Orchard Work.

There is plenty of orchard work in the winter if one has many trees. There are the borers to hunt for, and if they are found and killed it will be time well spent. If home is found the owner may consider himself so very fortunate that he need not regret the loss of the time. There are the bunches of eggs of the tent caterpillar in a little silvery looking ring around the small twigs near the ends of the branches. They show very plainly when the sun is shining on them, and if they are cut off and burned now there will be fewer foes to fight next spring. Then there are dead limbs, leaves, weeds and piles of rubbish which may be harrowing insects or their eggs or the germs of fungous disease which should be collected together and burned as soon as they are dry enough, and last, but not least, before the leaf buds open spray every tree and every branch of the tree so as to wet it well with the strong copper sulphate solution, using one pound of the sulphate to 10 gallons of water for all but the peach, for which use one pound to 25 gallons. Do not fail to do this if you would be free from blight, scab or cracked fruit or from anthracnose or rust on the blackberry and raspberry or the grapevines. This is, however, proper work for early spring.

The American Cultivator, in which the foregoing occurs, also says: We fully agree with the theory that the best time to trim fruit trees is in May or early June, as the bark will immediately begin to grow over the wound, so as to cover the space between bark and hard wood if it does not entirely cover the wound. We do not know so well about the shade trees, excepting that we would not trim a maple in the spring or any coniferous evergreen at any time excepting early winter.

We have, however, cut limbs from apple trees in both fall and winter, leaving a stump about a foot long to be taken off in May. We always cut large limbs to leave such a stump, and the second cut we can handle that so that it will not split back beyond the cut, as it sometimes does when a heavy limb is sawed off. By making this first amputation at a leisure time we had much less to do in May, when we wanted to be planting or sowing seed, and if the branches cut in winter were taken away it was little work to carry off pieces a foot long. If limbs to be taken off were not larger than a man's thumb, we cut them at any time, though it might be better to do it in May.

Care of Finger Nails.

A disagreeable trick, and one that children easily fall into, is biting of nails. If not promptly checked, it will continue into adult life and ruin the shape of nails and finger tips. Extreme nervousness or excitement generally causes the child to bite the nails in the first place, and if not checked it quickly becomes a habit. Help the child to overcome the nervousness, and, if the fingers still find their way to the mouth, they must be dipped into a solution of something bitter, until the little culprit has learned better manners. As early as possible teach the child to trim and keep the nails in order and endeavor to make him take a pride in them, which will greatly remove the temptation to bite them.

Planning Meals.

The average housekeeper finds that her memory is shortest when it comes to the daily planning of meals. Her frequent cry that she cannot think of anything to order never seems to be suggestive to her of its own remedy. She has ordered and does order every day the round of family living, and if, when the process is over, she would arrange a little book kept for the purpose the chief dishes that have appeared on the table during the twenty-four hours, she will find that she quickly accumulates a valuable memorabilia. Instead of cataloguing these dishes under Sunday, Monday and Tuesday it is simpler to classify them breakfast, luncheon, dinner, substantial and desserts. —New York Evening Post.

Modish Matrimony.

All the expenses of a wedding are assumed by the bride's family—cards, carriage, formal decorations—everything. The bridegroom's first privilege is to pay the clergyman's fee.

It is the bride's prerogative to name the wedding day. The fashionable hour for the ceremony is "high noon."

Church, clergyman, and all the details are left to the choice of the bride.

It is the present fashion to have four, six or eight bridesmaids, as many ushers, a maid of honor, a best man, and sometimes one or two little girls. The bride decides what the gowns of the bridesmaids shall be.

The bride always wears the bridegroom's gift.

The bride wears her veil over her face so arranged that, immediately after the ceremony, the maid of honor may part it, disposing of it becomingly.

Fashion now dictates white suede gloves. The left one is removed when the ring is given.

Presents are sent at any time after it is known the date has been fixed for the wedding, but the receipt of the invitations is the general signal for their offering.

It is a recent fashion to invite those who have sent presents to come and see them on some day shortly before the wedding, if they are not to be displayed at the reception.

A widow's bride wears pearl gray, or some light silk, or a traveling costume with light silk. She removes her former wedding ring. She may no more wear both rings than she may bear both names.—Mrs. Burton Kingsland in the February Ladies' Home Journal.

More Trouble in Kentucky.

FRANKFORT, Ky., March 11.—The Democrats and all the Republicans in Kentucky are to-day, for the first time since the present political complications assumed acute form divided into two armed and organized factions. Surrounding the capitol and the state executive building and camped in the grounds around Governor Taylor's home, are nearly two hundred militia, well provided with ammunition, who in the corridors of the capitol hotel, in which the Democratic state executive officers are located and in the streets adjacent to the building are sixty officers and the men and boys of a militia company that was organized in Frankfort to-day as the nucleus of Governor Beckham's state guard, beside scores of heavily armed citizens, partisans of the Democratic claimant. Rumor reached the Democratic leaders today that an attempt was to be made by the state militia to take Governor Beckham into custody and inside of an hour after the report was circulated a petition had been circulated and signed by the requisite number of men necessary to form a militia company. The men will guard the capitol hotel all night against any possible attempt to arrest Governor Beckham. Only two days were required for the militia to remain in session, but the developments of these two days are looked forward to with apprehension by leaders of both sides.

The Democratic partisans say that should the militia attempt to interfere with the session of the legislature, persistent rumors of which have been in circulation all day, it will be next to impossible to avoid bloodshed. The Republicans, however, deny that such a course has been contemplated and say that the legislature will not be molested in any way. That the report is believed in Democratic circles, however, is shown by the fact that the advisability of holding the session in some other place than the state house has been under advisement and even at a late hour to-night, the question had not been fully settled. Several Republican members of the legislature left the city to-day, presumably for their homes.

Getting even with Him.

"Money, money, money all the time," he growled when she said she needed a new bonnet. "Do you know how much it cost to keep you in the country this summer?"

"No," she replied, "I don't know, but I know it didn't cost so much as it did to keep you in the city."

It is as impossible to raise pears in the extreme north where this fruit was formerly as tender as the peach. The hardy variety is an importation from Russia, and, although it is not so large nor quite so good in quality as the common pear yet it can be grown at the extreme north.

Growing a carrot top in a glass vase has been successfully tried. The glass must be large enough, and a bit of charcoal at the bottom to keep the water sweet. A small, whole carrot is best, and the feathery fronds are very pretty, and often taken for something rare.

"The idea of saying nothing but good of the dead," said the Cornfed Philosopher, "strikes me as a good thing, as far as it goes, but why not extend it to those that are going to be dead?"

Object Lesson.

"Young man," asked the proprietor of the store, who was making the rounds of the various departments, "how can you afford to dress so elaborately and expensively on the salary we pay you?"

"I can't," glumly answered the salesman. "I ought to have more salary."

Among the Germans is a popular dish of apples and almonds. A quantity of apple sauce is liberally besprinkled with almonds cut into strips, the whole dusted with cinnamon. It is eaten with a boiled custard.

Golden Eggs.

Boil three or four eggs ten minutes, put into cold water for a minute or two, remove the shells, and then roll each one in a little flour to dry the surface and to make it a little less smooth. Brush each with a raw egg beaten up, and then coat well with breadcrumbs or crushed vermicelli, place in a frying basket and fry in a bath of fat until golden brown. Serve on paper decorated with parsley or else serve with rich white sauce.

As an all-round family remedy, one that always should be in the house for an emergency, Dr. Petty's Pills discount anything in the market. They are so small a child can take them with ease; yet one's a dose,

The Modern Mother.

"I always smile to myself," said a sweet old lady the other day, "when I hear old-fashioned mothers scold the ways of the modern mother. I just wish I had known as much when the stork brought my first little one. Did I have a thermometer to test the water of his bath? No, indeed, and there's no telling how often the little cherub was nearly perished. And those dreadful long tubed bottles! I understand that the present day mother would as soon give her little blossom a dose of poison. I don't wonder at it. The milk always did sour quickly in them, and of course it never occurred to me to boil the paraphernalia. Another thing that I've noticed is that this generation of women make such sensible mothers. They read up to date books on baby training, and they know such a lot about pulse beats and temperatures and things of that sort that we always relied upon the family doctor to tell us about.

Hadn't Time to Think of his Soul.

An American mother, writing in the February Ladies' Home Journal on "Have Women Robbed Men of Their Religion?" uses this anecdote in illustration of how men of to-day are neglected of the welfare of their own souls: "After a revival in a village near Philadelphia a dozen young converts met regularly to compare their spiritual condition. Sam B.—, a sickly lad, was conspicuously absent among them. He could not make sure of his salvation. He prayed and agonized and bemoaned his sins incessantly. A sudden death threw a sawmill, a widowed sister and her five penniless children on Sam's hands. He came no more to the conference. "Sam," said one of his friends one day, "how is it with you now? Are you calling and electing sure?" "I hope so, I'm sure," said Sam. "But I've got my work to do now. I haven't any time to think of my soul."

Bob McCready.

Above is a splendid portrait of Bob McCready, one of the best football players in Canada. He is a member of the Ottawa University team, and has been in all of its championship matches. He is a splendid specimen of robust Canadian manhood, but, strong as he is, he has known what it is to suffer from dyspepsia. So seriously afflicted was he at the opening of the past (1899) season, that he was not able to go out with his team. Pains in the back and sides, intermittent headache, and the awful pang he suffered after eating, the result of an impaired digestion, warned him that he was in no condition to play football, the hardest of all games. Besides, he lacked the energy to carry him through a campaign. He consulted his physician, but that gentleman gave him no relief. "At this stage," he writes, "I was advised to try Dr. Petty's Pills, the new remedy that one of my friends assured me was wonderful in its effects. I was skeptical, but he sounded his praises so persistently that I was at length induced to try them. The very first dose drove the pain away, and at the end of a week I regained my team, and I have come through one of our hardest seasons in the best form that I have ever been in. Dr. Petty's Pills are now a thank for my condition. They are the best medicine I have ever taken. They make me so strong and so full of energy. I for one shall never take any others when I feel in need of strength. Such is the recommendation of this well-known athlete, and such will be the experience of every man who tries this wonderful remedy. If your druggist cannot supply you, write to an enclosing note 20 cents a bottle, six bottles for $2.50. Address The Dr. Petty Medicine Co., Ottawa, Canada.
