The five monographs of this series were designed to cover the historical geography of New Brunswick, and in plan at least they do so. The organization given the respective subjects by their publication has had the result not only of directing my own studies further, but also of bringing much additional information from correspondents. Thus a large amount of new material and some corrections have come into my hands, and it is the object of this work to present them, and in such a way that all items may be referred to their proper places in the respective monographs. A title-page, preface and table of contents to the entire series is added at the end of this paper.
