International Strike May Be Declared.

Alarming Conditions in Coal Mining—Newspaperless Liverpool—Tribesmen Proclaim Holy War.

AN INTERNATIONAL STRIKE.
GENEVA, Aug. 30.

An international miners strike will now be definitely declared should the British miners decide to this effect. It is learned now that as soon as British miners strike no coal will be allowed to leave Germany, Belgium or France for England, and the miners in these countries will cease work and demand nationalization of their mines.

Western Siberian peasants have overthrown Soviets at Tomsk, Movin-lal, Evsk, Omsk, Barnui and other important towns. It is reported here from reliable resources.

NO PAPERS IN MANCHESTER.
LIVERPOOL, Aug. 30.

No morning papers appeared in Liverpool to-day for the first time in a hundred and twelve years, and no evening papers for the first time in fifty years, as the consequence of a sudden strike of newspaper compositors here and in Manchester for more pay. For the first time in more than three quarters of a century the Manchester Guardian has failed to appear.

SERIOUS SITUATION IN MESOPOTAMIA.
LONDON, Aug. 30.

Another attack against Hillah, west of the Euphrates River, in Mesopotamia, was launched by a force of fifteen hundred rebellious tribesmen last Thursday, but the attacks fell back under heavy shell fire, says an official statement, issued by the war office to-day. The situation in the Munetk area of Mesopotamia, that is between the lower Tigris and the lower Euphrates, grows more ominous, the statement continues. A violent Holy War is being preached and this tribe is expected shortly to throw in its lot with the insurgents. The situation around Samawah also gives rise to anxiety. Movements of rebel bands have been observed, and renewed attacks on our posts are expected.

AN ARAB PARLIAMENT.
LONDON, Aug. 30.

According to the Daily Mail it has been decided to establish an Arab Parliament in Mesopotamia and also an Arab Cabinet with a British adviser in charge of the administration.

HOW SOME OF THE LUXURIOUS SCENES ON THE CINEMA ARE PRODUCED.

When seeing a film in which most, if not all of the scenes are “interior” ones—that is, taken inside a studio—you have doubtless been struck by the faithfulness to detail in regard to the furniture and decorations, and very often their gorgeousness, when the rooms shown are supposed to be those of some palatial mansion.

The man who is responsible for their furnishing is the property manager, and his duties are difficult and many. Often at the shortest possible notice he may be required by the film-producer to place in a certain scene anything from a doormat to a gigantic figure of Buddha. In the early days of the film industry it was usual to hire a good deal of what was required. But now, with a few exceptions, everything is manufactured at the studio, where an army of carpenters, mechanics, and other experts are busy night and day turning out all manner of articles, big and small.

A good many of the things are made of papier-mache, so that much of the furniture and statues in the scenes are not really wood or marble. Papier-mache, it may be explained, is a manufacture which developed many years ago in France, long before the film industry had its birth, and to-day the papier-mache factories in America are turning out enormous quantities of this product. It consists of paper-pulp mixed with glue, and the substance is then placed between plaster moulds. After going through heating and drying processes, the papier-mache article is coloured in imitation of the real thing.

Made of Paper.
In studio “sets” the papier-mache properties are not limited only to furniture and statues. For even the delicious-looking fruit and other foods that appear in banqueting scenes are often made of papier-mache bricks with which houses can be built, and papier-mache crockery which can be thrown about without hurting anybody.

In arranging the setting of an interior scene, the property manager has to be careful that everything must match the character of the room and be correct with the period in which the plot of the story is laid. Thus, if the scene happens to be that of a library, a large number of books, usually second-hand ones, would have to be either hired or bought. While in a drawing-room representing an earlier century period there would have to be nothing in it that had not been invented or introduced at that time.

All the properties in a studio are carefully checked after use and anything damaged is repaired or replaced. The property manager and his assistants have a complete index, consisting of several thousands of entries, and by its means they are enabled to lay their hands on anything at a moment's notice.—Answers.

Elks Elect Officers.

St. John's Lodge of the British Empire Order of Elks held a very successful session last night, when visiting Brother Aikman gave an excellent address on Elkdom. The gathering of members was large and Brother Aikman outlined the history of the Elks under Canadian jurisdiction in a manner that was both pleasing and instructive. Invitations have been received from Australia and New Zealand to establish the order in these Dominions and within a short time London will be invaded, where the next big convention will be held. After some remarks by Brother W. J. Higgins, the election of officers for the remaining months of the year took place and resulted as follows:—
Esteemed Exalted Ruler—Bro. Dr. A. Tait.
Esteemed Lecturing Knight—Bro. Dr. A. E. Perkins.

Wedding Bells.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Marmaduke Forward, 29 Cook St., on Tuesday, August 18th, when their daughter, Beth was united in holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Ernest Spracklin. The nuptial knot was tied by Elder D. J. C. Barrett in the presence of a goodly number of guests. The bridesmaids were Miss Minnie Furzevex and Fern Munn, while the groom was ably supported by Mr. John McBay, cousin of the bride. The bride was charmingly attired in peacock blue silk, with hat to match. After the ceremony the guests present partook of a sumptuous repast. At 5.30 the bride and groom left by train for Chamberlain's to spend their honeymoon at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Slade. The bride was the recipient of many useful presents, including a check from the S.D.A., where the bride has been Organist for years.

Lest We Forget.

It is exactly two years since the British forces under Lord Haig's command began that glorious thrust north of the Oise, which was to drive the enemy back to and beyond the Hindenburg line, and in combination with the splendid efforts of our Allies, to bring the long struggle to an end. At that time the idea that the country might come to forget the implicit understanding that it had come to with its heroic defenders would have been scouted as altogether impossible. It is equally unthinkable to-day. England will be true to herself and to her word, or she will infallibly go to the wall. Difficulties—for difficulties there are—can be met and overcome by a willing and grateful spirit of sacrifice, if only employers and trade unions and Government and people will unite to-day to complete the payment of the common debt, as they united six years ago to fight the common foe.—London Times.

Mineral From the Sky.

There is—and it is rather startling to remember it—only a fixed amount of any element in the world. There is just as much iron, gold, copper, tin, lead, and silver, and no more. These things cannot be made; they exist, and we can find them; that is all. And some day we shall have found and used all there is of each.

We comfort ourselves by saying that this will not happen in our time or in the time of our children or grandchildren. And new ways of dealing with “scrap” will enable us to use all our metals over and over again. But if man survive long enough throughout the ages he must some day come to an end of the fixed supply of raw materials in the earth. He will have got out every bit of iron and gold and tin that there is, and he will have to limit his requirements in these minerals to the supplies that he has in hand.

Coal Always Being Made.
That iron or any other of the metals will some day fall us is not a thought that worries the average man. He is far more concerned about a failure in the supply of coal. Yet coal is not a thing of fixed quantity, as an element is. Nature, it is true, does not make it as quickly as man uses it; but when the pinch comes he will no doubt learn to make it for himself. There is baby coal in Devonshire and other places that he may find some way of making quickly into adult coal.

But neither old Mother Earth nor man can make iron or gold. And what are we going to do when we have used up all the iron and gold? Must we go to other planets to look for supplies?

It is a fanciful thought no doubt, but maybe the mineral supplies of our far-distant descendants will be found in the meteorites that flash for a moment as they pass through the skirts of our atmosphere and now and again tumble to earth. In these bodies there are perhaps stores of all the metals we need and of others of which we know nothing. Will man learn at some future time how to bring them to earth?

Stock Market Report!

Stocks are pointed higher. The decline which began last November seems to have run its course, and apparently the turn in the general price movement has begun.

It is our opinion that a pronounced improvement in stock market prices is ahead, unless, of course, some drastic and unexpected situation develops, but we are taking the logical position that there is a bottom to everything and surely it seems to have been reached.

We are in the market to buy or sell any listed security and we have unusual facilities for the prompt handling of your orders.
