Home Memories

THE ANNALS OF HOME
SWEET HOME

Designed by Rev. J. H. L. Joslyn.

THE idea of this volume of 'HOME MEMORIES' seems to me a unique and helpful one in these days when the ties of home are less strong than in the days of home stage-coach and the canal-boat. The thoughts and facts which cluster around the old homestead should be put down in black and white, the family record should be preserved as a sacred treasure, and the personal reminiscences of early and later life should be kept in such enduring and beautiful form that they can be turned to by future generations, and always recall the memories of the past.—F. E. CLARK, D.D.

Home Thoughts

By "C."

THE publication of this volume was suggested by many requests that selections from the Essays which (under the above title) have attracted such favorable attention in the Saturday supplement of the New York Evening Post, should be reprinted in a form which might give them permanence.

The sympathetic chord which they have struck has vibrated warmly because of the simple sincerity with which they have dealt with all the elemental conditions which make for happiness in a true home. The interdependent relations of husband and wife, parent and child, and the broad field of domestic government, give the chief themes.

They seem to have met a want, and to have achieved a success of affection among those who were anxious to raise the standard of family life to its highest plane. They are eminently the product of thinking and living. Experience, not theory, is their basis.
