Mrs. Carney claims $20,000 for herself and children as recompense for the loss of the husband and father's protection, as well as for the pecuniary benefits which they expected to receive from the continuation of his life. The ground of action is that the bridge was not properly constructed, and that it was owing to the negligence of the defendant company that the bridge was carried upon the bridge and killed. The defendants' plea is that the bridge was safely and efficiently constructed, but that very shortly before the accident it was damaged by the heavy storm which consigned the engine and which damaged the defendants were entirely ignorant. The late Very Rev. Father Egan—Anniversary Service in St. Patrick's. The Church of St. Patrick's, Nelson, was on Tuesday last week, crowded by an assembly of devout worshippers, who came as well to pay a tribute of respect to the memory of their late beloved parish priest as to unite in offering the holy sacrifice of the Mass and fervent prayer for the eternal repose of his soul. The respect in which Father Egan was held by all classes of the community needed no proofs to those who enjoyed the pleasure of his acquaintance. His unassuming manner, earnestness, amiability and sound practical common sense, his faith, hope, and his charity, all combined to make him the beloved of the people and admirably fitted to discharge the duties of his important office. The solemn services began at half-past ten o'clock. Mass was celebrated by the Most Rev. James Rogers, Bishop of Chatham, assisted by the Rev. J. Pelletier, presiding at the organ. The sermon, preached by the Rev. Mr. F. R. Joyce, was a very eloquent and effective sermon. The solemn chant of the Libera was then rendered by an effective choir. Mr. J. Hayes presiding at the organ. The services were concluded by His Lordship, who addressed the congregation in most touching and paternal words, dwelling on the life and labors of the venerable ecclesiastic.

Rev. T. J. Bannon, S. Cramley, M. O'Brien and N. Power, grand nephew of the deceased, also took part in the ceremonies.

The late Very Rev. Father Egan—Anniversary Service in St. Patrick's. The Church of St. Patrick's, Nelson, was on Tuesday last week, crowded by an assembly of devout worshippers, who came as well to pay a tribute of respect to the memory of their late beloved parish priest as to unite in offering the holy sacrifice of the Mass and fervent prayer for the eternal repose of his soul. The respect in which Father Egan was held by all classes of the community needed no proofs to those who enjoyed the pleasure of his acquaintance. His unassuming manner, earnestness, amiability and sound practical common sense, his faith, hope, and his charity, all combined to make him the beloved of the people and admirably fitted to discharge the duties of his important office. The solemn services began at half-past ten o'clock. Mass was celebrated by the Most Rev. James Rogers, Bishop of Chatham, assisted by the Rev. J. Pelletier, presiding at the organ. The sermon, preached by the Rev. Mr. F. R. Joyce, was a very eloquent and effective sermon. The solemn chant of the Libera was then rendered by an effective choir. Mr. J. Hayes presiding at the organ. The services were concluded by His Lordship, who addressed the congregation in most touching and paternal words, dwelling on the life and labors of the venerable ecclesiastic.

Rev. T. J. Bannon, S. Cramley, M. O'Brien and N. Power, grand nephew of the deceased, also took part in the ceremonies.

A ready-looking man, wearing a red necktie and carrying a satchel went into Mr. F. Booth's jewelry store on Saturday and tried to steal a watch that was hanging among several others in the window.
