NOW that school has started the readers of the Club page will have more work to do. I hope that they will not forget to write us real good stories and letters for the page. The contest has closed and the winners of the prizes will soon be announced. I would like some of the boys and girls to tell me what contest they would like us to have next. The Indian Graves

I like the Doo Dads so well. I live on a farm two-and-a-half miles from school. I'm going to tell you about Indian graves. One day we went on a trip up to Gleichen. On the way home we saw a lot of bunches of wood, which looked like fallen down houses, but at last my uncle, who was with us, said, "maybe they are Indian graves." So Papa drove the car up to one of them and we all got out, and we saw boxes with three sides to them, and in the boxes were Indian corpses, wrapped up in old blankets, old clothes, and combs, beads, and many other belongings of the dead Indians were in the boxes.—Walter E. McIntyre, Lawndale, Alta.

A Lone Scout

I hope all the boys and girls are doing their bit to help win the war. I am a member of the Boys' and Girls' Club here. These are the contests I am engaged in: Calf raising, pig raising and chicken raising. I also have potatoes and am collecting weed seeds. I think any boy or girl can make good money by raising a calf or a pig. I think all boys should take up weed or weed-seed collecting, for by doing so, they would learn to recognize the different weeds. I am a member of the Lone Scouts of America, which now has nearly 300,000 members all over the world. If any of you boys would like to know more about the L.S.A. write me. I'll answer.—Walter Anderson, 16 years, Piney, Man.

A Wise Horse

I read the stories on the children's page with much interest and I like the little Doo Dads. I think they are very mischievous little fellows. I live on a farm and we have 45 horses. I am going to tell you a story about one of our horses, called Mag.

It was after tea, when we saw the horses by a granary. It was one night in the spring. It was now getting very late. Alex, my brother, was just taking off his boots before going to bed, when the thought struck him that he would go and look to see if the horses were alright. So he took a lantern and looked around. When he looked he saw a horse standing alone. So he went up to it and the horse walked to an old stack, about 200 yards away from the granary. The horse put his head down to the ground and Alex looked, and there he saw one of our best mares, called Jess, down on her back, and she would soon have been dead.

Then Alex rushed back home and told Papa, and Papa and he went out and took ropes, a shovel, forks, and a halter to help get her out. After a while they got her out. Jess and Mag were always great friends and Mag saved Jess' life.

I wish to join the club and get a membership pin. I am sending ten cents for the Blue Cross Fund.

Wishing the club success, Bertha R. Patterson, Kelso, Sask.

Sends Poetry

I am sending in a piece of poetry that my sister Olive and I made up one night when we were out helping our father to stook some wheat. It looked like rain and he wanted to get it done before the rain came.—Erla A. Speer, Age 11, Springfield, Man.

The Brave Stookers

Oh, we are the farmerettes, 'rave and strong,
We put up the stooks, but we do them wrong,
Soon we will learn to do them right,
And then our hearts will be glad and bright.
Yes, we are the helpers to stook the grain,
And get it up before there's rain;
We'll help the farmer to stook the grain,
And he will be free from all worry and pain.
We start in the morning and work till night,
The flies and mosquitoes we have to fight.
The crows and blackbirds bother us,
But we'll stook the grain, and then all we can do.

Fun to be a Doo Dad

We are subscribers to The Grain Growers' Guide. I watch the Doo Dads every week and enjoy them so much. I would like to be one of them. Wouldn't it be glorious fun to be a Doo Dad or a Doo Doll? But I should like to see the Doo Dads go on a camping trip where they can row, hunt, swim, catch fish and have lots of fun.

Wishing the club every success—Eddie Matson, Broadacres, Sask.

Playing Baseball

I am going to tell you about our baseball game. I like to play baseball very much. We play at school every day except when it's raining. We are going to play Imperial-September 27. I go to school every day. I live in town, but we used to live on a farm. We get The Guide once a week. I like it very much.—Elsford Lang, Simpson, Sask.
