Heaviest Bombardment Yet Recorded Began on Saturday and the Boers Were Repulsed at the Point of the Bayonet.

General Action is Believed to Be On-Buller's Forces Attack Colenso, But Boers Do Not Reply---Gen. French Loses Seventy Men Captured---Kuruman Surrendered on Jan. 2 and 120 Prisoners Taken---Attempt to Assassinate Lord Roberts...Lord Ava Wounded...Latest Bulletins From the Scene of the War.

According to War Office bulletin from Gen. cases, intended for the Transvaal. It is also commando which made the attack on Jan. Buller, dated Saturday, Gen. White heliographed at 11 a.m. that the attack was being continued, and the enemy had been reinforced from the south. At 12.45 p.m. Gen. White said: "Have beaten off the enemy at present, but

The sun has falled and I capnot get further information from Ladysmith until to-morrow. The Gordon Highlanders and the Manchesters actually repulsed them at the point of the bayonet. The Daily Chronicle's special says Saturday's bombardment of Ladysmith was the heaviest yet recorded. The Daily Telegraph's report says it is possible that the Ladysmith garrison is making a sortle, as the Boers at Colenso had hurriedly left their trenches and started for Ladysmith.

A despatch from Pretoria, dated Jan. 4
(via Lorenzo Marquez), gives Field Cornet Visser's account of the fall of Kuruman, British Bechuanaland, on Tuesday, Jan. 2. He bombarded Kuruman on Tuesday morning, Jan. 2, and, after fighting for six hours, the garrison surrendered and yielded up their arms. The Boers took 120 prisoners, including Capt. Bates, Capt. Dennison,
Mr. Hilliard, the magistrate, and cight other officers. They also captured 70 natives.

The Heaviest Yet.

A despatch to The Daily Chronicle from Frere Camp says: "Saturday's bombardment of Ladysmith was the heaviest yet recorded. All the heavy guns were working and the Boers seemed to be pouring in shell from every available lighter gun."

Probably a Sortie.

"At 5.30 our troops were still advancing and reached a point very near Colenso, The naval 4.7 and field guns were busily dropping shells into the enemy's trenches along the river, and the forts of the enemy had word a reach."

while the Boers have how changed their tactics and assumed the offensive, General Buller is apparently unable to move to assist Gen. White than in making a demonstration. As the heliograph ceased working yesterday (Sunday) it is presumed that Gen. White's last message was sent by a pigeon or runner.

Garrison Can Hold Out.

The Times publishes a despatch from Ladysmith, dated Jan. 1, recording two night movements on the part of the Boers to assault the town. These had to be abanaoned when the British defences were reached, but the correspondent says it was apparent that the great attack would not be delayed. "Loyally supported by the civilians, the garrison can hold out for a considerable period. We are not yet reduced to half rations. The greatest difficulty is proper accommodation for the wounded and sick."

Joubert Thought He Was Safe.

Heavy Fighting at Close Range.

The Daily Mall has the following dated Jan. 6, at noon, from Frere Camp: "At 3 o'clock this morning yery heavy firing began at Ladysmith. It lasted fully four hours and must have meant either a sortie by the British or a determined attack on the garrison by the Boers. Our shelfs scould be seen falling on Umbulwana Hill, was apparent that the great attack would not be delayed. "Loyally supported by the civilians, the garrison can hold out for a considerable period. Joubert Thought He Was Safe.

Little doubt remains as to the meaning of the Boer attack. A despatch from the Boer camp at Coleons, dated Thursday last, and sent by way of Lorenzo Marquez, mentions that a thunderstorm had turned the dry ravines into torrents and flooded the Tugela. Doubtless General Joubert felt sure he had secured a couple of days in which he could attack Ladysmith without interference from General Buller, gad who, even if he decided to attempt to relieve the town, would probably occupy three days in reaching it by even a victorious advance.

Another Division to be Sent.

The War Office has decided apon immediate steps for sending an eighth infantry division to South Africa. Some of the regiments for the division will be taken from Gibraitar and Malta. They will be replaced by militia.
