

hotel. I see now that they intend to do what I have been advocating for a long time, open a road in on the promenade in front of the hotel. That would enable cars to go in and unload at the side door and then park behind the hotel. With such an arrangement they would perhaps fill up that dining room during the summer months.

Let me refer to an old text that I have mentioned before, but which bears repeating. We talk about money as if it were the only criterion in life. Everybody talks about the large farm unit, because it has to be large to make money, forgetting altogether about the many great families of Canadians who were raised on family farms. Men have gone out from such farms in the West and elsewhere to fill the highest posts in banks and large companies in the country. I would long be sorry to see that type of home abolished. But people talk about money as if it were the only object in life.

The honourable the junior senator from Winnipeg (Hon. Mr. Wall) mentioned yesterday the need for large sums of money for education and to provide scholarships. Well, honourable senators, perhaps I am not the one to say it, but I don't believe you can buy education. When a man comes from a family which is determined that he receive an education, he will get it in spite of the scarcity of money. The family will get their own loans somewhere and will repay them when the son gets into his job in life. In other words, you can't buy an education; it is not money we need. I noticed in the press a similar statement by an Alberta man—whether an educationist or an ordinary layman I do not know—that money will not buy an education.

I have only to add my thanks to honourable senators for their kindly references to the election of my sons to the House of Commons and to say how sad I would have been if they had not run on the grand old Conservative ticket—for instance, if they had run as candidates of the C.C.F.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Roebuck, debate adjourned.
