May I go into this matter somewhat more fully? I have noticed that my memory is not affected in its accuracy as regards scenes, places and historical events, either personal or general. When I returned to may country place, after an absence of nearly a year, I remembered the position of certain shrubs, pictures, pieces of statuary, which had been removed during my absence: but I was often at a loss for sterling worth!

CHAPTER XV. A Reshuffling of the Pack.
"You are Claude G. Waverton?" said the coroner, squaring several sheets of legal-looking foolscap on his desk, and evidently settling down for another long spell of note-taking.

"I am," came the confident reply.

"What address?"

notion which predominated in my denial of the poison transaction. I am well acquainted with Jose Vuilmo's store, and can describe its situation exactly; so it is quite probable, therefore, that I did execute Mrs. Kyrle's commission, though I certainly do not recollect it. I withdraw my earlier implied repudiation unreservedly, since Mrs. Kyrle's evidence has convinced me that I was mistaken."

The coroner wrote every word, so there were frequent pauses in Waverfon's statement. In ordinary conditions, the cautious

"When did you first hear of it?"

"Last Sunday fortnight, at Providence.
My valet showed it to me in the Sunday newspapers."

"Why?"

"I cannot remember any instance."
"You took it for granted that she was a married woman?"
"She might have been a widow."
"But you did not trouble to inquire?"
"No. Why should I? If I gave any thought at all to the matter, I probably imagined that she had good reasons for not speaking of it, so held my tongue."
The coroner seemed to regard this as excellent council, as he obviously repressed a desire to question the witness further. Nodding to Forbes, he said:
"Have you anything you wish to ask?"
"No, sir," came the unexpected reply.
Now. most people in court, including

"You have heard the evidence of the previous witnesses. Do you contradict them in any important particulars?"
"No."

The coroner permitted himself to look bewildered, and Waverton smiled.
"May I make a statement in my own words, sir?" he asked. "It will facilitate matters greatly, and I shall, of course, be prepared to answer any questions subsequently."
"By all means," breathed the coroner, glad to find that he was to be spared the necessity of pointing out how inconsistent was that emphatic "No" with the witness firm dischaimer of the druggist's identification. "It must be plain to you, sir, and to "It must be plain to you, sir, and to every unblased observer," said Waverton it have hardly recovered from a severe accident sustained at Palm Beach early in May. When I regained consciousness after having been thrown out of an automobile, I soom found that my memory had become very much impaired and the defect remains, though it is gradually improving. I can recall certain incidents of the past, but my mind is a blank where others are concerned. I suppose that, at the time I am said to have gone to Jose Vullmo's shop, I regarded the purchase of the polson as a trivial matter, and it evidently comes within the second category—that of forgotten things, I mean. When I was charged today with a personal share in something that Mrs. Kryle's legal adviser very properly called a 'conspiracy,' having for its apparent object the murder of a man I had never seen, I resented the imputation as monstrous. It was that notion which predominated in my denial of the polson transaction. I am well acquainted with Jose Vullmo's store, and and describe its situation exactly; so it is quite probable, therefore, that I did execute Mrs. Kvie's commission, though it is quite probable, therefore, that I did execute Mrs. Kvie's commission, though were frequent pauses in Waverton's statement. In ordinary conditions, the cautious official would have rejected some phases as being mere comment, but it was clear that he meant to allow the witness to express himself exactly as he thought fit on this occasion.

"Do you know anything whatever of Mr. Kyrle's death?" he asked, after glancing carefully through what he had written.

"Nothing, beyond the accounts in the"

"That instance comes somewhat too near the actual time of the mishap to be of much guidance." said Traherne. "I want you, if possible, Mr. Waverton, to tell us the first instance after you were fully restored to consciousness, when you failed to recall some well-marked event in appened."

"You are asking me to perform a very difficult feat."

"But Why?"

"But why?"
"You want me to remember something which I tell you I have completely for-"When did you first hear of it?"

"Last Sunday formight, at Providence.
My valet showed it to me in the Sunday newspapers."

"Why?"

"He recognized the address. He was aware that Mrs. Delamar—both he and I have always known Mrs. Kyrle by that name—went occasionally to a cottage at Absecon called The Rosery. It was unproperty—at least, such was my impression. I do not wish it to be assumed that I was misled in the matter by Mrs. Delamatic thing, but have no recollection of it.

Surely this cannot be the first time such this thing, but have no recollection of it.

Many Fine Silos Are Being Built

[Special to The Advertiser.] Wyoming, Sept. 17.—That the silo as method of preserving the corn croj s growing in favor with the surrounding farmers is quite apparent. Two more have been added to the number this fall in this vicinity. McKinley Bros. have a frame one in course of erection, while Mr. D. McMurphy has just completed a handsome cement

Almost daily some farmer is seen drawing the material for one to be erected on his farm. It is claimed by those who have tested their worth for years that without the ensilage they would abandon cattle feeding entirely rather than revert to the old laborious method of dragging cornstalks about all winter, with such unsatisfactory results.

Apart from the convenience in handling the crop since the introduction of silage, is the improved condition of stock fed in this manner, more easily fattened, while a sleeker coat is in evidence, which adds to the saleable quality of the animal. The dairy cow perhaps derives double advantage, particularly the winter milker, as coming in off the grass in good condition the silage keeps her up to the mark and a larger flow of milk consequently results.

THE STATE OF

STEE STEEL

[Canadian Press.] London, Sept. 17. - A desperate attempt by a suffragette "arson squad" to burn down Penhurst Place, the historic fourteenth century country seat of Lord De L'Isle and Dudley, at Tunbridge, Kent., was made in the course of last night.

The inmates of the great mansion awakened by the crackling of wood and by clouds of smoke, found the framework of a number of windows ablaze. A working party of household employees soon succeeded in extinguishing the flames, with the efficient apparatus on the premises.

Two women were seen fleeing across the lawn in front of the building, and large amount of suffrage literature was found in the grounds, while heaps of rags soaked in petroleum were disovered in several places.

Great indignation prevails among the neighboring residents, as it is thought probable that the mansion, hitherto open to visitors, may be closed. It contains invaluable portraits of ancestors of the holder of the title. Save One Ton of Coal in Every Six

The Economizer will do it.

While the cost of living has undoubtedly been growing greater, at the same time it is true there are some inventions that will offset this increased cost of living, and the careful housewife takes advantage of these inventions.

On every Gurney-Oxford range there is an Economizer which controls not only the drafts but also the entire combustion or burning of fuel to create heat.

This Economizer will save 1 ton of coal in every 6 that you would use with the ordinary range.

The Economizer is a simple device, absolute in its control. By merely moving the lever you can obtain any degree of even heat in the oven. This insures the satisfaction of always having light, delicately crusted bread and biscuits.

The kitchen fire ceases to be a worry if the Economizer is on your stove.

The Gurney - Oxford is the final result of experimental thought. Science has given it a Divided Flue, a new Special Grate, and a Broiler attachment.

This Gurney-Oxford range is primarily a a saver of money, time, and energy. Third Floor.
