EASTER SUNDAY of 1919 will be remembered by many of the young people of Watford, and some of the older ones too, as the day on which they first wittoo, as the day on which they first wit-nessed an aeroplane in flight and exam-ined it on the ground. Shortly after one o'clock the purring of the engines of a plane was distinctly heard, being loud enough to cause people to look outdoors, when a machine was seen flying quite low and evidently looking for a place to land. In a few minutes the streets re-sembled a scene in the "Pied Piper" with almost the entire adult population added sembled a scene in the "Pied Piper" with almost the entire adult population added to the children's procession. Before the pur of the motor had ceased "The little boys and girls With rosy checks and flaxen curls" were merrily making for the fourth line. With their fathers, mothers, aunts, uncles and cousins they followed the direction taken by the servence which had taken by the aeroplane, which had alighted on Swañton Chamber's pasture farm adjoining the town. Mud and barbed wire fences failed to stop the stampede, and in a short time some six or seven hundred people were examining the intricacies of the aeroplane. Running short of gas and finding that the carbur-eter was leaking, the airmen had been obliged to make a descent. It was not until three hours later that the plane wa ready to continue its flight from Toronto to Detroit, and during that time the in-quisitive crowd was augmented by a number of people from the adjoining townships. Autos end, buggies by the score lined the roads adjoining the farm and a number drove into the field. Fortunately the afternoon was bright, the rain having ceased about noon, but the ground was very damp and disagree-able to stand on.
