The Dread of Lightning

(Ridgetown Dominion.)

Lightning is the great dread of the farmer of recent years. As the country has been cleared of timber the danger is present in every storm. Barns and other outbuildings with their contents, sometimes the crops representing the labor of an entire season, with horses and machinery, are destroyed in a few minutes. No farmer is guaranteed immunity. With building material and labor at present prices, the building of a new barn, to say nothing of replacing other loss, means a lot of money. The farmer has but two remedies: to have his buildings properly rodded by competent men and to carry full insurance against possible loss. Insurance may be had at a small yearly outlay, and so much the better if you never have reason to get any of your money back. It is poor economy to take avoidable risk. Do not begrudge what you pay for insurance. The prudent farmer will carry a reasonable amount of insurance on his buildings and their contents.

An Unnecessary Practice

Some milkers still follow the filthy and disgusting practice of wetting their hands with milk while milking. This is only a habit and is entirely unnecessary. If something is necessary to facilitate milking a little vaseline may be used. Hoard's Dairyman says that this is a serious source of contamination in old-fashioned dairies and is especially important in the distribution of skin and other human diseases. Milk being a perfect and universally used food as well as an excellent medium for many disease organisms where they multiply and grow rapidly at certain temperatures. If the udder is not properly dried after milking it causes chaps and sores in cold weather on the teats, which affect the temper of the cow, and thus the yield by the irritation caused when milking.

A "Touching" Story

The young lady who had sat for a crayon portrait was not altogether pleased with the result. "It looks like me, of course," she said, inspecting it doubtfully, "and yet I think there are some things about it that ought to be changed." She suggested that the eyes should have rather more of an upward look, that the right hand should be a little less prominent, that the hair should be made more wavy, and that certain changes ought to be made in the drapery. "That would require a great deal of retouching," said the artist, "and I should have to charge you about ten dollars additional." "O dear!" she exclaimed, with a pout. "I shall have to give it up. Papa wouldn't stand my 'retouching' him to that extent."

Canada's Orange Supply

(Florida "Times-Union.")

The Florida orange crop this year will be as large as any ever gathered from the groves of this state, but the California crop will be many million boxes short. The domestic demand will call for every orange grown in the United States this year, and there will be none left for export unless the foreigner is ready with a fancy price. As California and Florida have heretofore furnished Canada with nearly all the oranges she used after supplying practically the entire demand of the United States, it is evident that there will be a shortage of oranges in North America, and the consumer will pay big prices. This ought to result in a large increase in the wealth of the orange growers of this state.

As a vermifuge there is nothing so potent as Mother Graves' Worm Expeller, and it can be given to the most delicate child without fear of injury to the constitution.

Walkerville expects to have the foundation of her hospital started in April next, about $30,000 having been promised. About twice that will be required according to the plans. The site has been contributed by the Hiram Walker Co.

ZAM-BUK

MRS. A. SAICH, of Cannington Manor, Sask., Writes:—"My brother suffered severely from eczema. The sores were very extensive, and burned like coals into his flesh. Zam-Buk took out all the fire, and quickly gave him ease. Within three weeks of commencing with Zam-Buk treatment, every sore had been cured."

This is but one of the many letters we are constantly receiving from people who have proved the healing powers of Zam-Buk. For eczema, piles, sores, burns, cuts and all skin troubles there is nothing like this wonderful balm. No skin disease should be considered incurable until Zam-Buk has been tried.

ECZEMA

Dad's Dope

The report that "Queen Lil," the original "Honolulu Queen," was in indigent circumstances is without foundation. A dispatch says that the old lady is in excellent health and able to sit up and eat a couple of pounds of raw beefsteak daily.

A Chicago lawyer concealed a dictagraph in his front office to keep tabs on the remarks of his stenographer and office boy concerning himself. After reading the first day's records he placed the machine in the vault and advertised two vacancies in his office staff.

It is a mere coincidence that the hunting season and law courts open the same time. To those who know the haunts of big game, there is plenty of good sport for both.

This is the season of the year when a late summer attempts to form a merger with the early fall.

Mrs. Pankhurst will be confronted with a charge of "moral turpitude" when she lands in America. After all the other charges she has faced this will not worry her.

China has again aroused Japan's ire, which may result in a few more stones being knocked off the Chinese wall and the fence moved back several miles.

A returned tourist from Switzerland reports that he could get no Swiss cheese in that country. Perhaps the public safety committee, on account of so many mountain climbers falling through the crevices in the cheese, has ordered them closed up for a time.

Even in articles of diet the line of cleavage is becoming more pronounced every day. The gulf dividing corned beef from cabbage is becoming wider, and ham shows a disposition to separate from its old side partner, fried eggs.

A Michigan man has been on the surgeon's operating table twenty-four times. He is beginning to feel like a village cutup.

In the event of war with Mexico, a Chicago paper wishes to know if Secretary Bryan would deliver lectures between battles.

Mrs. Hetty Green is spending a brief vacation at an Atlantic summer resort. This will be the limit of Hetty's extravagance for the present season.

A New York divine says no woman who wears a slit skirt in this world will ever enter heaven. Angels are usually pictured as attired only in a thin cloud and a pair of wings.

Improving the Lot of the Farmer's Wife

Half a century ago men and women were about on an equality in the matter of the drudgery of farm life. The man had to slave among the stumps and stones. The woman had to make soap, weave, spin and knit. The man was obliged to break his back over the sheaves in the harvest field, to wield the corn knife and labor with the flail and hoe. The woman had to carry water from the spring, to carry in the wood and sometimes to chop it, to sweep and scrub and fight flies, says the Farm and Fireside.

Necessity has largely emancipated the man. Invention makes it cheaper and better to use the mower, the binder, the corn harvester, the windmill, the gasoline engine, the shredder, the silo, the riding plow, the cream separator and the milking machine. The man has many other things. But in many things today the inventions of today have not been placed in the woman's hands because it has been necessary to adopt them in order to make the farm pay.

So in the course of events that led up to making the farm pay, the woman has kept on as she used to do in order to make possible the purchase of implements by which her husband could do more work with less effort.

The time has now come when we must move the flag of woman's comfort up to that planted for men. Any farm that can afford a silo can afford electric light or gas, the vacuum cleaner, the dishwasher, and the washing machine.

Any farm that can afford a gas engine can afford a bathroom. And any farm that can afford a manure spreader and a hayfork in the barn can afford running water in the kitchen.

Another Dose

A month ago at break of day with merry heart I dressed and shaved. I started out, so people say, a happy man and well-behaved. I calmly sauntered to the door and brought the paper from the stoop—and then I started in a roar, to rip and tear and howl and whoop. I started in to rant and rage, for once again yet more I saw on every inch of every page another dose of Harry Thaw! 'Twas Harry this and Harry that and Harry these and Harry those, and Harry in a bowler hat and Harry in his evening clothes, and what he did, and what he said, and what he smoked, and what he ate, and how he liked his prison bed, and what he thought would be his fate, until in fiery wrath I swore, "The Government should pass a law to make illegal evermore the mention of the name of Thaw!" For many, many years he was the nation's breakfast food; we hoped, although we had our fears, that we were rid of him for good; we dreamed that moons might wax and wane, that many suns might rise and set ere we should see his name again, but we must view it still more yet! No wonder that we weep and wail, and call Fate's handout mighty raw; but all our tears will not avail—we'll ne'er be through with Harry Thaw.

It is a worthless hen that lays for your neighbors. Many of the misfortunes from which we suffer most are those we never experience. They are the misfortunes of the imagination.
