"You see," explained a young man as he showed a pretty girl the wishbone of a chicken at a picnic luncheon, "you hold here and I'll hold here. Then we must make a wish and pull, and when it breaks, the one who has the bigger part of it will have his or her wish gratified." "But I don't know what to wish for," she protested. "Oh, you can think of something!" he said. "No, I can't," she replied. "I can't think of anything I want very much." "Well, I'll wish for you!" he exclaimed. "Will you really?" she asked. "Yes," "Well, then, there's no use troubling about the old bone," she interrupted, with a full smile. "You can have me."

DRUGGISTS ARE INDIGNANT

Say that the Claims of Physicians That They are Usurping Their Functions are Incorrect.

The statement made in the Sun this morning by a physician that the druggists are usurping the functions of qualified practitioners and prescribing for cases of serious illness, is denied by the body of the druggists. It was also stated in the Sun that a certain druggist prescribed for a child with a bad type of diphtheria and the child died. No definite information of this case could be ascertained from the authorities and some of the druggists questioned if it occurred.

A prominent druggist in speaking about the statement that druggists are taking the work out of the physicians' hands by prescribing freely, doubted if specific instances of prescribing could be pointed out. He said that people are daily taking druggists for medicines for colds and other little everyday ailments, but this could not be termed prescribing. If the druggists sold medicines under such conditions they were simply carrying on their line of business in a perfectly legitimate way, just as people in other lines of business would do. It would be absurd to expect the people, he said, to seek the advice of a practitioner every time they desired to purchase medicine. He believed, that the doctors were attempting to do something like this, and were trying to use the druggists as a leverage, by means of which they could drive the streets of business through their channels and reap an increased income.

T. J. Durick, of the North End, said that he had never heard of druggists diagnosing cases of serious illness and prescribing. He hardly believed that such could be the case.

William Hawker said that druggists were in the habit of giving remedies for common ailments, such as colds and biliousness, but this was not prescribing. It was merely meeting the wants of a customer in the ordinary way of business. Druggists could hardly be expected to refuse persons medicines such complaints. There were limits within which druggists were perfectly within their rights in suggesting remedies for ailments, such as colds and coughs, but beyond these limits they should not go.

A well known physician stated this morning that he did not believe there was anything in the statement that druggists were usurping the province of medical practitioners.

C. OF E. INSTITUTE.

Annual Meeting to be Held This Evening

—A Number of Interesting Reports

The annual meeting of the Church of England Institute will be held this evening at 8 o'clock at their rooms on Germain street. Reports will be received from the institute proper and the ladies' association. The past year has been an exceptionally successful one in all departments. The anniversary service was held Nov. 11, in Trinity church, when the Rev. R. J. deWolfe Cowie delivered a very able sermon. The annual conversation and sale of papers and magazines was held in December, and was a complete success. Two lectures of the lecture course have been delivered by Principal Hannan, of King's College, and the late Rev. J. de Soyres was to have delivered the third lecture. It has not yet been decided who will take the subject. During the past year they have made considerable addition to the library, largely due to the effort of the Ladies' Association. A number of new magazines and papers have been placed in the reading room and the room has been made more attractive. A large increase in membership is looked for during the next year.

ENGLISH CAMPBELL.

In Defence of Work of Salvation Army at Mill Street.

ST. JOHN, Feb. 8, 1905.

To the Editor of Star.—Sir,—In justice to the public and the many good people that attend Mill street Salvation Army, I feel it my duty to try and counteract some of the wrong impressions that were made up on the minds of the people through the papers yesterday. Our meetings on Mill street are attended by large crowds, among these some of the most respectable and as good people as can be found in St. John. They would not come to our meetings were not good and they are doing our best to keep order, and it is this that has brought the Mill street Army so prominently before the public. At the same time I would like it to be known that we are doing our best to get this class of people converted and made into good Christian citizens. Perhaps the Mill street Salvation Army is doing more along this line than any other place in the city. Our statistical books show that 24 people professed conversion for the past year, and many today can testify to the good received in our meetings. Before they think of shutting the doors of the Mill street barracks they had better think of shutting the doors of the places that are leading people, body and soul, to destruction.

Yours for the good of all,

ENGLISH COLIN CAMPBELL.

PERSONALS.

George Black, formerly of Fredericton, has been nominated by a convention at Caribou (Yukon), as the Conservative for the Yukon territorial council.

ARE YOU GUESSING?

It is pretty hard to figure out the probable winner in the hockey game tomorrow evening, and it comes near to guessing, in fact, as the teams are very evenly matched and both determined to put up a big fight. It will be remembered that the Neptunes won the other game by the close score of 2-1. Both the Neptunes and the Mohawks claim they are putting a stronger line-up on the ice tomorrow evening than they had in the previous game, and there is no doubt that each team will do their very best to win as there is much rivalry between the members of the two teams. The intermediate Neptunes and Ramblers are also scheduled for a game tomorrow evening.
