THE PLANET MARS.

To THE EDITOR :- I give the first watch of the night to the red planet Mars. M. Faye, the Paris astronomer, has just communicated the startling discovery, made by M. Perrotin through the powermade by M. Perrotin through the powerful telescope at the Nice observatory, to the Academy of Sciences. He tells us that in all probability there are human beings in Mars, perhaps like unto ourselves. What have always been known to observers of that planet as "canals," the lines going from sea to sea, so to speak, are now found to be actual waterways, some of them still "in proconstruction or unfinished," like Panama Canal, says M. Perrotin.

Dr. Wm. G. Lange, D. D. S., will remain in the city for two weeks. Parties desirous of his services will please call at the office of Dr. R. F. Verrinder, M.D., D.D.S., old Masonic Building, ment street.
