THE SENSE OF SIGHT

Now an Infant Slowly Learns to Exercise It.

At First the Newborn Babe Has the Power Only to Distinguish Between Light and Darkness—The Development of the Power of Vision.

The sense most early exercised by the newborn infant is the sense of sight, but at first it has the power only to distinguish light from darkness and is in comparison with its later development blind, while in many of the lower creatures the senses are at birth fully developed.

What a difference there is between the dull eye of the newborn infant and the sharp vision of the young chick, which is able to pick up with precision a grain of corn or even snap up a fly while the eggshell may be still sticking to its back! The eye of the infant, however, is developed very gradually, and during infancy and childhood it learns how to see. In the first few days it notices the difference between light and darkness when the light is very intense, and it may even knit its brow in sleep if a bright light be brought close to its face.

On the same principle a striking bright color will also be noticed when held close to the face. In all these cases, however, the infant follows the object by turning its head and not by the movement of the eyes.

The eyelids open and shut from birth, but they are not always moved at the same time with the movements of the eyeballs until the infant has reached the second or third month. Under two or three months of age infants do not wink when the hand or an object is waved before the face, because they do not see the hand distinctly.

One of the remarkable points of interest in the development of the infant's power of vision is the way in which it learns to appreciate the objects seen. It has to learn to discover the distance of objects, their shape, size, character, etc., and this it does with the assistance of the sense of touch.

The face of the mother or nurse is made familiar in that it is brought so close to the infant's face.

After the infant has learned to see objects distinctly at the distance of several feet it begins to use both eyes in common. At first the eyes act independently of each other, so that it undoubtedly has double vision and sees everything double. This double vision can be produced by many at will by looking "cross eyes."

The infant having reached the point when it sees an object clearly, it must also begin to understand objects of three dimensions—that is, to find out the difference between a flat surface and a solid body. Here the sense of touch also assists. The infant grasps an object and, putting it to its lips and face, satisfies itself as to the shape, character, etc.

It is interesting in this connection to note some cases in which a person born blind recovers sight when grown. In one case a young man who had lost his sight in early infancy was so completely blinded that he could not distinguish even the strongest light from darkness.

After an operation on one eye had been successfully performed he began to see objects without understanding them—not being able to judge their distances from his eye and he felt as if everything was touching his eye, so that to touch an object he at first would put one finger or the hand up before his face, pointing at the object aimed at, and reach forward until his finger came in contact with the object.

After he had recovered the use of both eyes he began to find out that everything was not flat, but that many things had a certain thickness as well as length and breadth, and in this way he began to see solid objects. But even for a year or two after complete recovery he was unable to decide whether a certain figure was a flat surface, as in a painting, or a solid body. He was also obliged to learn the difference between a cat and a dog until he had touched them.

We all go through just the same process of learning how to see in infancy. The child may be two or three years, or even older, before it has control over its eyes and can judge of the distance of objects in the room, etc.

The care of the eye is a question of great importance for mothers and nurses. The eyes of newborn infants should be carefully washed with fresh, clear water, and if anything unusual is noticed the physician should be seen. The infant's eyes are specially to be protected against too bright a light. It is by no means an uncommon thing to see a nurse wheeling a young infant in the carriage while the bright sun is pouring into the child's eyes. This does not argue against taking infants into the sun when the weather is not too warm, but the eyes should always be protected against the bright glare, whether direct or reflected.

THE DISTINGUISHING AND HANDSOME LONG COAT OF THE SEASON.

Military Modes, including Gold Buttons at the Front—The Sleeves as You Like It, Bell or Coat-Attraction Costume Fabrics.

The long coat has established itself. It is distinctly mannish and admits of that little touch of the "swagger" that so well suits the costume of the up to date young woman, and the lively twentieth century recognizes no "elderly" dame. Youth and fashion have become perennial.

Coats for the coming season are thus particularly fascinating, one of the smartest among them being shown in the accompanying sketch. This is generally carried out in a checked tweed of soft gray or fawn tone, lined with a contrasting plaid silk, the fullness at the back confined by a military belt, and when desired it can be fastened over, and has the appearance of a double breasted coat. The high military collar fastens also with gold buttons matching the rest. The sleeves are wide and ample, easily slipping over any bodice or blouse. This coat is made in different shades of covert coating as well as in the checked tweed.

The coat in the second sketch is an admirable wrap, which may be made in three different lengths from three-quarter to full length. One made in a good iron gray covert coating is particularly taking, the sleeves of the bell shape, though often the small coat sleeve is put in; both sleeves and yoke are lined with silk, the slit pockets being very convenient. This garment, less elaborately built than the military coat, is not so expensive as the former and yet sufficiently smart for any one.

In new materials for autumn costumes gray is thus far a favorite shade. The materials are thick and woolly, but light in weight, with quite the zibeline hairy surface. Plain colors flecked with white or black are extremely attractive, a black cloth having white flecks nearly an inch in length.

There are some delightful new heather mixtures as well as striped materials. In all garments of the coat order great attention is given to showing off the lines of the figure advantageously, and perfection of finish is absolutely demanded.

Benefit of Gas.

One important feature in the healthfulness of gaslight is that the air, which is by no means an inconsiderable amount, passing through every gas burner is sterilized by the heat, and any disease germs existing in it are thereby destroyed. Thousands of Women Are Kept in Suffering and Many Die Owing to False Treatment

Paines' Celery Compound

Never Fails to Banish Disease And Re-Establish Lasting Health

Thousands of women are kept in sickness for months and years owing to false treatment and the use of worthless medicines, and we are inclined to believe that Milton thought of this class of almost dying women when he said:

"The angelic guards ascended, mute and sad."

The common sense treatment of today for weak, run-down and suffering women, is Paines' Celery Compound. This marvelous medicine is spoken of in every part of the civilized world, and men and women of all classes find a new life from its use. A glorious example of the curing powers of the great compound comes from Winnipeg, Man.; Mrs. H. Harbott writes as follows:

"A month ago I was very sick and happened to see one of your publications, in which I read of others being cured. I concluded to try Paines' Celery Compound myself, and I now thank God for the wonders it accomplished for me. I was suffering from heart disease, kidney trouble and general weakness, and some days was not able to stand without experiencing great pain. Since I used the compound I am able to get about the house and work, and can now eat anything put before me."
