KIND WORDS.

The "Advertiser's" New Improvements.

Pleasant Sentences from Contemporary Journals.

WILL BEAT ITS RECORD.
Among the latest newspapers to adopt the Linotype is the London "Advertiser," which in thus reducing its expenses has benefited its readers both by its improved appearance and by being set free to give more scope in other directions to a spirit of enterprise which has always kept pace with possibility. The "Advertiser" has now a record of 32 years public service, and is apparently starting out to make the next 32 years surpass the past.—Montreal Witness.

KEEPS UP WITH THE PROCESSION.
The London "Advertiser" keeps up with the procession. It has long been one of the most progressive journals in Canada, and it bids fair to remain so. The latest development in its management is the introduction of Linotype printing machines, by means of which the chief part of its matter is set up. This alone would not amount to much in the improvement, were it not that it is in keeping with the general spirit of enterprise and the general evidence of ability which have so long secured for the paper a prominent place.—Toronto Week.

FULLY AHEAD OF THE TIMES.
The London "Advertiser" is now set entirely by the Mergenthaler machines, and presents a wholesome appearance typographically. The "Advertiser" was founded by John Cameron in 1863, and is therefore in its 32nd year. It is a paper that has an opinion of its own, and usually a sound one, upon all the important public issues that arise from time to time. Its prompt adoption of the Mergenthaler machines shows that it is fully abreast of the times typographically, as in other respects.—Brantford Express.

PRAISE FOR A CANADIAN PAPER.
(From the Estate, New York.)
The London (Ont.) "Advertiser," of which John Cameron, well known personally to members of the American Publishers' Association, was the founder and is controlling shareholder and manager, is printed on a web press, from Mergenthaler composition. The Toronto Globe says:

The London "Advertiser" is the latest of our exchanges to put in the Linotype machines. Its new dress and appearance presents a quite up-to-date appearance, while its well-filled advertising columns give it that prosperous look that publishers and the public alike can appreciate. It is undoubtedly one of the best papers in Western Ontario, and with its 32 years' record behind it, its proprietors are evidently determined that its influence shall not diminish but grow with the years and with the progress of the live community in which it is published.

UP TO DATE.
The London "Advertiser" now comes to us in a bright new type-dress—a dress that never fades, as the paper is set each week by the Mergenthaler type-setting machines, and therefore the dress is always new. The "Advertiser" is now in its 32nd year, and still holds its popularity with a firm grasp, and its ranking as the best newspaper in Western Ontario.—Welland Tribune.

TYPOGRAPHY BETTER THAN EVER.
Our contemporary's typographical appearance is now better than ever, and it is at present fighting a vigorous battle for tariff reform and good government. Thirty-two years ago the "Advertiser" was founded by the man who still controls its destinies—Mr. John Cameron—and although the paper is nearly as old as a generation of men, he is still in the very prime of life. Mr. Cameron has always taken a keen interest in social, religious and general humanitarian work, and his paper has been a reflex of his opinions on the important subjects embraced in this classification.—St. Thomas Journal.

WIDELY CIRCULATED.
Published for nearly a third of a century, the London "Advertiser" has long been known as one of the progressive journals of the Dominion, as well as the most widely circulated daily in Western Ontario. The "Advertiser" always goes up to date.—Canada Presbyterian.

A LEADING POSITION.
The London "Advertiser" is now in its 32nd year and easily maintains a leading position among Canada's progressive journals. It is set entirely by the Mergenthaler type-setting machines.—Watford Guide Advocate.

MARKED IMPROVEMENTS.
Mr. John Cameron, who for 32 years has conducted the London "Advertiser" with such marked vigor that Western Ontario is now largely Liberal, is still so full of energy that he is making marked improvements and advances in the mechanical conduct of that publication. From all appearances it will be even more vigorously conducted during the next 32 years than during the past 32.—Blenheim News.

THE "ADVERTISER" SELDOM BEHIND.

The London "Advertiser" recently added a battery of Linotypes to its composing room and is now almost entirely set by these machines. The "Advertiser" has led the way in introducing improved appliances for newspaper publishing in London. It was the first to get fast cylinder presses, to introduce Linotype machines, and to employ the perfecting press which is the acme of the press builder's skill, and now leads the way with the most approved machinery for type-setting. These are some of the improvements of which the "Advertiser" is so proud, and which go towards establishing its claim to be in the newspaper field in the first rank.—Starnia Observer.

NEWSY.
The "Advertiser" is well printed and set by the Mergenthaler machines, which are the largest city offices.
