

Astoria, so much vaunted of by the Americans, as their settlement; from which they once threatened, to use Washington Irving's phrase, to "sweep the Pacific;" and spread their internal trade through the Canadas, and the Polar Circles; and banish the Britishers as traders, if not as residents, from the whole northern continent—a boastful threat, which they have signally failed to execute. They made, however, every endeavour to realize this most ardent wish of their hearts, but have been completely foiled. In place of being the expellers, they are themselves, in a great measure, the expelled—the result of their own irregular mode of dealing, and cupidity; which have roused against them the distrust, indignation, and hatred of the natives.

Having spent eight years in the Company's service, I was induced, by my father, who had other projects in store for me, to return home.

On my return, although I was, from my knowledge of those Americans that traded on the coast, or had squatted in the southwestern part of Oregon, or have lately been employed by the Company as trappers, prepared to hear any monstrous assumptions of right set forth by the American populace, through their loco foco organs of the press, I did not expect that the respectable portion of the press—much less that their functionaries, and ministers of state, even up to the president—would echo the opinions of the rabble that controls the legislature. But to my surprise, I found that the subject was viewed by them through the democratic spectacles.

At the opening of Congress, in 1843, the President, without any previous provocation to the declaration; but from the desire, if not the necessity, too characteristic of American presidents and governments, of pandering to the passions and feelings of the multitude from whom they derive their periodical being—volunteered the announcement to the whole world, that the whole territory is American, and that American it will be preserved and

man
Pre
deba
claim
“
the
the
Brit
fello clair
cont
distr
Paci
I
eals,
of th
subje
to a t
cans
1814,
occup
bolde
they
But n
princ
fronti
As
man
of pa
Amer
piccer
judice
of the
its pro
streng
the se
my ro