EVENTFUL SNEEZING

HOW A LITTLE THING MAY BE LADEN WITH GREAT RESULTS.

A Succee Under London Bridge That A Speeze That Averted Assassina-

Exactly at 6 p. m. on the evening of Dec. 13, 1884, a sneeze was sneezed un-der London bridge which consigned two men to an instant and horrible

Their names were Lomasney and Fleming, and they were conspirators. Their mission was to blow up the bridge with dynamite, because it was considered that at that time there would be more people crossing it-workmen, workgirls and others on their way home from business-than at any other and that the loss in human life would be therefore correspondingly more appalling. All went well at first. The pair of desperadoes dropped noiselessly down the river in a boat, with forty pounds of dynamite in their possession, to-gether with the necessary fuses and detonators. Arrived at their destination, however, they found that the gully hole underneath the southern arch of the tention to insert the explosive, had been stopped up. Lomasney undertook to remove the obstruction, but it occupled him some little time. The night was bitterly cold, and his comrade chilled and was seized with a sudden fit of sneezing. In his agitation he dropped one or more of the detonators he was holding, and these, falling on the dynamite which was laying in the bottom of the boat, exploded it, with disastrous results. Doubtless, however, that inopportune sneeze, although it ended the career of a pair of desperadoes, saved London bridge from de-

That the Right Hop. W. E. Forster died peacefully in his bed instead of being assassinated in 1882 was due to eze. Three times the conspirators laid in wait for him, but the last attempt was the most determined of them all. Four men armed with heavy caliber navy revolvers were to waylay lodge to the castle. Two of the assas sins were to fire at him from the first floor window of a house in a certain street, and the other two were stationfew yards down on the opposite side of

These latter were the "reserves" des-tined to try their skill should their col-leagues miss. Neither of the two firing parties were to show themselves until the near approach of their proposed victim was signaled from the street below. The signal in question was to be the waving of a pocket handkerchief by James Carey, the same man who was afterward killed by O'Don-from the point of view of the partici-pants therein. In fact, so far as buman foresight could provide against eventualities the chief secretary seemed as good as dead. Yet it all came to naught and for so simple a reason that the plotters themselves, meeting together afterward at their secret rendezvous in North King street, were fain to laugh at their own discomfiture.

The morning was cold and gusty. Mr. Forster was somewhat late, and Carey, chilled with waiting about, began to sneeze. Instinctively he drew out his bandkerchief, the handkerchief that was to give the fatal signal, and in an instant the blustering north wind bad flicked it from h' unmbed fin-

the result, however, though exactly what might have been foreseen, hardly came up to his expectations. The four men at the windows were waiting for a man with a handkerchief. Instead, they saw one without any such signaling apparatus, evidently excited and point conjured up visions of traitors in their ranks and of detectives on their tracks and, dropping their weapons, inconti-nently and hastily fled. On the evening of Oct. 11, 1878, a policeman on duty near the Coliseum Music hall, Liverpool, noticed an unu sual commotion at the entrance. sheveled boys and girls, their clothing In many instances torn from their backs and some of them covered with blood, were pouring from the gallery exits, while from within the building came the sound of shricking and loud cries for help. Realizing something of what was happening, the constable seized an ax and smashed in two of the

His prompt action undoubtedly saved scores if not hundreds of lives, for by veritable pandemonium, wherein sever al thousand people, mad with terror, were tighting and struggling with one another for precedence.

Thirty-seven of the number lost their lives and more than twice that number the panic was a fit of sneezing into which a number of girls in the front row of the gallery were thrown owing to some mischievous person tossing some snuff into the air. A number of those behind, hearing and seeing a commotion in front, rose to their feet. Others joined them. Shouts and cries added to the confu-sion. An alarm was raised that the place was on fire, and a simultaneous rush of bundreds of frightened people for the narrow exit doors was followed by the results chronicled.
