

March 22nd, 1934.

Dear Miss Philp,

Professor Ramsay Traquair rang me up this morning and asked me if I would get from you and Dean Laird an unofficial appraisal of the value of Mr. Wren's course which has, he understands, just finished. I understand that he does not want any official letter but, just for his own information, was the course of value to the students, and so on, - in case Professor Traquair might try to get him some more work of this nature.

Yours sincerely,

Principal's Secretary.

Miss Bessie Philp,

Director,

School of Household Science.
