CONTINUED GOOD RESULTS.

The January 1894 number of The Quarterly Journal of Inebriety published under the auspices of the American Association for the Study and Cure of Inebriates, Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., says through its able editor, T. D. Crothers, A.M., M.D.—“Antikamnia is one of the best remedies in influenza, and in many instances is very valuable as a mild narcotic in neuralgias from alcohol and opium excesses. We have used it with best results.” In a letter of more recent date to the Antikamnia Chemical Company, Dr. Crothers writes: “Antikamnia continues to improve in value and usefulness, and we are using it freely.” The Edinburgh Medical Journal—Scotland—says, regarding antikamnia: “In doses of three to ten grains, it appears to act as a speedy and effective antipyretic and analgesic.” The Medical Annual, London, Eng., says: “Our attention was first called to this analgesic by an American physician who we saw in consultation regarding one of his patients who suffered from locomotor ataxia. He told us that nothing had relieved the lightning pains so well as antikamnia, which at that time was practically unknown in England. We have since used it repeatedly for the purpose of removing pain, with most satisfactory results. The average dose is only five grains, which may be repeated without fear of unpleasant symptoms.”

The Living Age issues for January show that the spirit of its founder still lives; but they show more. Their contents are gleaned from a wider field, and there is an up-to-dateness in the articles which evidence renewed life and vigor. The recent enlargement of the magazine, the addition of new departments, the widening of its scope by the introduction of translations from prominent Continental authors on topics of present interest, and the presentation of American literature, are evidences of enterprise that will be appreciated by its readers, and furnish what was needed to make The Living Age a complete compendium of the world's best current literature.

Space will allow for the enumeration of a few only of the many papers presented in the January numbers. These include “Brunetiere's Impressions of America,” from the Revue des Deux Mondes; “The Unrest of the Nations,” from the Spectator; “Modern Education,” by Prof. J. P. Mahaffy; “Ramozan,” by Hugh Clifford; “Blackwoodiana,” by Herbert Maxwell; “The Dual and Triple Alliance and Great Britain,” by Francis de Pressense; “Henrich Heine: A Centenary Retrospect,” by Edward Dowden; “Women at Oxford and Cambridge,” from the Quarterly Review; “Some Reminiscences of Thomas Henry Huxley,” by St. George Mivart; “The Evolution of the Idea of God,” by Andrew Lang; “Black and White Rights in Africa,” by H. R. Fox Bourne; “The Farm and the City,” by Walter Besant; “Scandinavian Literature,” by David Anderson, and “The New Learning,” by Herbert Paul. Fiction includes an instalment in each number of the serial “With All Her Heart,” from the French of René Bazin; “Louey,” a touching story of self-sacrifice; “A Simple Story,” by Mme. Marguerite Poradowska, adapted for The Living Age, and several short stories. The Poetry is also worthy of mention, notably “Old Lovers,” by E. Nesbit, and “In the Twilight,” by E. S. S. W.
