

than the war that can be waged on them by newspaper men, Catholics if you wish. Until the bishops themselves speak to the people, I don't think they will pay much attention to what you write to them on the subject. Moreover, I think that instead of employing newspaper men to write for them in their journals it would be more prudent and more becoming for those priests on whose advice and approval you call so loudly for protection, to go themselves into their pulpits and there speak to their people of the evil, you complain. We in this country, know nothing at all of clerical swindling adventures, more especially when equivocally applied to Irish priests coming to this country to collect alms to restore to her former greatness the grand old church of Ireland. There was a day when they had no churches, therefore don't deny them the luxury of ministering in a few of them as the present day, through some of them may be obliged to come to this country to ask the aid of those whose forefathers they led during the era of the wooden chalice to the morass and the mountain. Don't trifle with them, Mr. Editor, for with all their faults and swindling propensities we don't meet many like them. They are as dear to us in a foreign land to-day as they were to our fathers in days of yore.

INVERNESS, Oct. 3rd 1876.

AN IRISHMAN.

Our first impulse was to consign the above letter to the waste basket, for it is nothing but a tissue of gross mis-statements couched in most uncourteous diction. On second thought, however, we decided to let our rathie correspondent have his say, seeing that it could not hurt us, and might serve to amuse those of our readers who have a keen sense for the ridiculous. It is hardly necessary to say that we adhere to what we said on Sept. 19, and deny that we have in any way been wanting in that reverence and respect which we owe to our clergy no matter of what nationality.

CORRECTIONS.—We were in error in stating in our article of last week on the Catholic Cemetery that the debt of the Fabrique was $130,000; it should have read $300,000. Again the sum which the Fabrique wanted to borrow should have read $20,000 instead of $200,000.

We are requested by Mr. Choquet to state that he does not admit the correctness of that portion of our explanations of last week referring to the cleanliness and good order in which the grounds of the Catholic Cemetery are kept. With this remark and what was admitted in our article, referred to above, Mr. Choquet leaves the matter.

ST. COLUMBA OF SILLERY.

BISHOP PERSICO'S FAREWELL.

It having been made known that His Lordship, Night Rev. Dr. Persico, who since the demise of the Rev. P. H. Harkin, some three years since, has filled the position of parish priest of the parish, would on Sunday morning last, make his adieu to the parishioners, the handsome church of St. Columba was crowded to the doors by the inhabitants, as well as a number from the city. High Mass, which was celebrated by the Rev. Mr. Lepage, of Rimouski, commenced at 9.30. The musical portion was supplied by the regular choir, who sang Mass No. 2, with harmonium accompaniment. After the first Gospel, his Lordship ascended the pulpit, and, after making the usual announcements, addressed the congregation, saying that, as they had for some time back been made aware, the moment of separation had arrived. He assured them that painful as the separation was to them, it was no less so to him, a separation which was not at all of his seeking but the contrary, and simply in compliance with the command of a superior authority; through the highest earthly source. He said, and God knew it, that in settling in Canada, his sole object was to do his Master's work. He had hoped to spend many years amongst them, but it had been ordered otherwise and it only remained for them and him to submit. He thanked them for the many acts of kindness which he had received at their hands during his sojourn amongst them. He also commended the thorough accord which had ever existed—not alone in his time but also in that of his predecessor, as far as he could learn, between the two nationalities of which the parish was composed, Irish and French Canadian, alluding to the great feeling of sympathy that from time immemorial had actuated the Irish towards the French people—and after all, the French Canadians were but the French people transplanted. In conclusion he desired to again, as he had done on every occasion, warn the people against the terrible vice of the age—drunkenness, which was the fountain of all other sin; he could not, he felt, be too impressive on this point. A sober people were sure to have the blessing of the Almighty. In conclusion he begged that his dear Irish friends would follow him not alone with their kind remembrance, their good wishes, but also, with their earnest prayers. He in return, he said, would ever remember them in his prayers, and he would not fail, when at the feet of the Sovereign Pontiff in Rome, to impress upon the Holy Father the virtues of his flock in St. Columba of Sillery, and he had no doubt the Father of the faithful would impart his Apostolic blessing on them and their families.

His Lordship who throughout this discourse was deeply affected, had before this spoken in much the same words to the French portion of the congregation, asking from them on behalf of his successor the same cordial support which they had accorded to him.

Immediately after mass the St. Patrick's Society of Sillery, as well as the Irish people generally of the parish, mustered in large numbers in St. Patrick's Hall, adjoining the church, for the purpose of presenting a farewell address and testimonial to the Bishop. Across the avenue leading to the hall was a banner bearing the Irish harp, supported on either side by a green flag.

The hall itself was also handsomely decorated. At the east end was a carpeted dais surmounted by a crimson canopy, while at the back were the inscriptions "Farewell," "Adieu" and other devices, the whole being formed of the autumnal leaves just as they fell from the trees in all their variety of color. The idea was a most happy one, as the various tints made a coup d'œil most pleasing. On either side were suspended Irish flags and religious pictures. The pilasters of the room were also wreathed with leaves—the whole forming a most pleasing spectacle. His Lordship, accompanied by the Rev. Doctor Paquet, Chaplain to the Bellevue Convent, having taken his seat, Mr. James Timmony, President of the St. Patrick's Society of St. Columba, advanced to the foot of the dais, and read the following address in a manner which showed the depth of feeling of which he was the interpreter:—

To His Lordship the Right Reverend Dr. Persico, Bishop of Bolton.

My Lord,—The St. Patrick's Society of which you are the Honorary President, beg to address you a few words of thanks and of farewell, both in their name and in that of the Irish population of St. Columba. We do not allow us to make known to you our surprise and sorrow, when we learned, a few weeks since, that your Lordship was about to leave us. The and tidings was as stunning to us as the discharge of an electric cloud; we could not believe it! It seemed almost incredible that Providence should exact from us so great a sacrifice. Alas! reports were but too true, and all compulsory as the act was, we were obliged to regard the idea of separation as a possibility—nay, more, as a stern reality. Never! no never! my Lord, can we express, in simple words, how cruel, more than cruel, this separation is for your children of Sillery. Scarcely three years have glided by since we were called upon to sacrifice our dearest affections in the sudden loss of our much lamented and deeply regretted Father Harkin, that venerable priest, the founder of our church, whose devotedness still lives fresh in our memory. At that sad period Heaven chose you, my Lord, to console us, to direct us, to impart happiness to our stricken hearts. During those three years, which have flown on rapid wings, who could tell what your presence has effected in our midst! We daily admire, with gratitude and pride, the material labors which you have undertaken and brought to so happy an issue. It is needless to enumerate them, for they are well known to us; on every side they attract the notice of the passer-by. Had you, my Lord, no other claims but those to our gratitude the parishioners of St. Columba should daily bless your name—daily ask God that a hundredfold be given you, who have done so much for us. Nevertheless, those material labors, which your zeal and wisdom have led you to accomplish, are not compared to the spiritual harvest gleaned in this parish during your brief sojourn in our midst. We cannot refrain from stating that you have effected an immensity of good in the souls confided to your care, and we hope, my Lord—we promise—that this good fruit of your apostolic zeal will be even more lasting than the monuments you leave behind. Never will we forget the divine teachings that, in your admirable discourses from the Chair of Truth, you expounded in such earnest, persuasive and eloquent tones. Ever shall we retain the souvenir of those good counsels, of those salutary lessons, which in your paternal solitude for our welfare, your desire for our spiritual progress, made you often sacrifice your dearest interests to espouse ours. How could we ever be oblivious of that charity which made you so mindful and considerate to the most humble and the weakest as of the most opulent and oldest of your flock? Allow us, also, my Lord, to express, with the simplicity of children who speak to the kindest of fathers, the esteem, the affection and the profound veneration we feel for you. You will pardon our native frankness, but it is a balm to our bruised hearts, a source of consolation to us to be able to disclose to you that we appreciate all that has been effected by one whom we all regard as the worthy representative of the Holy Religion whose name is synonymous with justice, sweetness, and charity. I more particularly interpret the sentiments of the Irish population of Sillery, but I am well aware that they are shared by the French members of your parish, for we all regard you as a benefactor, a friend and a father—all are inconsolable at this moment of painful separation. But we are forced to part; it is neither in our power to retain you in our midst (Oh! how gladly would we do so) nor in yours to listen to our supplications and our tears. On leaving us you obey a superior order to which we know you must incline. 'Tis Our Holy Father the Pope himself who calls you, your services, your science, your wisdom, and your long experience are needed in the Eternal City. All grieved as we may be we must acquiesce to the highest authority on earth, and far from murmuring we should thank that Providence who, forgetful of our unworthiness gave you to us for three years, that we might taste the sweet fruits of your apostolic zeal, and bask in the sunshine of your presence. Farewell then, my Lord, farewell, but before you leave us deign to accept the thanks, the heartfelt wishes of all your children, accept in particular the wishes and thanks of this society which you founded, encouraged, and rendered so prosperous, accept the blessing of all those in whose name I speak at this moment, and deign also to accept this feeble tribute of the grateful and loving hearts you met in an obscure corner of Canada's wide domain.

JAMES TIMMONY,

President of St. Patrick's Society,
St. Columba of Sillery.

St. Columba, 1st October, 1876.

His Lordship then instead of returning a formal reply, spoke much in the following sense:

My dear Friends—I most sincerely thank you for not alone the address which you have just read to me, but also for the substantial testimonial with which you have accompanied it. It is but another mark of the kindness and generosity which I have experienced at your hands since I have been amongst you. When I first came to the parish, I came as a stranger. You then presented me with an address of welcome and I am happy to be able to say to-day, that the sentiments expressed in that address have been carried out in their fullness. But although a stranger to you, the parish of St. Columba of Sillery was no stranger to me, nor to many of the bishops in the United States, and when the notification of my appointment to the parish was conveyed to me, I was, I must confess, pleased to a degree; and not alone myself, but many of my colleagues in the episcopacy of the neighboring States to whom you were well known by reputation, and who hastened to congratulate me on my good fortune. When I came to Canada it was solely with a view to doing good as far as in me lay, but when God willed that I should take charge of the parish of St. Columba the measure of my happiness was completed. Here I thought to have spent many years, even to have ended my days, but a superior power, the will of God, though his vicar on earth, has ordained it otherwise. Providence has willed that I should minister in his service in many lands and in different climes; but whether in the far away East Indies, in the adjoining country or in Canada, it has almost always been my lot, I might say from the commencement of my missionary life to be amongst the Irish. And I have ever found the Irish as I have found you, my friends, kind and affectionate; for I might say the characteristic instinct of the Irish is devotedness to their church and their ministers—and hence my joy at being appointed parish priest of St. Columba. Again I thank you for your many acts of kindness and generosity. We have all worked together harmoniously for the spiritual and temporal welfare of the parish, French and Irish, who I found so united and whom I am proud to say I leave equally so, and which I hope will ever continue. I cannot help bearing testimony to the readiness—in some instances anticipating me—with which you, my Irish friends, met my every wish, whether for the spiritual or temporal good of the parish. We are now about to separate, but it will be in the body only; I shall ever be with you in spirit. I shall ever bear you in mind when praying at the tomb of the Apostles, and when it shall be my happiness to kneel at the feet of the vicar of Jesus Christ I shall not fail to represent to him the faithfulness, the devotedness of his children of St. Columba of Sillery. Your kindness, your generosity, my dear Irish friends, I can never forget, and in me you shall ever find one ready to further the interests and watch over the wants of your parish, should circumstances demand it. Yes, the moment of separation has arrived; but let me cheer your hearts a little. Things are not so as they were fifty or a hundred years ago; circumstances change so rapidly that none of us know what time may bring forth so that it is possible, nay, I may say, probable, that I may return to this country. Whether or no, I can never forget you; you in return will not forget me, and now wishing you God's blessing, I bid you farewell!—(Applause.)

At the conclusion of the reply, his Lordship walked towards the door where he shook hands, individually, with all as they passed out.

Immediately after Vespers another address in the same spirit as the foregoing, was presented to his Lordship on the part of the French Canadian parishioners, signed, among others, by Lieutenant Governor Caron, A. P. Caron, Esq., M. P., the President of L'Union St. Joseph, and other leading men connected with the parish, to which his Lordship also returned a suitable reply. It is well to remark that the same feeling of gratitude towards the Bishop, which actuated the Irish inhabitants of the parish were as noteworthy by their presence amongst the French population, who also accompanied their address with a token of their esteem in the shape of another handsome purse.

On Thursday morning last, his Lordship was also presented with a farewell address by the extern pupils of the Jesus Maria Convent. In the afternoon of the same day, a similar compliment was paid to the Rev. Mr. Mayrand, the retiring vicar of the parish. The same reverend gentleman was also the recipient of an address and purse from the French Canadian parishioners.

DOMINION ITEMS.

The Ladies of Loretto have opened a convent school in Belleville.

The Catholic Total Abstinence Union of Ontario held its annual Convention in the new Temperance Hall, Belleville, this week.

The removal of the post-office of this city into the new building was completed on Saturday night, and work proceeded without interruption. The new building is in the modern Italian style, three stories in height, with a mansard roof and clock tower, on St. James street, and four stories on Fortification lane. The extreme height from the crescent rail which surmounts the tower to the sidewalk is 124 feet. The front on St. James street is 121 feet, rear 119 feet, with a depth of 92 feet. The main entrance, through five doors, is under a Doric portico with winter entrances on both sides. Two detached Doric columns and twelve pilasters of the same order support the cornice of the first story, while the second and third are included in a single row, consisting of six tall Corinthian columns and eight pilasters. The roof and tower are pierced by three lucarnes with Doric ornamentation, the centre supporting the figures of Truth and Justice, with the Dominion coat of arms. Assemblages of the past each of the four all-reliefs that formerly ornamented the facade of the old building of the Montreal Bank have found a place within the new portico. The material of the building is grey limestone. The roof is covered with dark-blue slate, and the main cornice is of cast and galvanized iron combined. On the whole, the new post-office is the finest edifice of the kind in the Dominion.

Three residents of Pickering, Ont., have commenced shipping horses to England as an experiment.

The Thorold Post understands that there is a movement on foot in the Roman Catholic community to erect a splendid new church in that town.

The management of the Prescott Telegraph has passed from the hands of Mr. J. W. Anderson to those of Mr. Isaac Watson. We wish success to the new management.

Another new locomotive for the Prescott and Ottawa Railway has arrived from Portland, and been christened the "Calvin Dame" in honour of the local Superintendent.

WATSON.—Last week Messrs. G. Wright, of this place, and J. A. Couse, of Wyoming, together, shipped from here, to Liverpool, a cargo of the finest horses in this part of the country.

The Chaudiere mills will not shut down until the cold weather interferes with their operations. At present the water is so very low that some of the mills have been obliged to shut down during the day and run a night gang.

Mr. Brennan, for many years manager of the St. Louis Hotel, Quebec, was on Monday presented by the employers with a gold-headed cane and piece of plate, on the occasion of his retiring from the management.

TORONTO, October 9.—Petitions to be presented to the Local Legislature, praying for the incorporation of the Loyal Orange Association of Eastern and Western Ontario, are being circulated for signature throughout the various Lodges of this Province.

QUEBEC, October 9.—The election in the County of Beauce to replace the seat vacated by the elevation of Mr. Pizer to the Senate will come off very shortly. The candidates are Messrs. Bolduc and Delery, Liberal, and Mr. Blanchet, Conservative.

HALIFAX, October 9.—Several attempts at highway robbery have been made lately in the vicinity of the city. On Saturday night a man with a torn on the Bedford road was attacked by four roughs, but by using a butcher knife he succeeded in driving them off.

The Postmaster-General has given notice that hereafter registered letters on which both the postage and registration fee are paid by registered stamp only cannot be forwarded to destination, but will be treated as unpaid, and sent to the Dead Letter Office. Registered stamps are to be used exclusively for the prepayment of the registration fee on such letters, and cannot be accepted in prepayment of postage.

The Ottawa Free Press says:—There lives near the village of Richmond, in this county, a woman over 100 years of age, who has entered upon her second childhood. Her eye-sight has been restored and she now knits without the use of glasses, while upon her head a new crop of hair is growing; but probably the most remarkable fact is the one that a set of teeth are springing up. The information regarding this wonderful case is received from an authentic source. The name of the remarkable centenarian is Mrs. Dukes, and her exact age is 105 years.

The New York Sun refers to the Canadian display of Fruit:—"Decidedly the best show, taking in consideration variety, quality, number and taste, is from Ontario, Canada. The region where the fruit exhibited is grown is along the northern shores of Lake Ontario, Niagara river, and Lake Erie, and receiving the influence of a south western wind, from over these waters, it has a 'water climate peculiarly favorable to fruit.' This coming from such a source, speaks volumes for the show of Canadian fruit at the Centennial.

The Brantford Post office was entered by burglars on Monday night. They succeeded in blowing open the large safe, and carried off $500 in cash and $400 in postage stamps. There was $1,000 worth of jewellery, watches, rings, chains, &c., lying in the bottom of the safe covered over with papers, and also about $2,000 cash in registered letters; this was untouched. It is supposed the robbers were alarmed, and fled before examining the contents of the safe thoroughly. It was not like the work of professionals, as the tools, of various kinds, for forcing an entrance, were stolen from a marble shop close by. As yet there is no clue. The safe was blown open with glycerine, and is a perfect wreck.—Colony Sentinel.

Hon. J. Skedd, President of the Ottawa Board of Trade, has been interviewed by a member of the press in regard to the lumber trade. From his statements it would seem that all accounts of reviving trade are not to be believed. He says some 15,000,000 feet of white pine has been taken to Quebec this year, and of that some six or seven million feet is still unsold and not likely to be disposed of this season; he disposed of his own white pine at 28¢ per foot. The only demand is for best qualities of square timber, and he believes white pine of poor quality is selling at 11¢ to 13¢ per foot. For red pine there is no demand. He had sold a raft, which he had held for several seasons, at 10¢ per foot. In sawn lumber there is a better demand, but no improvement in price. He is of opinion that prices will be no better until next spring.

Our obituary to-day contains the name of RONALD GREGORY McDONALD, Esq., of Maple Hill. He was a man well known in his day, not only in Queen's County where he resided, but throughout the entire island. For upwards of forty years he was engaged in shipbuilding; and during that long period he was in the habit of launching nearly every year two or sometimes three ships from his building yard, on Pisquid River. Of late his health became impaired, and a long illness was terminated on Thursday morning last, by death. The respect in which the deceased was held, was well demonstrated by the attendance at the funeral, which took place on Saturday last. More than a hundred waggons crossed Mount Stewart Bridge, following the hearse to St. Andrew's Church. Many clergymen on the island were connected with the deceased. He was the eldest brother of the Very Rev. Dr. McDonald of this city. Father Gregory of East Point was his eldest son, and he was uncle to the Rev. Father Charles McDonald, of Georgetown, and Father James Ennis, of Casamper. Mr. George McDonald, the young and hopeful ecclesiastical student who died in Rome last year was also his son.—Charlottetown, (P.E.I.) Herald, Sept. 27.
