

Wedding Bells.

O'MARA-FEEHAN.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the residence of the bride's mother, when Miss Margaret Feehan was united in the bonds of matrimony to Mr. Peter O'Mara. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Fr. Galway, Wheeling, Virginia, assisted by Rev. Fr. McDermott. The bridesmaid was Miss Mary O'Mara while Mr. J. Kiely acted as best man. The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. John Feehan. Rev. Fr. Galway delivered a short but very eloquent sermon appropriate to the occasion. The bride was attired in white duchesse satin with a tunic of French embroidered net. She wore a veil of orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of white carnations and asparagus fern. The bridesmaid's dress was shell pink silk with a tunic of Limerick lace. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations and asparagus fern. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome piano and to the bridesmaid a gold brooch of lilies of the valley set in pearls. After the ceremony refreshments were served to about eighty guests. The party then drove to Waterford Bridge, where the bride and groom boarded the train to spend a week at Holyrood. From there they will go to Grand Falls for a short honeymoon. The happy couple were the recipients of many handsome presents and telegrams of congratulation.

Offers of assistance in the formation of the progressive party are reaching Roosevelt by mail and telegraph. When he returned home he found hundreds of telegrams awaiting him. They continued to come in, and offered money for organization. Roosevelt said there could be no formal policy until the meeting in New York, when a temporary committee on organization will issue a call for a National Convention. Meanwhile he will keep in touch with Baltimore and await the decision of the conference, which is of great importance to the new party.

Negotiations for a settlement of the Dock strike have again failed. The employers say that they have not in any way altered their position, and that more help than is needed could be obtained if a stop was put to terrorism tactics, adopted by the men. Encouraged by promises of financial assistance, a more defiant attitude among the workers is perceptible. The strike committee are telegraphing to Germany and America to the Central Trade organizations for loans for the benefit of the London Transport workers.

Ten thousand women, including many prominent society women, and several Duchesses, all dressed in white, and wearing white hats, trimmed with gaslands of white roses, sold flowers in the streets of London today, which was called Alexander Day, in honour of the Queen Mother. The proceeds will be given to Metropolitan Hospital Convalescent homes, in the name of Queen Alexandra, who originated the idea.

Getting Near.

New York, June 19.—A special despatch from London to the Sun says: "I have not discovered a cure for cancer, but I think I have got near it," was the startling announcement made yesterday by Dr. F. W. Forbes Ross, whose alleged pain-killing discovery was made public last Friday. "I am convinced that the cure when found will be very simple. As far as my investigation has gone I have come to the conclusion that the cause of cancer has no connection with meat or vegetable diet, neither is it an irritation of parts or a back infection. My theory is that cancer cells are really "Peter Pan" that will not grow old. If we could make them grow old we could cure the disease, because we should stop the multiplication of cells and they would be absorbed.

"What I claim to have discovered is that cancer is nothing more or less than an exhaustion of a natural quality in a body possessed by epithelial cells consequent upon diminution in the body of potassium salts. In the recent libel action here Dr. Gould, a great authority on cancer, said that cancer was sometimes cured by the natural forces of the body. I think that in potassium salts we have the key to the problem.

"I believe that the enormous increase in the death rate from cancer has kept pace with the improvements in the preparation of flour. The cortex, or rind, of wheat has been removed by the American process of milling, and people are fed regularly with dephosphated bread because the cortex contains a lot of phosphate of potassium and lime. Vegetables are composed largely of potassium salts, which unfortunately are thrown away in the water in which they are boiled. And this is so with rice. Nations which have adopted the civilized method of cooking rice and throwing away the water have developed cancer.

"An experiment made recently has tended to confirm my theory. A patient whom a doctor said could not live three months is now well and attending to business under the potassium treatment. My method is to use chiefly citrated bisphosphate of potassium—taken through the mouth—and also to apply locally to the cancer by means of an electric current a solution of phosphate of potassium. My experience with this treatment makes me feel enthusiastically hopeful of its future."

Acme Essences are pure, made from the best essential oils and extracts with sufficient spirit to act as a vehicle for a good strong flavor. They are thus perfectly true in flavor, and add a richness to whatever culinary preparations they are used in. They are different from many of the so-called extracts commonly sold in this market which are weak in flavor and weak in spirit, and some of which are considerably "off" so far as the taste they add to cakes, etc., is concerned. Acme essences, which sell at a fair price are genuine, and a trial will demonstrate this fact. Price 10, 15 and 25c at both our stores and at many of the city grocers.

San-Knit-ary wash cloths, each in an individual envelope, are guaranteed absolutely and spotlessly clean. They have not been exposed to the air, and carry no germs. Price 10 cents each.

To Make Ocean Travel As Safe As Street Cars
LONDON, JUNE 12.—The first essential step in the campaign for the establishment of an international weather and storm bureau has been taken here by Prof. Willis Moore, chief of the United States weather bureau. An speaking of his plan Prof. Moore said: "If the plan is adopted, so far as storms are concerned, the crossing of the Atlantic will be made as safe as a short street car journey. Great ocean liners, which have but little to fear from anything except the most destructive gale, may, by altering their course on receipt of the warning by fifty miles or more, escape a rough passage, while the smaller steamers and sailing ships, by making a wide detour, may escape possible destruction."

Prof. Moore outlined the plan at a luncheon given him by Dr. William Shaw, head of the British weather service, and the scientific staff of the London Meteorological station. Prof. LEY WOODS—June 26.

Moore has carried the fight for the adoption of the plan into the International Radio Congress now in session here.

According to the plan, a meridian line will be established through the North Atlantic. All ships sailing in either direction westward of this meridian are to be compelled to take a daily weather observation, which must be sent by wireless telegraph to the nearest ship in communication to the west, and thence the messages are to be relayed until they reach the nearest land station. The messages are then to be telegraphed to Washington where the weather bureau will make up a weather chart and a storm warning, which will be cabled to Europe.

Ships to the eastward of the meridian will follow similar instructions, relaying the messages until they reach either London or Paris.

The weather chart and storm warning will be sent by wireless telegraph to the nearest ships.
