Pretty Almy J. Wood Marries the Mar of Her Choice.

Had Been Locked Up and Whipped With Her Lever.

HOPKINTON, Mass., Dec. 31.—Pretty Almy J. Wood, the 17-year-old daughter of Mr. G. P. Wood and a relative of ex-Governor Claffin, has married the man of her choice, in spite of horsewhippings and imprisonments which were inflicted with a view to breaking up the match. On Satunday morning, long before daylight, she escaped from her father's house and eloped with William H. McCormick, a shoemaker, and in a few hours they were married at Millville by Justice of the Peace James O'Reilly. The bride was not as richly dressed for the occasion as she would Treating Growing Unpopular.

At the annual meeting of the Dominion
Circle of Commercial Travelers this week
in Hamilton, the officers elected for 1892 included T. B. Escott, of this city, as vicepresident. A communication from the King's Sons, Columbus, O., reported that the habit of treating among business men in the United States was growing less and less from year to year. A circular letter from the circle, addressed to commercial travelers and business men, was adopted,
asking their co-operation in discountenancing the habit of treating.
Sunday School Anniversary.

The annual Christmas treat to the children attending Askin Street Methodist Church Sunday school was given Tuesday.
Several hundred of the children were present. Mr. James Learn, superintendent, presided, and he was aided by the efficient
staff of teachers and a number of the parents.
After/partaking of tea and accompaniments, the programme was entered on. Miss Stanton, Mr. L. Hessell and Mr. Rowell gave interesting recitations, the children sang several Christmas carols and trios, and Rev. Mr. McIntyre, the pastor, gave a pithy address. It was an enjoyable gathering.

Tuesday evening's "At Home" for the patients passed off in a most pleasant and agreeable manner, the patients participating in different games for amusement. The enjoyment of the evening was very greatly enhanced by the kindness of Mr. Fred. Lawrason in volunteering a "phonographic concert," which gave entire satisfaction, the selections being heard distinctly in every part of the large amusement hall. At the close of the concert Dr. Sippi sang a selection into the phonograph, which was instantly reproduced to the audience, the instrument giving it so perfectly that the singer's voice could readily be recognized.

Notwithstanding the unpleasant weather a goodly number of ladies were present at a special meeting of the W. C. T. U. Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Evans opened the meeting with devotional exercises and a most helpful Bible lesson. A deputation from the London Temperance Union was present to confer with the ladies regarding work that is now being pushed forward. The corresponding secretary was requested to write to the incoming Council and ask that the bylaw in regard to cigarettes and tobacco be printed and sent to all places where the articles are sold, with the request that they be fastened up in their place of business. Numerous other items of pusiness were attended to, and the meeting was closed with devotional exercises.

CANADIAN DEPOT

James O'Reilly. The bride was not as richly dressed for the occasion as she would have wished, the exigencies of the elopement preventing her from securing her best bibs and tuckers when leaving her father's house, and she was forced to put up with a gingham gown. After the ceremony the young couple went to Blackstone.

The tale Mr. McCormick tells of the trials and tribulations which he and his bride have suffered at the hands of the bride's father sounds like a romance. McCormick is a Catholic, and Mr. Woods is a Protestant, and therein lay the father's objection to his daughter's lover. He forbade a continuance of the intimacy,

Wood was sent away to school, where she remained a year. She had been home a short time only when another attempt was made to break up the intimacy, and Miss Wood was locked up in the attic of her father's house, where she was kept for four days. She found a piece of twine in the attic, which she used to get notes to and from McCormick. After four days she was released from her imprisonment. Some two months ago McCormick says that Mr. Wood called on him and took him to his house, seating him in his parlor. He then stepped outside for a moment and returned with a horsewhip. He told McCormick that he could have his choice of going to a justice and getting married or taking a horsewhipping. McCormick would take neither. He left the house and matters went on as usual for a short time. The girl was again confined to her room for three days, but she escaped with a shawl thrown over her head and went to her lover, who secreted her among friends. He refused to disclose her whereabouts until her father would come to an agreement allowing him to visit her at her home and promising that she should not he abused. A truce was declared, but as soon as the father reached home he locked his daughter in the attic and kept her a prisoner for two weeks.

Then she got permission to go to the barn for a basket, and on the way met her lover. Her father heard of it, and when he arrived home at noon he whipped her with a horsewhip until she was rendered unconscious, home at noon he whipped her with a horse-whip until she was rendered unconscious, and Dr. Patten had to be called in to restore her. The girl was then made a prisoner in her bed-room, the windows being nailed and the doors locked. She managed to get out, however, but was discovered in the yard by a brother, who told her father. The father, with the assistance of an offi-cer, succeeded in getting her back into the house, where she was again made a prisoner.

After almost three days' confinement she was allowed to come downstairs. She managed to get a note to McCormick, and he replied through a bill distributor, who left a note at the house for the girl. At noon she met McCormick and made arrangements to run away that night at midnight. She quietly left the house and met her lover, who was waiting with a team her lover, who was waiting with a team Not being familiar with the route, the couple got lost, and it was 5:30 on Satur

The bride is a beautiful girl, with a clear-cut face, blue eyes, light hair, pearl-white, even teeth, and small mouth, and is tall and shapely. McCormick is a member of the People's Gomedy and Dramatic Com-pany of Hopkinton, and was captain and short stop of the local baseball team during the years 1888 and 1889.

HOME RULE FOR INDIA.

mportant Action of the Indian National Congress—A Message to Gladstone. Congress—A Message to Gladstone.

London, Dec. 31.—At yesterday's meeting of the Indian National Congress at Nappur, a resolution was adopted declaring that it is necessary that a legislature shall be established in India, to which the people of India shall elect representatives. The resolution also says that it is imperative that reductions be made in the expenditures of the army of India.

The destitution of the masses in cortain sections is greatly due to the fact that they have no parliamentary representation, and that consequently they are unable to control such expenditures.

The congress sent a dispatch to Mr. Gladstone, upon the occasion of his 82nd birthday, expressing the hope that many years of his life of usefulness may be vouch-safed to him.
