Have Demonstrated Their Usefulness.

One of the most successful wartime experiments has been the caravan kitchen, says a London (Eng.) dispatch. Owing to the fact that so many mothers had to leave their families of young children to fend for themselves while they went out to work to make ends meet, Miss Horsburgh conceived the idea of catering to the needs of these children by means of a caravan kitchen. Assisted by three or four other women, she paraded the poorer quarters of London, cooking en route all kinds of toothsome and nourishing dishes. The ladies carried out with their plates at the blowing of a tin trumpet, and were served with a piping hot and appetizing dinner in return for a trifling sum of money, which had been left with them for this purpose by mother.

The fame of the caravan kitchen soon spread abroad, and within a short space of time was paying its way, 35,000 dinners a week being served in one district alone.

So successful has been this traveling caterer it is likely the work will be continued on a larger scale, and become a permanent institution, instead of a wartime measure.

Bird Welcomed on Board Ship. Weary of wing and starved, a tiny linnet alighted aboard the four-masted schooner Sophie Christenson 1,000 miles from San Francisco, according to Capt. Bob McCarron.

A tramp steamer was hulled down on the horizon when the linnet reached the schooner, and one of the theories as to its long flight was that the bird had been a pet on the vessel and, yearning for land, had sought to fly to the far-away shore.

Aboard the schooner is a canary and, as though by instinct, the linnet flew to the cage of the canary, perching precariously while the schooner heaved and tossed. Captain McCarron opened the door of the cage and the linnet soon recovered. The canary welcomed the linnet and they are now chums.

Black Fox Industry. The number of foxes in the ranches of Prince Edward Island at the beginning of the pelting season in 1917 was approximately 10,000. From December 1, 1917, to January 31, 1918, 2,500 foxes were killed and their skins marketed. Raising ranch-bred foxes is an industry that is being carried on extensively in all the Canadian provinces, in at least a dozen of the northernmost of the United States, and beginning in Japan and Norway, all lying in much the same climatic belt, adapted to accommodating the black fox under the most favorable conditions.

Wedding-Ring Custom to Stay. Jewelers say that the war-time custom in England of brides buying their own wedding rings has come to stay. It had to be done when the bridegroom only reached England an hour or two before the wedding, and now the custom has too many advantages to be given up quickly, for obviously a girl knows better than any man the size of ring that she requires.—Edinburgh Scotsman.

Lemon Tree Bears Oranges. From the Journal of Heredity we learn of a rather novel case of a lemon tree which proceeded to produce oranges. The tree, supposedly of the ordinary Italian lemon variety, was transplanted to Egypt. When it bore fruit it was noticed that the lemons were more spherical than lemons usually are and bore an orange-colored stripe. One branch bore a large fruit which was unmistakably an orange.

ALL TO BE HONORED ALIKE No Distinction in Headquarters Over British Officers and Men Who Died in the War.

Speaking of the resultants adopted by the imperial war graves commission, a writer in the London Times says: "From the first it was laid down by the commission that no distinction should be made in the form of character of memorial to officers and men lying in the same cemetery. It was felt that what was done for one should be done for all, and that all, whatever their military rank or position in civil life, should have equal treatment so far as their graves were concerned. Were the erection of monuments left to individual initiative, probably those of the well-to-do would overshadow those of their poorer comrades, to the loss of the whole sense of common sacrifice and service. The place for the individual monument, it was thought, should be at home. Therefore the creation of individual headstones of a single uniform pattern has been decided upon. These headstones will bear the badge of the regiment or unit to which the soldier belonged, together with his name, rank, regiment, and date of death. They should be easy of identification, and will perpetuate the present effort produced by the wooden crosses. As a central monument in each cemetery a cross and memorial stone are to be set up, simple but impressive in character. An inscription for the stone has been selected by Rudyard Kipling."

OLD-TIME TOOTH POWDER AD Printed in Scottish Newspaper in 1680, in All Probability It Was the First.

One of these individuals who has leisure enough to dig into the records of days long past, has unearthed what is said to be the first advertisement ever published of a preparation for cleansing and preserving the teeth. It appeared 233 years ago, and though the language is a bit involved, the writer needed no lessons from modern publicity experts in stating virtues for his product. The ad was printed in the Mercator's Politicks of Edinburgh, in 1680, and reads: "Most Excellent and Approved Dispensary to scour and cleanse the Teeth, making them white as Ivory; preserves from Toothache; so that being constantly used, the parties using it are never troubled with the Toothache; it freshens the Teeth, sweetens the Breath and preserves the Mouth and Gums from Canker and Impostumes. Made by Robert Turner, Gentleman; and the rights are only to be had at the Holy Bookers, Stationer, at the Holy Lamb at the East end of St. Paul's Church, near the School, in sealed papers at 12d the paper. The reader is desired to beware of counterfeits."

Warfare Little Changed. When General Pershing saw the darkness ahead in the German line, he put in the American army instantly, meeting the emergency as Caesar met the rush of the Nervii in that same northeast France. When he encountered the complicated fortifications, trenches, pits and tangles of the Argonne, he employed precisely the kind of tactics to win through that Xenophon employed at the River Canticus more than 2,300 years ago and the same that Caesar used in his triumphant campaign against Vercingetorix.

The details change, the principles remain. Pershing summed up the art of shifting art in 78 minutes, and the last of these declares that the only way to become a great captain is to study the campaigns of the great generals of all times.

War Horrors. Two women were talking on a bus. "My hair became so gray during the war," said the first woman. "I hope it will be all right after awhile."

"I can understand," said the second woman. "It was enough to make any one's hair gray. I am sure you won't add any more gray hairs now that peace has come."

"Oh," said the first woman candidly. "It wasn't exactly because of the war that my hair became gray—that is, it wasn't because of worry; but, you know, the preparation I used to use—was imported—and during the war I couldn't get any of it. I had to let the gray hairs have their way—but now I hope it will be different," she smiled brightly.

A Crying Need. "There ought to be a school here for training young footpads," said Sanderson Smith, the well-known cattle heron of Rampage, Okla., who is temporarily in Kansas City's midst. "After having grown accustomed to the regular footpads in such functions it seems to me to be better with bygone and antiquated. Half of the time, with their jiggling and stammering, I don't know whether they are trying to hold me up or set out some sort of a charade."—Kansas City Star.

Hotels That Pay Their Guests. A newspaper reports that the hotel proprietors in Prague, Bohemia, have "cut their rates more than 100 per cent." From a financial point of view one might rather live in Bohemia than in any other land.—Boston Transcript.

The New Way. "Don't be in such a hurry to succeed, son. Look at me. I began life at the bottom."

"Well, I've been in France, and I began by going over the top."

DOCTOR URGED AN OPERATION

Instead I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Was Cured.

Baltimore, Md.—"Nearly four years I suffered from organic troubles, nervousness and headaches and every month would have to stay in bed most of the time. Treatments would relieve me for a time but my doctor was always urging me to have an operation. My sister asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before consenting to a operation. I took five bottles of it and it has completely cured me and my health is better than it has been for years. I tell all my friends who have any trouble of this kind that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—NEZZIE B. STRICKLAND, 620 Calverton Rd., Baltimore, Md.

LEMONS WHITEN AND BEAUTIFY THE SKIN

Make this beauty lotion cheaply for your face, neck, arms and hands.

At the cost of a small jar of ordinary cold cream one can prepare a half quart of the most wonderful lemon skin softener and complexion beautifier, by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of arched white. Care should be taken to strain the juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan and is the ideal skin softener, whitener and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of arched white, at any drug store and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It is marvelous to smoothen rough, red hands.
