

"It is certainly good matter arranged in a convenient and attractive style. I have no doubt that, now your numbers are issued in this convenient shape, many of your subscribers will preserve them much better than in the old form. They will thus have a valuable source of reference when wishing to turn up articles they have read, but have forgotten exactly where they got the information."

JAMES FLETCHER,
Entomologist and Botanist, Central Experimental Farm,
Ottawa, Ont.

"In my opinion the change from THE LIVE STOCK AND FARM JOURNAL to the present form is advisable. The form of FARMING is neat, and the division of matter into departments, each having a special editor, a very great improvement. Permit me to offer this suggestion, that you keep it a monthly publication."

A. E. SHUTTLEWORTH,
Professor of Chemistry, Ontario Agricultural College,
Guelph, Ont.

"We, the undersigned, having subscribed for FARMING, a magazine published by The Bryant Press, Toronto, hereby heartily recommend it to all our fellow-farmers. It is a well edited, neatly gotten-up magazine, and its reading will tend to make farming more popular among the young, and generally more profitable. It is a cheap way to get the experience of so many practical men who are its editors. Only $1.00 a year. Subscribe for it. Chatham, December 4th, 1895.

But it is not necessary to go any further. Nearly every subscriber has something in this strain to say.

Now, friends, don't delay, but send to us at once for samples and particulars as to commission, etc. If you have only time to put in an occasional good word, it will pay you to take the trouble. If you have not much time to canvass yourself, perhaps you can send us the name of some one in your neighborhood whom we can get to act as agent.

If you will send us two new yearly subscriptions to FARMING, and $2 in payment.

THERE are a few farmers who are still crying "hard times." To these we would like to say that good times will never return until they give up their antiquated methods of farming and adapt themselves to the changed condition of affairs. It is perfectly proper to cut down expenses when receipts are small, but the cutting must be done judiciously. Care should be taken to cut off only such items of expense as produce the least revenue. It requires careful study these days to make money at farming, and a good agricultural magazine is the farmer's best friend. Surely you do not think you are saving money when you refuse to spend one dollar for a magazine from which you may obtain information which will enable you to make one hundred.

The Newspaper People

Are well pleased with FARMING.
Here is what some of them

Say

"The December number of 'Farming' is to hand, and is as usual replete with everything of interest to the up-to-date farmer. It is safe to say there is no better farmer's publication issued in America. Any farmer will save ten times the subscription by a careful perusal of its pages during the coming winter evenings."

"Farming for December, the splendid agricultural journal published in Toronto, Canada, lies on our table. It is fresh as a daisy. Farming is published in magazine form; its table of contents is unexcelled by any agricultural journal on the continent, and its rare excellence in all its departments accounts for its rapid growth in public favor. It is the great Canadian farm journal, and the larger its circulation in the states the better, as all will concede who examine its finely illustrated and beautifully printed pages. Only $1.00 per year. Call at this office and look over sample copy."

"We have been favored with a copy of the December number of Farming, an illustrated monthly magazine, devoted to farming in all its branches, published on the first of each month, by the Bryant Press, Toronto, at the remarkable low rate of one dollar per annum, in advance. It is replete with articles of interest to farmers, arranged under the following heads: General, horses, cattle, sheep, swine, poultry, the farm, the dairy, Horticulture and the apiary. 'Farming' is by all odds the best farmer's periodical that has come under our notice. We would strongly advise farmers in this district to subscribe for and carefully study its contents, as by so doing they will find it helpful in many ways and that it will do much to raise the standard of farming in this district."
