Anniversary of Storm.

Yesterday, 17 years ago, a terrific snow storm was experienced in St. John's, and people who were going countrywards had to return to the city or run the risk of being smothered. At 8 p.m., during the worst period of the weather, Mr. Fogwill's house, near Bennett's Grove caught fire and was destroyed. The firemen with their hose reels and engines responded but could not get through the drifts further than the C. E. Cemetery and were eventually compelled to return to their quarters in the city.

Welcome to the Brigadier

Yesterday the city forces of the Salvation Army united and extended to Brigadier and Mrs. Morehen and family a welcome to the city. At 7 p.m. a banquet was prepared in the old school room on Springdale Street, and more than three hundred of the officers and soldiers of the City Corps enjoyed a social hour with their leaders. At 8 p.m., a Soldier's Welcome Meeting was arranged in the Citadel and short addresses were made by representatives of the different Corps, assuring the Brigadier of their cooperation with him and their love and devotion for the cause which they represented. The Brigadier's son, who is an accomplished bandsman, was then called upon, and as he arose to speak, received a rousing welcome, especially from the members of the bands who were present. Staff Capt. Carve, who was chairman of the meeting, in a few well-chosen words then introduced the Brigadier, who was received with great enthusiasm. The Brigadier, after paying grand tribute to the character and worth of his predecessor and the great work accomplished by him in this Province, then gave a most eloquent and touching address, basing his remarks on Joshua, chap. 1, 2nd verse. Mrs. Morehen, who is an eloquent and pleasing speaker, also addressed the meeting and by her touching words and pleasing manner, won her way into the hearts of all present. The meeting was brought to a close by singing the Doxology.

To-night a great demonstration and public welcome meeting will be held in the Citadel, at which all the city forces will unite.

Starts Riot as He Leaps From Hearse Stableman Picked a Queer Place to Sleep off Celebration.

New York, Dec. 11.—When James Riley, a stableman employed by Hirsch and Schwartz, undertakers, had finished his Thanksgiving celebration, he was tired and sleepy. Returning to the stable, he sought out a quiet place where he wouldn't be disturbed and crawled into a hearse, without leaving a call. He drew the black curtains and soon was snoring loudly.

At nine o'clock a customer telephoned that a hearse and four coaches had been sent immediately to Sixth and Lewis streets to bury Abraham Goldfogel. So Mr. Hirsch told "Sam" Kerstein, his best hearse driver, "to hook the blacks out to the rig." The hearse and the four coaches left the barn.

At Sixth street and avenue C the hearse hit a stretch of cobble stone, and Riley awoke. He rubbed his eyes and recognized the interior decoration of a hearse and kicked out the rear pane of glass.

"They're not going to bury me alive," he shouted as he leaped into the street.

Persons attracted by the crash of glass saw what they thought was a corpse leaping out of a hearse. They ran to look. One woman faints, and the ambulance from Bellevue Hospital was summoned. Push cart vendors abandoned their wares, scattered by the frightened throng, and joined in this flight from the awakened corpse. Some one sent in a riot call. When the police arrived Riley was gone. Mr. Hirsch took the price of the glass out of his wages, remarking that he was running an undertaking establishment and not a furnished room house.

In Memoriam.

Hon. D. J. Greene, late Lieut.-Col. of the Catholic Cadet Corps.

It's a long march that has no ending, A long "call" that does not cease, And the only restful bivouac Is an Everlasting Peace. For the road may be rough and narrow, Gloomy, with many a turn, But the tents loom in distant meadows Where the "guard" lamps flicker and burn.

The days that are past, are now present, And through the dim vista of years In lonely and silent procession Are passing, "the pioneers" They leave us, yet no "leave" is granted, Not even a shake of the hand Has softened the shock of the parting, Still we know and understand.

He's gone—but a sure promotion Awaits him, and may we all When we stand at the final muster And answer the last roll call Hold such a sure position, While volleys resound o'er thee, As he who has lately left us To join the battalions of God. F. E. R. D.

First Receipts

Small Beginnings and Great Endings of Celebrated Writers.

There are some curious and romantic stories connected with the first literary efforts and earnings of famous authors. Mr. Cutcliffe Hyde, for instance, recently confessed that "The first real literature I was ever paid for was written to decorate the wrapping paper of a tradesman who mended anything from a kettle to a diamond necklace. A brilliant idea had struck him that if his usefulness was displayed in type and color on the paper in which he wrapped his handling trade would subsequently increase. He felt he could not put sufficient literary finish on this personally, so I supplied designs for mottoes and for the wrapper to his esteemed order—price, one guinea."

Mr. Cutcliffe Hyde has also told how, after he left Cambridge, he "worked like a horse at writing for three years and did not earn a half-penny," while the first venture of Mr. S. R. Crockett in the literary world was, for $200 a year, to edit a paper, most of which he wrote himself. From another paper he received $2 a column of 1,000 words for his famous "Stickit Minister" stories. This worked out at a guinea a story. Mr. George R. Sims was earning a salary of $2,000 a year in the City when he gave up his post to embark on a literary career. He earned his

Uncle Walt
THE POET PHILOSOPHER.

I stood before the county jail, and said that suffrage ought to win. "The woman's better than the male," I cried; "to flout her is a sin. She has more virtue and more sense than any man who walks the WOMAN'S earth; and all the world, a few years hence, will have to own WISDOM her sterling worth. A woman always loves the good, and hates the false, the bad, the vile; for innocence she's always stood, and looked on merit with a smile." Then came a long parade of names, who halted at the prison door; they bore upon their graceful frames a ton of lovely flowers or more. I asked the jester why they brought these floral tributes to his den. He answered: "Well, you know we've caught that fined who slew a dozen men. We have him fettered safe, by jing, to hold him till the hangman comes, and every day the women bring him orchids and chrysanthemums."

Arthur Conan Doyle failed to reach this amount in his first year; yet for his novel, "Rodney Stone," he received $35,000 before it was written. Here are a few other big prices paid for books to authors after they had made their name. Daudet received $200,000 for a single novel. Lew Wallace got, in royalties on "Beh Hur" and "Prince of India," almost $400,000. "Les Miserables" brought Victor Hugo close on $80,000, while Kipling is reputed to charge 50 cents a word.

Twining to other literary work, one might mention that Commander Peary received $50,000 for the serial rights in the English language of his remarkable story of the discovery of the North Pole. Mr. Winston Churchill received $40,000 in cash and a substantial royalty for the life of his father, Lord Randolph Churchill; $50,000 was paid to Lord Morley for his "Life of Gladstone," and a smaller sum to Dr. Seven Hedin, the famous explorer for his last book. Macaulay received $40,000 in a single check as part of his profits from his "History of England."
