Gossip From Chicago.

Kennett, Hopkins & Co. to R. Cochran: Early cables gave the bulls no comfort and late ones were but little better, but local traders thought any boom in order and worked faithfully to that end all day. They had to take considerable long wheat to establish the evidence, but they in turn found shorts good customers at top. Speculative sentiment is still bullish and another attempt will probably be made to-morrow to advance prices. We are advised by our Minneapolis correspondent that there is little demand for flour in that market, and exporters at the seabord say that the export business there is dead with no signs of revival. According to The Mark Lane Express foreign markets are overstocked and supplies there must be reduced before there can be any permanent improvement in values. Here and in the Northwest there are in store 40 million bushels wheat that are being carried mainly by longs in this market. We can see no prospect of a bull market under such conditions.

Counselman & Day to J. J. Dixon & Co.: Weak holders had unloaded. Spot grain and provisions had settled into strong hands, futures had become depleted, and as we said yesterday the raising of the freight blockade found the market in gondition for a general raily. Frovisions led in strength and coarse grains followed. Professional bear pressure could no longer avail against wheat and four, which is always the last breadstuff to advance, shared the general improvement to-day. We look for a broader market and higher prices to morrow.

ment to-day. We look for a bread higher prices to-morrow.

Guff From Gotham.

Henry Allen to J. J. Dixon & Co.: The indications of a break up in the market were stronger to-day than yesterday, and show a line more ragged than its predecessors. Where yesterday and day before the gains and losses were generally distributed, the operations of to-day showed few exceptions in the latter column. Chicago (fas gained a tirife and held to an advanced figure throughout. One or two other stocks, mainly those not dealt in largely, also gained a little. In the absence of news of importance it is difficult to account for this condition upon any theory except that coanected with the weather and the assumption that the realization of profits still continued and the operations of the element acting with this aim were sufficient to give temporary direction to the whole market. It is not unlikely that larger operators may add their in-
