Pains in the Back

Are symptoms of a weak, torpid or stagnant condition of the kidneys or liver, and are a warning that it is extremely hazardous to neglect, so important is a healthy action of these organs.

They are commonly attended by loss of energy, lack of courage, and sometimes by gloomy foreboding and despondency.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Cures kidney and liver troubles, relieves the back, and builds up the whole system.

will pass to the subject which is before the house.

MR FOSTER NOT SATISFIED.

But Mr Foster insisted. By inference, he said, the Speaker ruled that the remarks applied to him.

"To whom else could they apply?" asked Mr Foster, amid wild yells of the Government supporters.

Mr Speaker said he failed to see where the remark applied to Mr Foster directly. There was more than one member in the house.

Does the Speaker himself think, Mr Foster demanded again, "that the right honorable gentleman was applying that word to anyone else than me?"

Someone on the government side asked the Speaker if the words had been applied to Mr Foster personally.

"It is not necessary for you Mr Speaker," said the leader of the opposition, "it is not necessary for you to answer that question."

The right honorable gentleman has said himself that he used the words in retaliation for words used by Mr Foster before recess.

APPLIED THE WORDS DIRECT

"I never said under false colors," declared Sir Wilfrid, while the opposition listened for a retraction.

"I have never made any accusation and I make none now that I cannot back up."

I applied the words to the honorable member for North Toronto; and now, Mr Speaker, that I have placed myself under your ruling, I shall proceed.

But this wouldn't go. Calls were renewed from the opposition members for the full enforcement of the Speaker's decision.

The Speaker could only repeat what he had said, that offensive words were unparliamentary and must be taken back.

More shouts of "sit down," from the government side, and counter demonstrations of encouragement were heard as Mr Foster arose and stood facing the prime minister.

"The right honorable gentleman," exclaimed Mr Foster, "has said that the words were offensive and that they were addressed to me."

WITHDRAWS THE REMARK.

Sir Wilfrid was in pale earnest now. "The prime minister should give an example to the house," he began deliberately.

When I have charged to make I'll make them," he added, thumping his desk, "as I do now. And I shall obey the rule of the chair. And I withdraw every word I said."

A cheer went up from the opposition side that could be heard at the main entrance. And Mr Foster smiled. Sir Wilfrid regarded him thus an instant, and then went on:

"The physician attending me prescribed, on my rallying from an attack of rheumatism, your Scott's Emulsion, which I have been taking every winter since. I find it most valuable in strengthening and building up one after a severe illness. I have not had rheumatism since the time mentioned above and I owe it to your most valuable Emulsion. It is my life now, and makes me strong and healthy."

R. RICARD, Grand Ligne, Quebec.

For two hundred years before Scott's Emulsion came Cod Liver Oil was used for rheumatism.

Scott's Emulsion advertisement with logo and text: "is modernized Cod Liver Oil, the purest and best oil partly predigested, made palatable and suitable for the most delicate child or invalid. It enriches the blood, tones up the entire system, and drives out rheumatism."

"But the honorable member for North Toronto must not try to attack people in this house. He has his own reputation to look after."

"And I am able to look after it," Mr Foster retorted. "There is no man more ready to make insinuations than he," was the prime minister's warm rejoinder.

AFTER THE TEMPEST.

The storm having thus subsided, Sir Wilfrid Laurier went on to say that the reasons the government could not accept the motion of Mr Doherty were that its premises were ill-founded.

The record showed the commissioners said they had made an investigation of all the departments and had made it as full as possible. There was no ground either for the conclusion in the motion that there was ground for believing there was wrong-doing in other departments also.

Mr Doherty—"It was the commissioner who quoted it." "Well," replied Sir Wilfrid, "I shall quote this: 'To the pure all things are pure, and the corollary of this is that to the impure all things are impure.' He added bitterly that to Mr Foster, like many others, all things are impure."

"The vote on the opposition amendment was 54 yeas to 94 nays. A majority for the government of 40 the smallest of the session."

Then the house went into committee of supply and passed one-fourth of the main estimates en bloc and adjourned at 3.15 a. m.

The Folly of Trust.

(Montreal Gazette.)

The coroner's inquest into the recent railway wreck at Brandon developed the fact that the primary cause was identical with that at Harrison, Ont., last fall, for which one man was recently sentenced to eight months' imprisonment.

In both instances the man failed. At Harrison he escaped; at Brandon he was one of the men killed. In this latter instance a train was ordered by the dispatcher to use the south instead of the north track commonly used.

The orders were received by the conductor from the dispatcher in the usual way, and he communicated them to the engineer. So far the rules were carried out. The conductor at the inquest swore that he had so delivered them in the hearing and presence of the fireman. He, however, acknowledged that he had failed to make his brakeman acquainted with them, as was his duty.

The setting of the switch was part of the brakeman's duty, and on this day, not having been apprised of the change of tracks, he set it as usual for the north track, along which the train proceeded, a collision following, and three men being killed, two of these being the engineer and fireman on the train in question.

Primary blame for the disaster rests, of course, with the engineer, and to a minor extent with the fireman, taking it for granted that he heard, as he should, the orders delivered by the conductor to the engineer. Secondly responsibility rests with the conductor. He failed to notify his brakeman in the first place, and, secondly, he failed to see that the order was carried out, as he is instructed to do by the rules.

At the inquest he explained his negligence by saying that he had unbounded confidence in his engineer. This was precisely the explanation the conductor of the train at fault at the Harrison wreck made. The engineer in that case explained that he forgot, and this was evidently exactly what the engineer in the Brandon case also did.

The Brandon jury found that the engineer, who was killed, was to blame, and, despite the evidence, wholly exonerated the conductor. It is stated the verdict was received with great enthusiasm, and this assists in an understanding of how the jury came to render a finding evidently at variance with their duty.

The conductor in this instance was guilty of dereliction of duty, and the fact may not be controverted. He depended upon his engineer. As the conductor in the Harrison wreck put it: "We railway men trust each other; we expect that the other will do his duty." This was what this man did, in violation of the rules, placing his own life, the lives of his comrades and the lives of the passengers on his train in jeopardy.

The railway will never be safe as long as men entrusted with the operation of trains pursue this misguided policy of trusting one another. The price of that trust can be found in almost every cemetery in Canada.

As for the government's case in this matter it was about as indefensible as that of the Newmarket canal. The government, he said in conclusion, might say what it liked about the resolution, but let the investigation be granted.

HON. MR. PUGSLEY.

Following Mr Borden seven or eight Quebec members spoke, and then Mr Pugsley took the floor after midnight.

Mr Pugsley argued that it would cost upward of a million dollars to conduct a complete investigation into all the departments. Mr Foster had demanded the prosecution of McAvity but he could not find one word in the Cassels report that Mr McAvity had received what was not entitled to or had given any commissions to officers of his department.

Dr. Daniel asked if it was not the fact that McAvity received $35,900 from G.S. Mayes without any return but his influence in securing a government contract and turned it over to the Liberal party for campaign purposes.

Mr Pugsley said he was not aware what amount McAvity received, but Mr Foster referred to another matter. Mr George Taylor declared that every dollar of uncontrollable expenditure should be investigated. It had been shown by the auditor-general's report that in the purchase of belting the middleman received a profit of $533 out of a total expenditure of $831.

If this proportion of take-off was the rule, fifty-nine millions out of the ninety-two millions expended last year represents take-off. Two saws were rented for $20 when they could have been bought outright for $7. Several such cases were instanced by the whip.

A few minutes before 3 o'clock the division bell rang and while the whips were scurrying around gathering up their forces members in the chamber broke out into a song. It was a thin house, however, as many members had taken their departure for the week end.

The vote on the opposition amendment was 54 yeas to 94 nays. A majority for the government of 40 the smallest of the session.

Then the house went into committee of supply and passed one-fourth of the main estimates en bloc and adjourned at 3.15 a. m.

Mary Ovington, Jasper, Ont., writes—"My mother had a badly sprained arm. Nothing we used did her any good. Then father got Hayward's Yellow Oil and it cured mother's arm in a few days." Price 25c.

"You look tired, Johnny. What's the matter—social duties too much for you?" said a gentleman in a Cincinnati elevator the other day jokingly. "Yes, sir," replied the elevator boy opening the door at the ninth floor to let out Mr. Taft. "I've been getting up a large party."

HEADACHE. Burdock Blood Bitters. What Medical Skill Could Not Do Was Accomplished with Burdock Blood Bitters.

If you are troubled with Headache do not hesitate to use B.B.B. It is no new product, of unknown value, but has an established reputation.

COULD NOT WORK. Miss Mabel Wright, Muskegon, N.E., writes: "I was sick and run down, would have Headache, a bitter taste in my mouth, floating spots before my eyes and pains in my back. I could not sleep at night. Several doctors looked after me but I was getting no relief. On the advice of a friend I got three bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters and they effected a complete cure."

"Please sir," asked little Ephraim to his Sunday school teacher, please, sub, buccome Pontius Pilate got such curious names?"

"Panchus Pilate, ma boy," Mr Blackburn replied, with profound dignity. "So called because he was a man of generous propensions."

Sprained Arm. Mary Ovington, Jasper, Ont., writes—"My mother had a badly sprained arm. Nothing we used did her any good. Then father got Hayward's Yellow Oil and it cured mother's arm in a few days." Price 25c.

"You look tired, Johnny. What's the matter—social duties too much for you?" said a gentleman in a Cincinnati elevator the other day jokingly.

"Yes, sir," replied the elevator boy opening the door at the ninth floor to let out Mr. Taft. "I've been getting up a large party."

Minard's Liniment cures Distemper. "No one understands me!" he groaned, "no one on earth."

It is the old story wrung from many a tortured, youthful heart. The sufferer is generally mistaken but the pain is no less poignant. Yet in this instance the man's complaint was true. Nobody on earth could understand him.

For he was an announcer of trains at the Union Depot.

The Calgary Eye-Opener has suspended publication—for a time. Let us hope while the sheet is in retirement that it will be passed through the fires of purification.

There is nothing harsh about Lax-Liver Pills. They cure Constipation, Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, and Bilious Spells without griping, purging or sickening. Price 25c.

Muscular Rheumatism. Mr H. Wilkinson, Stratford, Ont., says—"It affords me much pleasure to say that I experienced great relief from Muscular Rheumatism by using two boxes of Milburn's Rheumatism Pills." Price a box 50c.

"Any complaints, corporal?" said the colonel, making a morning personal inspection.

"Yes, sir. Taste that, sir," said the corporal promptly.

The colonel put the liquid to his lips.

"Why," he said, "that's the best soup I ever tasted!"

"Yes, sir," said the corporal, "and the cook wants to call it coffee."

BRONCHITIS

Bronchitis is generally the result of a cold caused by exposure to wet and inclement weather, and is a very dangerous inflammatory affection of the bronchial tubes.

The symptoms are tightness across the chest, sharp pains and a difficulty in breathing, and a secretion of thick phlegm, at first white, but later of a greenish or yellowish color. Neglected Bronchitis is one of the most general causes of Consumption.

Cure it at once by the use of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

Mrs. D. D. Miller, Allendale, Ont., writes: "My husband got a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup for my little girl who had Bronchitis. She wheezed so badly you could hear her from one room to the other, but it was not long until we could see the effect your medicine had on her. That was last winter when we lived in Toronto."

"She had a bad cold this winter, but instead of getting another bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, I tried a home made receipt which I got from a neighbor but found that her cold lasted about twice as long. My husband highly praises 'Dr. Wood's,' and says he will see that a bottle of it is always kept in the house."

The price of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is 25 cents per bottle. It is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, so be sure and accept none of the many substitutes of the original "Norway Pine Syrup."
