THE TROUBLESOME MULE

Toronto has a growing front (steadily advancing) with its convulsions of almost twenty miles. This strip is alive with building operations, and development, and in some places a mile wide. Part is in the city, part in the Township of York. The part that is in the township, according to the Telegram, is no part of the municipal problem of Toronto. The World believes it is its most vital part, when public health, thoracics, drainage and fire protection are concerned.

The present congested condition of the problem of municipal government is largely due to the lack of recognition of this fact. You cannot provide the necessary municipal improvements for such a territory by township government. It requires the most up-to-date treatment, not the least possible. The city council should have absolute control of its growing front; the territory within the present ring of development should all be under city control, and begin paying a reasonable share of city taxes at the earliest moment, not after the congestion and bad planning have arrived.

And the men and papers who know these things are the ones to give advice. Toronto has been misled by papers and public men who were actually ignorant of the facts and have never been on the ground. The World has known what it was talking about all the time: those who have been abusing its foresight and big-eyes have been doing so from the top flat of newspaper offices downtown, and by city officials (now getting rare) who were never on the ground. Wee York was the limit of their sight. Vision they never had.

Toronto has no other course open to her but to accept this situation and apply herself resolutely to the problem. There are scores of cities in North America that would give much to have the development that has come to Toronto. The Telegram regards it as a curse, and has only a suggestion, and that is to build a wall of severance and to deny intercommunication, to deny a common future. And associated with this ignorance and policy of exclusion, that paper has interjected a flood of malevolence toward papers and men who saw the real facts and suggested annexation at early stages, and quick inclusion of the suburban problems as part of a greater city plan.

One bad-tempered and kicking (villainous) mule can often spoil a willing string of team horses by never trying to go any other way than the wrong way!

THE PEOPLE V. VOX POPULI.

Says The Telegram: "In re the Bullies v. the Tommies—Vox Populi, C.J., reads the majority judgment in favor of the latter."
Vox Populi is the old guy that writes to The Telegram objecting to workmen sitting in street cars in their working clothes, and advising women to leave their children at home when they go to the play, and suggesting a new way to cook petit-de-fois-gras. The Telegram always puts his letters in the waste basket, but now finds his legal opinion the only support it has against the universal consensus of opinion that the city should own its own franchises. An appeal to the supreme court of The People is now pending, and there is no doubt of the result.

WILL HAVE BAY VIEW.

Some misgivings have been felt about the appearance of the new viaduct on the waterfront, and complaints are still heard about the possible obstruction to the view of the bay which is such an attraction or should be such an attraction at the front door of the city.

The plans of the waterfront development as issued by the harbor commission should allay any misgivings. It is quite true that the original plans would have meant a serious blockade on the city front. But when it is realized that a new territory south of the viaduct is to be opened up equal in extent to the territory north of it as far as Queen street, it will be clear that the new Lake street, and the new docks will afford ample perspective to diminish the apparent height of the viaduct, and to set off the bay view and the city rising on the slope northwards.

SIDE SADDLES AND VOTES.

The order prohibiting women riding astride in the grand parade at the Olympia Horse Show is said to have come from King George; another account says from Queen Mary. More likely, perhaps, the suffragette movement has been a contributing cause—not only do women want votes that men have, but many wish to ride horses as men ride them. His majesty will doubtless be glad to hear that an official of the Toronto Horse Show has expressed himself against women riding astride!

The only fair view is that this question must be settled by the women themselves, and we have noticed a distinct movement, not only in the United States and Canada, but in Great Britain also, toward women riding astride for reasons of convenience, of comfort, of safety. If this be so, no decree, royal or otherwise, can check the movement. It is the best way for young girls to learn to ride and it certainly is a convenient way for many grown-up women to ride, although there are individual cases where the side saddle would be the proper thing! But, as we said, it is altogether a matter of taste, and more than that, of safety.

As far as America is concerned, riding astride is becoming the natural and popular way, and especially for western women, who have a lot of horseback traveling to do.

Women who have tried both methods are nearly all in favor of a man's saddle, and the testimony of the horse world would be in favor of the change. When women get votes in England, there will be no prohibition of the side saddle even by royal decree.

MORE BANKING CAPITAL NEEDED

The announcement that two big English banks are to help finance the Canadian banks in moving the crops is gratifying. Help is needed, and we are to receive some help. Our own banks have not capital enough to handle the business of the country, and no steps were taken by parliament in revising the Bank Act to attract outside capital to our shores.

It was suggested by Mr. W. F. Maclean, M.P. for South York, that the big British banks should be encouraged by law or otherwise to open branches and do business in Canada. To bring this about, however, Finance Minister White was willing to adopt the plan of a national currency, advocated by Mr. Maclean. Nothing was done to increase our supply of currency, or to provide any currency whatever for outside banks which might desire to do business in Canada. We are now confronted with the situation that the Canadian banking system, under the present Bank Act, as amended, lacks capital to finance the business of the country. It may be a good thing to have the English banks help us over the crop moving period, but it would be a better thing if English banks were here investing their capital in Canada all the year round.

UNABLE TO LOCATE LINEMAN'S RELATIVES

Inquest on Frank Smith Adjourned For a Week.

Frank Smith, the Toronto Power Company lineman, who was electrocuted Thursday evening on Poplar Plains road, left little trace of his family connections. An inquest was opened yesterday afternoon, and it was announced that a telegram had been sent to 111 Christina street, Cleveland, where the relatives of the dead man are supposed to live. No answer has as yet been received.

Upon examination of the suit case which contained Smith's clothes, an odd-fellow's button was found attached to one of the garments.

The inquest was adjourned and will be reopened next Friday, July 4, at 3.30 in the evening.

KEEP SMILING

We may be as poor as a bakery pie, and robe us in second-hand raiment; the odd bits of scrap and tatters we buy may take all our pennies in payment; and yet we may fix up our poor little feast, and put on some water-billing with hearts which keep rising like panfuls of yeast if we have the wit of smiling. The man or the woman who knows how to smile when trouble looms on the horizon, and puts on a grin that is something worth while, is mostly a bully who makes 'un, for Trouble's a bully who makes us his sport, and often he ceases in wonder, he cuts the whole program of torment short on those who will not knuckle under. The people who wear smiles when we are asleep to tell us some dismal foreboding, who forty-odd hours in each twenty-four weep, and who all the time keep unloading their bosoms of fanciful troubles and woes, our tempers are constantly riling; but who when they are pummeled keep smiling. For smiles are the things which keep Trouble afar; when upon brave hearts they are welling, they have a face value away above par, enriching each fortunate dwelling wherever they are found; tho it may be the mark of arrows of Fortune outrageous, but not long about it will care stop to cark, for smiles are almighty contagious; so when the chill wind of adversity blows and bricks about us keep piling, let's stretch out the office under our nose and lose half our troubles by smiling.

Trial

Before Middleton, J.

McPherson v. Ferguson—M. J. O'Reilly, K.C., for plaintiff. Defendant in person. Action to recover possession of lands.

Judgment: At my suggestion, the plaintiff in this action, a daughter of defendant, agreed to accept less than the amount due her upon the mortgage, and in respect of the purchase money, and to allow the land to be redeemed. The plaintiff stated her readiness to accept $2000, although the amount due is some $300 more than this. The land has, so increased in value recently that it is now worth more than $5000. The defendant refused to listen to this suggestion, seeking to go back of the former judgment. From what took place at the trial, I am satisfied that defendant, by reason of brooding over her troubles and from other causes, is not in a position to properly protect her own interests, and I think that before judgment is given in this action, she must be represented by a guardian or committee. I accordingly direct that the matter stand over until the necessary application is made. The case seems to be one in which the statute 1 George V., cap. 20, may well be resorted to.

If upon a guardian being appointed, he thinks that the plaintiff's offer should be accepted, then application may be made for judgment upon that basis, or he should have liberty to tender further evidence if he desires. I would suggest that a settlement might be worked out by which the defendant would be allowed to remain in possession of the land during her life, and upon her death some benefit might be secured to the younger daughter, who is now living with her mother.

Dick v. Standard Underground Co.—J. L. Counsell (Hamilton) for plaintiff. D. L. McCarthy, K.C., and G. H. Levy (Hamilton), for Standard Underground Co. I. F. Hellmuth, K.C., for Steel Co., third parties. Action by contractor to recover sums alleged to be due under contract, and counter claim by defendants for amount paid in completing contract.

Judgment: There will be judgment for defendants for $15,701.14, without prejudice to the defendants' right to recover any further sum for which liens may be established against the land in question.

I think plaintiff's contract precludes any recovery for damages for the delay. Such damages, if they can be recovered, I assess at $1000. Defendants are entitled to costs of claim and counter claim.
