MR. ATTWOOD'S REJOINDER.

To the Editor of The Advertiser: I have read Mr. T. B. Scott's criticisms of the report in your issue of the 13th inst., of my purchase of the Lindal farm, and my "rash yow," as he calls it. Mr. Scott's head is a little narrow. Still, it is usually level; but in this case he is off his base entirely. To redeem properties which are called homesteads, and which our fathers have given us, but which we may have lost through no fault of our own, is usually regarded as a meritorious act. But it can be done only upon two conditions. First, that the property comes again into the market, and second, ability to do so. If Mr. Scott will turn of our country the Hon. David Mills ability to do so. If Mr. Scott will turn accupies a unique position. As he appears to regard the query a very sharp one-even suggests a possible solution f the question by the School of Pedagogues, and as he, to my mind, ap- told pears to be unduly interested in my financial standing, and although of modest and retiring disposition, I feel ney referred to himself as an "annex inclined to relieve him of so much anxiety and trouble. Before my last pur-chase I owned 300 acres of land, which even now has not the scratch of a pen against one of them. between the provinces, including Ontario, to make a raid on the Dominion exchequer. I know not what other provinces have done. I speak for this province alone. There has been no such alliance, there is no such alliance, there will be no such alliance. When we met in Quebec in 1886 and passed resolutions, the situation was entirely dif ferent from what it is now. The Do-minion then had a high protective tarminion then had a high protective tariff. At Confederation they had taken away our revenues from tariff and from excise, and they had been receiving, except in two years, from four to six millions from their tariff as the Ready Relief.

I repeat that there has been no such alliance, and that there is not likely to be any such in the future.

liance between Tarte and Hardy. Some people do not like Mr. Tarte. A great many Conservatives do not like Mr. Tarte because he to had been an old Conservative; he had been in their camp, in the inner ring. and he told part of it. Perhaps he could tell a great deal more; I have no doubt he could. But since he told part and cut off the head and expelle from parliament one of the leader he should have expelled more. It re minds me of what Dr. Johnson said while he was courting his wife: "I am much of my character, because I had a relation hanged." His future wif replied: "I am just as poor in the matter of money as you are, and, although I never had a relative hanged, there are 50 of them that ought to b hanged." (Laughter.) If Mr. Tarte had told all, there would have been a good many heads go into basket. I do not know much about Mr. Tarte, and therefore I pass no opinion upon his past character. It is for Sir Vilfrid Laurier to guard, it is for Sir Wilfrid Laurier to justify, as he has taken him into his ministry. As for an alliance between Hardy and Tarte to elections, I may say that I never had five minutes' can judge how much truth there is in that statement in the Mail. He has come back, after one year's experience in office, with the same honors heaped upon him and the same titles that Sir John Macdonald got after thirty years in public life. In addition to that, you hear on every hand, in the street, the store and the market-place, that an era of good times has dawned. The signs of it are visible in the horizon, and before another year has passed by we shall have good times, such as the country has not seen for twenty years. (Loud cheering.)
