ordinary merit in his playing as out of courtesy to Mrs. Siddons it must have had the effect of allaying the nervousness she confessed to feeling as to his success, and in any event she could not have falled to appreciate the compliment. As a matter of fact while Mr. Waller's playing has many points worthy of praise it is not remarkable for any special degree of brilliancy. His principal number was Liszt's Rhapsodie No. 2 which was somewhat labored in execution and lacked facility. A more pronounced accentuation would also have tended to better rythmatic effects. Mr. Waller is a young man of considerable possibilities, and doubiless, as his experience widens, he will develop fully his undoubted talent.

So much has been said of Mrs. Siddons that beyond saying she was as charming as ever, nothing more is necessary. The "Trial Scene," from the "Morchant of Vonice," and "The Drinking of the Potion" from "Romeo and Juliet," were her chief selections and were given alike with exquisite electionary refinement and dramatic force. Its popularity can hardly be a source of surprise to those who have sat through its representation by Mr. Rudolph Aronson's organization, for it seems to possess all the elements necessary to pieuse the audiences of to day. It has been the rule that the great nuturity of comic operas could not boast of anything beyond pretty music and handsome dressing. Pleasing enough they often were to the musical enthusias, but they lacked something in interest to the ordinary patron, who wanted to be amused as well as treated to effective music, "Erminic," with its funny comedy interest proved its superiority at the starf and the applause that greeted it nightly elerify indicated that the keynote of public desire had been touched. The Harlem River oarsmen turned out to the extent of nearly twenty crews on Sunday, it being the first day of the year when water and weather would permit general rowing.

The Passaio Boat Club last week disqualified Matthew Quigley and Charles Lunjack of the Institutes, and John Weldon, B. Van Clief and Charles Holt of the Eurekas. All of these men had joined the Passaics, and were among the best amateur oarsmen in the country. It was the intention of the Passaics to make an invincible four by nutting Jack Weldon and Fred Freeman, the champions of the defunct Arials, in the boat with Quigley and Chamberry, with Lunjack as a substitute.

This plan has been thwarted by the members of the Institutes and Eurekas by entering protests against Quigley and Weldon under a rule of the local association, which is that no one who has been dropped from the roll of one of the clubs can join another or row in a regata of the association until the arrears of dues are paid in full to the club with which he has sayored connection. Another rule is that men cannot row in races of the association until they have been members of solub for two months. This rule shute out the disqualified men from the Decoration Day regatia on the Passaio, but they will be in good standing in time to enter on the Harlem, as the limit on that river is but one month. The Japanese printer is very much hampered by our present methods of work, and I do not see how we are going to change them. The Japanese alphabet contains about 8000 characters, and each character occupies a different box in the dase. The composing room has only one case, which is placed against the side of the wall, the boxes being arranged as high and low as a man can well reach, and all the compositors use this one case. On this account the printers are compelled to walk about twenty miles in a day, and when hurried go rushing about from one box to another, tumbling over each other in the most confusing manner. This causes the work to take much more time and labor than in most other countries.
