Sharing with people of a different culture

The essential challenge is the sharing between peoples different from one another. Anglophones from Manitoba and Ontario, francophones from Quebec and New Brunswick, Sri Lankans or Bolivians or Malians form groups of 14 persons who live and work together for six months. The values, attitudes, pace of life, perception of time, male/female roles, conceptions of development, etc. generally surprise the Canadian and foreign confrontations, it is exciting to learn and discover these differences and to accept them.

Speaking Spanish or Wolof

To gain the most from their experience, participants must make the effort to communicate with colleagues in their language. An anglophone learns French, a francophone English and all Canadians learn a third language, that of the exchange country. - Spanish in Ecuador, Wolof in Senegal, Bahasa Indonesia in Indonesia.

The participant's responsibilities

This unique experience offered to young people requires discipline and maturity. The privilege of participating demands total involvement. The norms and rules as set must be respected and participants must prove both before and during the program that CWY was justified in investing in the persons selected. A token financial contribution and/or contractual commitment is one of the conditions of participation.

Role of the field staff

The groups of participants work along with a competent staff who already have experience in the sectors of animation, community development, intercultural relations and non formal education. To obtain further information on the coordinator or group leader positions, contact the regional office in your province.
