300,000 MEN IN SHIPYARDS

Force Grew From 25,000 in a Year—250,000 Others Built Machinery

Washington, June 12—Less than a year ago there were not 45,000 men employed in American shipyards. Today there are more than 300,000 skilled mechanics and laborers engaged in building ships, and an additional 250,000 employed in making the engines, boilers, winches and other machinery necessary to equip them.
This tremendous expansion by which the United States hopes to put into service a new merchant marine that will rival the trading fleet of any nation in the world has been brought about by the Shipping Board through recognition of the principle that untrained men can become skilled workmen only through competent instruction. One of the first tasks of the Shipping Board, therefore, was the creation of a division of education and training, which has supervised the establishment of training centres and the development of instructors among the foremen and superintendents.
Training of the various kinds of shipbuilders in the yards is accomplished by putting the men to work on production jobs, under the supervision of a yard instructor. This yard instructor has full charge of gangs while they are learning.
The men get a six weeks' course of training, eight hours a day. During the last part of this course they were obliged to spend forty hours in the actual handling of gangs of green men. Yard instructors are drawn from a variety of trades, such as riveters, ship fitters, ship carpenters, caulkers, etc.
The first four of the Japanese ships chartered by the United States have reached Pacific ports.
