CARRIED TO THE GRAVE.

Sorrowing Friends Bear to Their Last Resting Place the Remains of Numerous Other Victims.

Yesterday was another repetition of scenes of mourning on the streets and at the churches, the bodies of a considerable number of victims of the bridge disaster being consigned to the tomb with ceremonies rendered even more solemn by the occasion which had called for them: Buried to-day,

When the soft green buds are bursting out And up on the south wind comes a shout Of village boys and girls at play In the mild spring evening gray."

It was a sad party of tearful children who yesterday in the hugh of the early evening followed to the grave all that is more all fellow armortal of May and Ethel Bowness. At St. Barnabas church, Rev. J. B. Haslam conducted the burial service, which was full choral. The choir, vested, preceded by the cross bearer, met the funeral cortege at the west entrance and led the procession, singing the hymn. Days and Moments."

The 90th psalm was then chanted and first the reading of the rea Bowed With Woe." During the interval before the committal of the bodies to the grave "Thy Will Be Done" was sung, the Nunc Dimittis chanted to Barnby closed a most impressive service. At the grave the pathetic faces of the little white-clad girls would have melted the hearts of the most callous, as the two flower-laden coffins were lowered into the one grave. Those whose mournful duty it was to act as pall bearers Misses Jackson, Goddard, Emery, Sweet, Colquhoun, Alison, Campbell and Babbington, and Messrs.
