We note that both teachers and pupils seem to be pleased with their new school building. Bear River may well be proud of such accommodations for the school population, and those disposed to find fault at first already see the advantages to be derived, and in years to come will praise the actions of those whose energy and foresight brought the matter to a successful issue. The equipment is not complete, but we notice that Academy Hall has a nice piano, and will, after this week, be lighted by electricity. The belfry contains a nice Blymer bell, while from the flag staff floats a large Dominion flag, the gift of John Troop, Esq., our popular Collector of Customs. The pupils of the High School have about completed arrangements for the purchase of an organ for their school.

The Kate F. Troop Rescues a Crew.

New York, November 14.—The Nova Scotia barque Kate F. Troop, which arrived this morning from Singapore, brought Capt. Trapani, his brother and ten men of the Genoa barque Torquato, abandoned at sea Nov. 7th, in lat. 32.22, long. 70.46. The Torquato left Genoa, Aug. 18th, with a cargo of general merchandize for this port. Almost from the start bad weather was experienced and gales of wind were encountered from almost every point of the compass. Finally, on Oct. 26th, a hurricane from the southeast struck the vessel and stripped her of her canvas, and hove her down on her side. The wind shifted to the northwest and blew with hurricane force for nine hours, and when it was found that the barque was making water rapidly the pumps were manned, but it appeared impossible to gain on the leak. There was not canvas enough left to navigate the vessel, so all hands were kept at the pumps. This continued for 13 days when on the morning of Nov. 7th the Kate F. Troop hove in sight and seeing a distress signal flying bore down and lowering a boat took the crew off. The men were enabled to save most of their effects. Summer of last week, we feel the cold snap now upon us very much.

The statement that Rev. Dr. Partridge is to be a Coadjutor Bishop in New Brunswick is probably "wide," or at least premature. Everybody who knows Dr. Partridge will be glad to hear of his return to New Brunswick. No clergyman of his denomination has left this province in the past twenty years who was a greater loss. No churchman in this province knows more thoroughly the needs and wants of the Anglican church in New Brunswick than Dr. Partridge, and no one knows better how they may be supplied. The practical side of his character is strong, but it is not the only side. A man may be an untiring worker and yet not a leader. Dr. Partridge can be both.
