

came to gaze upon it. To one heart at least that story went home, for beneath the picture the painter had placed the words:

'I did all this for thee—
What hast thou done for Me?'

'Is it so?' said the young Count Zinzendorf. 'Then henceforth all my life shall be given to him who has done all this for me.' Though I believe that Zinzendorf became a Christian when he was a child, yet a sight of this painting led him to live for the Lord as he had not done before. As the founder of the United Brethren in Moravia, we know how well he kept his promise.

The gypsy girl came to see the picture, too, and Sternberg, happening to be there, found her weeping before it.

'O master,' she cried, 'He died for you, I know; but, oh, I wish he had died for me, a poor gypsy girl, too!'

Ah, then he knew something about the love of Jesus, and out of a full heart, and with deep interest in that dying Saviour he told her as he could not have done before the story of his sufferings and death in our stead.

Some time after, a stranger came to him with a message from a gypsy who was dying, and would the master come to her, as she wished to see him? He went, following the guide to the forest; in a poor hut, no longer in her dark beauty, but pale and wan, lay his gypsy friend. Her eyes were closed, but when she heard his voice she opened them, and, with a smile, she slowly said, 'Oh, master, I know now that he died for me, and I am going to live with him.' Then she passed away, a poor gypsy girl, to be with Jesus.

We do not need Sternberg's picture of the crucifixion. The simple Bible story of Christ's death for us is enough to melt our hearts. Only let us, each one, be sure we can say of the Lord Jesus, 'He loved me, and gave himself for me, and now I love him.'—E. Payson Hammond, in the 'Religious Telescope.'

The Best Medicine.

Take the open air—
The more you take the better;
Follow Nature's laws
To the very letter.

Let the doctors go
To the Bay of Biscay;
Let alone the gin,
The brandy, and the whiskey.

Freely exercise,
Keep your spirits cheerful;
Let no dread of sickness
Make you ever fearful.

Eat the simplest food,
Drink the pure cold water;
Then you will be well,
Or, at least, you ought to.
