

AUTUMN.

BUT who is this envoy of woes,
That wakes with Aurora's first
ray,
His song of complaint to disclose
From the vine or the jessamine spray?
He sings desolations to come;
Stern Winter predicts from aloof;
My shed, social bird be thy home,
Securely perch under my roof.

Dost grieve that the summer is past?
The trees' their green ornaments shed?
That omens of Winter in haste
Impending press over thy head?
Prolong tuneful red-breat, thy strains,
Contagions shall usher thy moan;
My sympathies share in thy pains,
Thy sorrows, poor bird, be my own!
