of the Peninsula, which the French before never pretended to belong to them: the King of Great Britain having had no intention in forming a settlement in his province of Nova Scotia, to encroach on the rights of his most Christian Majesty, or to take forcible possession of a country, of which the King had referred the right of property to the decision of commissaries appointed for that purpose, before it was possible for them to have met in order to proceed to the settling of the limits.

The under-written ambassador has orders to demand, that the conduct of M. de la Jonquiere be disavowed, that positive orders be sent to him immediately to withdraw his troops and the Indians under his authority, from the places which belong to Great Britain; that amends be made for the acts of violence which have been committed, and the damages which the King's subjects have suffered: And his Majesty is persuaded that the court of France will make no difficulty, to give the under-written Ambassador a duplicate of the orders, which will be sent to the governor of Canada, that he may transmit them to his court.
