

asserts water regeneration, and the annihilation of sinners—and because a person near Port Hope, called by Mr. D. a disciple, is so unscriptural as to deny and assert thus, therefore, yes, THEREFORE the Baptists in London are not illiberal!! Very eccentric proof, Mr. McDonald—have you any more of that kind? I will call this neither B—doxy nor C—doxy, but if any one will christen it McDonalddoxy I could not seriously demur.

But the time came to leave the Georgian Bay region. In company with brother Trout, of St. Vincent, I took my place in a private express for Eramosa, distant from Owen Sound in the direction of home not far short of ninety miles. I must speak of Eramosa again.

NEWS OF ACCESSIONS.

From brother Palmer, of St. Catherines, we learn that two have lately been immersed at Jordan.

Some of our Exchange papers give heart-cheering reports of accessions. The March Number of the Harbinger, the January Number of the Gospel Advocate, the January issue of the Record, a copy or two of the Christian Review, the Evangelist, and sundry Numbers of the Christian Age for the current year, embrace reports by which we ascertain that 1,573 have been added to the number of disciples by the labors of the brethren in some of the American states.

OBITUARY.

Our beloved sister, Amanda C. Caul, has finished her course and gone to her reward. She fell asleep on Tuesday the 6th inst., rejoicing in hope. "Jesus is precious to me" was her dying expression, and then her freed spirit fled to his presence. Those who knew the intelligent and amiable sister will mourn that she is removed from their society and communion, but will rejoice that she is liberated from a life whose path was thickly strown with severe afflictions and painful trials. She endured as seeing him who is invisible, and though her body sunk from the bleeding of a riven heart, her spirit rose to him who is ever faithful and true, and now she rests from her labours. Amen.
