ADVICE TO GIRLS By .. Rosalind

DEAR ROSALIND:

I wish to seek your advice on something that has been worrying me for some time. I am a young girl 19, but look older. I am not pretty or bold, and I dress sensible. I have had six proposals, but I never loved any of the fellows until the last one. One fellow in particular (I have known for four years, is plining and won't keep company with anyone else. Please, Rosalind, tell me a way to make him forget. Thanking you in advance, LONE HILL.

DEAR LONE HILL: Make a friend of the boy. Be nice to him and help him in every way you can. See that he meets your friends; and among them he will surely find someone to care for.

In The Sunday World of Nov. 24, in your column of advice to girls, I noticed a letter from a soldier asking for girl correspondents, also your notation, that you would send this soldiers' address to anyone wishing to correspond.

address to anyone wishing to correspond.

I am a young girl, practically alone here, as my home is far away in Winnipeg, and altho I have met quite a number of people here, and am not really lonesome, I thought I would like to write to this "Lonely Soldier."

I have been a constant reader of your column for some time, in fact, almost ever since I came to Toronto, and have often found your advice very helpful, as I have often had little difficulties, and, being all alone, I have had to decide things for myself.

May I write to you sometime when in trouble, as I think it does one good to have someone to confide in.

DEAR GIRL: I had no time to slip a little note into your envelope when I sent on a soldier's name. I just fitted the cards into the envelopes as they came. But I am writing several answers this way. The response to my reugest was so splendid. I should have liked to write personal answers to every letter just to show my paper friends how I appreciate them, but you can see how impossible that would have been. I shall be glad to hear from you again, and hope I can be of real service when you need me.

DEAR ROSALIND:

I am a young girl of 18, and have been going with a young man of the same age for a year and a half. He has a habit which I do not like, and some of my friends think I should not go with him. But I have learned to love him, and I think he cares for me, and it would be hard for me to give him up.

me, and it would be hard for me to give him up.

He comes from a good family and has a good education.

I am considered nice-looking and attractive. While away from home in another city my girl friends go out with boys and always birng one for me. Is it ways birng one for me. Is it right for me to go with them, as my boy friend very seldom associates with other girls, but often leaves me to go with the boys.

I am alone a lot and have no one to ask advice, so kindly tell me what to do as I need com-

A LONELY GIRL. DEAR GIRL: At your age you should go out with girls and boys and have a good time with your friends.

DEAR ROSALIND: Here I am again, but this time I am not sad. I am very happy; so happy that I just have to tell so happy that I just have to tell you how well your advice worked.

I talked it all over with mother and Dad, and then I wrote a letter and gently but firmly refused to marry this other man. I don't think he cared much because he accepted the terrible blow as a matter of course; went and found matter of course; went and found another girl, and they are to be married in June. It sounds real funny—but just imagine what I was saved from.

I am engaged to my beloved one now, and so the world sings merrily, altho I will have to wait about five years for him. But what is that to the years after

DEAR V. G. B.: I am sending you a lonesome soldier's name. I enjoyed your letter, and I'm sure you'll be a good "godmother" to some poor boy. My dear, I do not want you to write to him for "sentimental reasons."

Your attitude is exactly what I want have a good time with your friends, you are much too young to feel so bound to one person that you cannot enjoy the society of others. We need all the friends we have, Lonely Girl; do not let your chums think that you can do without them because you like to be with this boy. Young people have the best times when they are alltogether in a joily crowd.
