ABOUT DOLLS.

By RUTH CAMERON.

Who is the most popular actress on the American stage to-day? Ask that question of five people and at least three of them would speak a single name—Maude Adams. Why is she so universally popular? Is she so beautiful, such a wonderful emotional actress? No, she isn't beautiful at all, at least not in the old acceptance of that word. Nor is she a wonderful emotional actress, at least not in a way the older favorites were. Maude Adams' popularity is founded on her humanness. Her plays and her ways are simple, natural, human. She does what you or I would do under similar circumstances. And box office receipts show that most of us really enjoy seeing an actress acting like a human being instead of like an actress.

In the world of books the simple human tale is more common and more popular to-day than the wild tale of romance and adventure that was the favorite a generation ago. Could anything be more simple and unexciting than one of Mary Stewart Cutting's stories of middle class people in every day situations? And yet they were very popular. Why? Because they are human and that's what people want nowadays.

Look about you and you will see other ways in which this tendency is manifested. We have less and less use for the artificial, the strained and unnatural, and more and more appreciation of the simple, the real, the human. It is to be a lasting condition or just a swing of the pendulum? I wonder.

Why Have "Nerves?"

This is the reason why women have "nerves." When thoughts begin to grow cloudy and uncertain, impulses lag and the warnings of pain and distress are sent like flying messages throughout limbs and frame, straightway, nine times in ten, a woman will lay the cause of the trouble to some defect at the point where she first felt it. It is a headache, a backache, a sensation of irritability or twitching and uncontrollable nervousness, something must be wrong with the head or back, a woman naturally says, but all the time the real trouble very often centers in the womanly organs. In nine cases out of ten the seat of the difficulty is here, and a woman should take rational treatment for its cure. The local disorder and inflammation of the delicate special organs of the sex should be treated steadily and systematically.

Dr. Pierce, during a long period of practice, found that a prescription made from medicinal extracts of native roots, without the use of alcohol, relieved over 90 per cent. of such cases. After using this remedy for many years in his private practice he put it up in form of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, that would make it easily procurable, and it can be had at any store where medicines are handled.

Mrs. LILA B. HAWKINS, of Zeus, Va., writes: "I had been failing in health for two years—most of the time was not able to attend to my household duties. Female weakness was my trouble and I was getting very bad but, thanks to Doctor Pierce's medicines, I am well and strong again. I took only three bottles of 'Favorite Prescription,' and used the 'Lotion Tablets.' I have nothing but praise for Doctor Pierce's wonderful medicines."

Presence of Mind.

A Woman's Cool Nerve in a Moment of Deadly Peril.

An Englishman in travelling through Ceylon was the guest of a deckyard official at Trincomalee.

"The dinner was excellent," he says, "but when it was about half over I was startled by hearing the wife of my host tell the native servant to place a bowl of milk on a deer skin near her chair.

"Although she spoke as calmly as if giving an ordinary order, I knew at once there was a snake somewhere in the room, for they prefer milk to anything else. As a hasty movement might have meant certain death, we all sat like statues; but for all that my eyes were inspecting every nook and corner, with a peep under the table. However, it was not until the milk was placed on the deer skin that the snake appeared. And then, to our amazement, a large cobra uncoiled itself from my hostess' ankle and glided toward the bowl, when, of course, it was immediately killed. "But just fancy the nerve of the woman, though she fainted when the thing lay dead on the floor. How many could have remained motionless in such circumstances?"—London Tit-Bits.

Lecture on Lodgers.

"What is a lodger?" Nearly everybody knows what a lodger is, and such a simple matter is hardly worth discussing.

A lodger, in short, is a man who maintains impeccable people in attendance. He provides his landlady with tea and pocket-money, and his landlady with tobacco and pipes. He furnishes the domestic cat with fish, spirits, cold meat, bread, sardines, glass, earthenware, books and fruit.

He saves his landlady's eldest son the necessity of buying collars, ties, pocket-handkerchiefs, or gloves, and supplies her daughter with books, scent, pomade, brushes and combs, writing-paper and envelopes. He pays the gas-bill for the whole household, and keeps the establishment in coals. Such is the lodger.

My Digestion Is Now Good

And I Feel Like a Young Man Since Using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Prof. A. T. Smith.

What a horrible condition the digestive system gets into when the liver becomes sluggish and the bowels constipated. The poisonous waste matter is thrown back into the blood stream and finds its way into all parts of the body, causing pains and aches and feelings of fatigue and misery.

It is wonderful how quickly Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills sweep the poisons from the digestive system and enable the organs of digestion to resume their natural functions.

Prof. A. T. Smith, 1 Mt. Charles street, Montreal, and formerly of Boston, Mass., writes:—"I suffered for many years from bad digestion, constipation and horrible backaches. I have been treated by many doctors without any result. One day a friend in Boston advised the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. After using two boxes I noticed great improvement, and after the fourth box I was completely cured. My digestion is good. I never feel any pain in the back. My head is clear and I feel like a young man. I think Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are one of the best medicines on earth." The Night Clerk

BY H. L. RANN.

The night clerk is an adjustable hotel fixture, who usually adjusts himself so as to call the 4.35 train at half past six. Nobody has ever discovered why hotels employ night clerks, unless it is to annoy guests who wish to be called the same week, the train leaves. A great many people have tried to perfect some invention which would keep a night clerk from going into a deep, melancholy trance along about 3.00 a.m. and remaining therein until every train on the main line has reached the end of the division. The average night clerk can stand on one leg and go to sleep faster than an assistant to a hypnotist, and when in that condition he couldn't hear a fourteen-inch gun if it was planted on the hotel register.

Most night clerks have the habit of starting a long-distance map about midnight and winding up just in time to escape being murdered by some irate guest who has missed a close connection. It is the duty of the night clerk to serve tea and one lean, sparsely towel to guests on the third floor who are not dressed to come down and get them. Some night clerks are so hard of hearing that they can sit in an arm chair, within two feet of the bell, and never detect an alarm which sounds like the long roll on a snare drum.

Whenever a night clerk wakes up in time to arouse some patron who wishes to get out of town before daylight, he begins to call the 5.20 train as soon as he strikes the first landing, using a high, resonant voice that jars the sleep out of everybody on the floor and gives the guests the exact time of day. After performing this duty and returning to the desk, he is seized with remorse lest he should have overlooked somebody, and in order to avoid mistakes goes up again and pounds on the doors of people who take out board by the week. This has a very soothing effect upon patrons who didn't turn in until three o'clock. The night clerk is one reason why travelling men carry a self-tripping alarm clock in their grips and hook it to the head of the bed before retiring.

Lalande and Neptune.

The astronomer Lalande narrowly escaped being made famous by a discovery. He accidentally struck Neptune with his glass on May 8, 1785, but supposed it was a star. He put it down in his notebook as a star and recorded its exact situation. Two days later he struck it once more and made a record of it. But when he looked over his notes he found he had it down as being in two different places, and as a star cannot move in forty-eight hours he supposed he had made a mistake in one of his notes. If he had used his mind a little less mechanically he easily might have been a Columbus.—London Chronicle.

With the Puck.

After the above match only one more game remains to be played to finish the season's fixtures, viz. Crescents vs. St. Bon's.

The Wanderers' team will be leaving Halifax to-morrow, reaching here probably Monday night. The city team are now getting into shape but will want more practice to compete with the combination of their outside opponents.

The first meeting between the City and Wanderers will take place next Tuesday night.
