AROOSTOOKAN LIKES NEW BRUNSWICK

C. C. Harvey, editor of Fort Fairfield Review, always has a good word for New Brunswick. The following items from his most recent issue are pleasing and complimentary.

New Brunswick for scenery! It is surely hard to beat our sister Province in that regard. The editor and party recently had a ride around the "North Shore," as they call the northern edge of New Brunswick, along the Bay of Chaleur, thence to Campbellton and up the Metapedia Valley. Whether it is the St. John, the Nashwaak, the Miramichi or the Metapedia, the scenery is more than beautiful every step of the way. Coming, as this trip did, right in the height of the fall colors on the trees, the woods and hills, mountains and valleys were beautiful beyond description.

In Lakeville the other day we could not help admiring the extremely beautiful flowers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carvell, who, by the way, is a sister to Mrs. Sarah McCrea, of Mars Hill, formerly of Fort Fairfield. Mrs. Carvell's success with flowers is surely noticeable.

Miss Gertrude Carr, the popular bookkeeper at Peterson's garage, leaves about November 1 for Florida, accompanying Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Orser. They will remain during the winter. Miss Carr's place at Peterson's will be taken by Miss Daisy Johnston, who will take up her duties there October 8.

William Amies, a popular old citizen of Fort Fairfield, was one of the people we ran across the other day in Lakeville, his present home, where he owns the Lakeside Hotel. Mill, which seems to be a very flourishing and finely operated concern. Mr. Amies informs us that he and Mrs. Amies recently received a letter from Miss Irma Reynolds, in Shanghai, China, China, a teacher there, who was for several years a popular assisttant in the Fort Fairfield High school. Miss Reynolds informed them that she is coming home next year by way of the Suez Canal, intending to fly from Paris to England, where she will call upon Mr. Amies' son in London. Young Mr. Amies is superintendent of one of the great power companies in that city.

Some 12 members of the Fort Fairfield Praying Band went down to Royalton Sunday, holding there three meetings, with good crowds and attention. Three made a start toward the religious life.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dickinson and two sons, of Hartland, returned home Thursday after a short visit here with Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Boyd.

'A FOOL THERE WAS—'

(After Kipling)
A Fool there was and he made his prayer
(Even as you and I)
To a business housed in a building fair;
He laughed at his profits and knew no care
Nor heeded the Fire-fiend lurking there.
(Even as you and I)
Oh, the wealth we waste and the lives we waste,
And the value of buildings and land
Destroyed by the men who do not care
The men who cannot be made to care
So long as their profits stand.

A Fool there was and his wealth he spent,
(Even as you and I)
On buildings placed with the best intent,
In the very spot where the Fire-fiend went
But a fool must follow the precedent.
(Even as you and I)

Oh, the toll we lose, and the spoil we lose!
And the excellent future planned
All sacrificed by the careless wight
Who boasts to the world that his way is right
Until he suffers the Fire-fiend's spite
And learns to change his stand.

The Fool was stripped to his foolish hide,
And grieving sat by the ruin's side
But it isn't so, record the Fire-fiend cried
So the fool lives on though his business died.
(Even as you and I)

And it isn't the shame and it isn't the blame
That gives to the fool his brand.

It's coming to know that simple care
Would have banished the Fire-fiend to his lair
And forever have stayed his hand.

A CONTRADICTION

Editor Observer:

I wish to contradict the statement of James A. Bell published in your issue of Sept. 20, in which he states that I left his bed and board without any just cause or reason.

In the first place he did not provide any bed or board for me to leave.

In the second place I did not leave him but he left me. He brought me to my parents home and left me there after asking them to care for me during my sickness. After leaving me there he went to work for Flemming & Gibson, Ltd., near where I was staying and after holding the job for a short time he left the place without telling either his employers or myself that he was going. Since then he has furnished no support towards myself or his three children, nor has he provided any home for me to go to or asked me to go to any place that he has provided. I have never asked anyone to let me have anything whatever on his account and therefore can see no reason why he should give any such notice as appeared in the issue referred to. I do think, however, that if he has the least bit of manhood about him he will make some provision for the support of his children. I am thankful to say that I am able to earn my own living and am not asking him for anything for myself.

PRINTING

While it is true that the stamp on your letter is a guarantee of delivery, it tells to the letter itself to deliver mine its final destination—the filing cabinet or the waste basket.

In many cases your written correspondence is your only point of personal contact with your client or your customer, and it is through poor appearance or address it fails to convey the importance of your message, it naturally is received with but scant attention. It is on the other hand, your letter has a "crackling" of quality—a clean, dignified appearance—it will command the same respect which would be accorded to you on a personal visit.

To ensure quality which you know will be faultless and therefore above comparison, specify Colonial Bond. Printers everywhere in Canada have it—better still, let us send a sample sheet.

Colonial Bond, all-rag, tab-sized and tinted. Made by The Roland Paper Company Limited, who have been making high grade papers for over 40 years.

"I Was Terribly Weak After Baby Was Born"

Mrs. H. McClure, Norwood, Ont., writes:

"After my baby was born, I was terribly weak and run down, with pains across my back. I had heard so much of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food that I decided to try it. Three boxes proved enough to make me quite strong and well again. I also used Dr. Chase's Ointment for a rash which broke out on the baby, and the rash disappeared completely in a short time."
