

In volume 2 of the Naturalist, its Editor gives another paper on Canada
- on birds, this gives a pleasing li-
- history of the Roseate, or Song Spar-
- row, and also notes on the White-throated, White-crowned, and Fair-
- a-land Sparrows, and in this vol-
- ume - as a broadly noted - is pub-
- lished the article on the Winter Birds of the Continent, by Mr D.
McLean, and also a short ac- count of a Ruffed Grouse, by an-
- other writer.

In volume 3 of the Canadian Naturalist and Geologist, there is no article devoted to birds except a short report on the Migration of the Wild Pigeon, by a correspondent at Barre, C. W. but in vol- ume 4 of this magazine there is a long and very interesting list with historical notes on the Birds of the Lower St. Lawrence, by Mr Robert Bell, of the Geological Survey. In this list Mr Bell men-
- tions the following birds, - Bald Eagle, Sharp-shinned Hawk, Barred Owl, Sharp Hawk, White-bellied Swallow, Cliff Swallow, Barn Swallow, and others.
