

Chief of Naval Engineering & Construction

Engineer Rear-Admiral G.L. Stephens, C.B.E. (with Naval Member)

Secretary

Paymaster Captain R.A. Pennington

Responsible for day-to-day operations of the Navy in the Naval

Staff, the members of which are:

Chief of Naval Staff

Vice-Admiral F.W. Melice, C.B.

Vice-Chief of Naval Staff

Rear-Admiral G.C. Jones

Director of Trade Division

Captain E.S. Brand, (R.N.) (lent from R.N.)

Director of Operations Division

Captain H.M. Day

Director of Plans

Captain H.B. de Wolfe

Director of Naval Information

Lieut.-Commander G.H. Little

Director of Signals Division

Commander G.A. Worthy

Secretary

Lieut.-Commander J.H. Gair

Operations of sea are in charge of commanders of Canadian Naval stations on the east and west coasts, Newfoundland and elsewhere.

Convoy duty is in charge of senior officers of escort. Naval officers in charge of various ports report directly to me in charge of Canada's two most important bases, Rear-Admiral I.W.

Barry, commanding officer of the Atlantic Coast, and Commodore

Held in command of the forces at Newfoundland. The commanding officer on the Pacific coast is Commodore M.J.R. Bevan.

Convoy

Even so assembly a heavy regular work and earlier unimpeded of by the labelled. Ships have to be routed from various ports to arrive at the assembly point at a certain time. The provisioning and fueling of ships must be planned to fit the ships will sail on time.