A noticeable feature is the "good-bye" to the iron-tired goods. Rubber tires are to be found on every Carriage and Go-cart, which will be quite a consideration to those who in the past thought they could not another the better and higher-priced wheels. Commencing with the best, the Carriages, etc., of 1904, have "automobile" wheels, "artillery" wheels, and strong, stout rubber-tired wheels, all of them cushioned; that is, cushioned-tired, like the bicycle used to be. The under gear is of steel and other strong metals, and the enamelling is done in Maroon, Green and Oak; three of the best colors for that kind of goods. A great variety of tops in the usual styles—with pattern changes of course—are there to select from, and the upholstering is rich and pretty, according to price.
