Llewellyn Club and Selective Conscription.

The session of the Liewellyn Club, patriotic in its nature, last night, will live long in the memory of its members, as being the most momentous in its history, for at that meeting Selective Conscription was discussed and a standing vote taken at the close on the question showed every man in the hall on his feet. The delegation from the Returned Soldiers' and Rein the hall on his feet. The delegation from the Returned Soldiers' and Rejected Men's Association comprised Sergt. Mitchell, Lieut. Carter, Sergt. Robinson and Mr. K. Blair. Dr. Jones, who presided, in his opening remarks said St. Thomas's was the old military parish, and had sent a large number of men to the front, and that there are not many eligible young men left in his or men to the front, and that there are not many eligible young men left in his parish. The struggle to-day is at a serious stage, and the will to win must be instilled among the people. He then called on Sergt. Robinson, who dealt with the first 500; their training, their work at Gallipoli and then the battle of July 1st. Major Franklin was with the 47th Division that day on one side of "Ours," while the 5th Division was on the other. He then went on to describe the position they held and the results of that drive. Concluding, Sergt. Robinson said we can get men from St. John's but not from the outports; we do not want conscripts we want men want conscripts; we want men, we must have men, we must keep the regiment up to strength. Men must be made to realize the necessity of keeping the Regiment up to strength. You've got to try and get reinforcements. If the eligibles will not go, the returned men will have to go. The Soldiers' Association in Strength world. Soldiers' Association in future would see to the grievances of the men who have returned. We are going to have Sciective Conscription enforced but in the meantime we must have recruits. Mr. H. Y. Mott spoke next, and delivered, as usual, a most inter-esting and impressive address. He felt the Llewellyn Club was honored to have returned soldiers present to address them. These are the boys who have borne the brunt of the battle; these are the boys whom all should delight to honor. Continuing, Mr. Mott made an earnest plea that some steps may be taken to get reinforcements for the regiment. At the of his address, he read a poem of Jack Turner. We are unable to give Mr. Mott's speech in full owing to lack of space. Lieut. Carter was the next speaker, and said in part: Dr. Jones has hit the right word. go, and those who can't go, to help others to get the will to go.
