Clark Medical Products has been manufacturing bathroom assistive device products in Canada since 1987. Design and manufacturing are done on premise and flexibility allows the firm to produce large or small production runs, and the ability to do custom design changes as required. Founded in Mississauga, Clark Medical has grown with the production of water powered bath lifts. Clark Medical Products has since that time added another lift called the Valette, which is a water powered toilet lift. The Valette was designed and developed in Canada, and has Canadian and United States patents, with others pending.

Clark Medical products are manufactured of the finest materials available, and particular attention is placed on quality and serviceability. As a result of the company's commitment to healthcare professionals, the staff are continually improving products seeking higher levels of excellence.

Clark Medical currently exports to the United States and Holland, and are presently negotiating with distributors in France. In Canada and the United States, marketing is done through independent home care dealers, and in other countries, the firm is marketing through larger warehouse distributors and international brokers.
