Canadian Ships Are Put Under Operation Of the "Dry" Order

Brockville, Ont., Oct. 19.—According to a ruling by the United States government received at River ports, Canadian vessels touching at U. S. ports on the St. Lawrence and on Lake Ontario come under the provisions of the Daugherty order. Under this ruling excursion steamers of Canadian registry plying on the river will not be allowed to carry 21-2 per cent beer into U. S. ports and will be restricted to the 11-2 per cent variety permitted across the border. The order goes into effect on October 21 after which date vessels must surrender all alcoholic beverages on board except those used for medical purposes.

CORONER OF CORK.

Dr. G. F. Wyatt, the coroner of Cork, has had the busiest season in his career, and has held inquests over the bodies of many of the victims of the Irish trouble. Here he is snapped on his way to an inquest.

DISABILITY CASES.
Victoria Colonist: So long as no permanent solution of the phases mentioned in relation to the returned soldier problem is reached there will be dissatisfaction, and of a character that will receive public support. We are very certain that the people of Canada do not want discrimination exercised in the treatment of her disability cases. They want just treatment accorded these men.

Fort William Times-Journal: The solution of a lot of the economic troubles of the world would be reached if every one, from the bosses to the floor sweepers, could be induced to pay more attention to the getting of a job done, and the excellence with which it is done, than they do to the number of times the clock's hands go round.

Don't Ignore That First
AUTUMN COUGH!

A nasty tickling cough and throat soreness troubles most folk about the Fall. This cough is an insidious peril. Unless got rid of it may mean a bad dose of bronchial catarrh that lingers through the winter.

The first sign of hoarseness or throat irritation is evidence that you need PEPs.

Dissolve one or two of these pleasant infection-killing tablets in your mouth right away. Breathe deeply into your throat and lungs the powerful volatile healing and germicidal medicine given off in the form of fumes. This is sure to destroy all the "cold germs" and keep trouble off the lungs.

By their soothing, curative and germicidal action on the sore inflamed air-tubes, Peps remove the cause of coughs, colds and throat trouble. They impart new vigour and strength to the breathing organs, and ward off the evil effects of this chilly, changeable weather.

PEPs are also splendid for children. They contain no harmful drug of any kind.

EDUCATION METHODS ARE CRITICIZED

Faulty, Says McGill Professor—Result is Pupils Quiet Early and Supply of Future Leadership is Sacrificed.

(Montreal Gazette)
"Education is the only positive and productive agency of the four objects of government, and the methods by which this great work is being carried on at the present time are fallacious and suicidal inasmuch as they do not permit our educators to use all the resources at their disposal." Dr. Ira Mackay, professor at McGill University, used these words in an address on "The Duty of the State in Relation to the Education of Its People," delivered yesterday to the Westmount Women's Club. Yesterday's meeting marked the opening of the season's activities and was marked by a large attendance. It was held in the lodge room, Victoria Hall, Westmount, Miss I. Ferguson presiding.

Dr. Mackay said that the various parts that made up education were theoretically acknowledged to be in the following order: Men, libraries, laboratories, buildings, land; but education as practised on the continent today reverses this rule, putting land first and men last. Teachers were underpaid, and many of them under-trained. There were too many girls in the profession and too few men. The majority of boys and girls of the finest promise, in consequence of the incorrect methods, left school early in life, or as early as the law allowed. In this way the providential supply of leadership was being sacrificed. The educational system was cutting the heads off what should be the great men of the future. The speaker said it was no wonder the supply of outstanding men of statesmanship and scholarship was running low.

Eliminate Greed.
"If we could eliminate all selfishness and greed from private enterprise, public ownership and management of economic enterprises would become both unnecessary and undesirable," said Dr. Mackay in referring to the fourth object of government, the management of large economic enterprises, which object, he said, was not altogether necessary. The trouble with public and private ownership was that each accused the other of costing too much. That was, however, a question of price not of principle. In this matter, like every other line of activity, everything depended upon the man and not upon the office.

The first object of government was the maintenance of peaceful relations with other countries and amongst its own people, but peace was only a negative idea; it only meant the absence of war. It did not produce anything. It was only a fine thing. Administration of justice was the second subject of government, but this also produced nothing; it was merely a precautionary agency.

The third and only positive and productive agency of government was education of its people. In this, however, the system had followed the same fallacious method as followed in military formation of organization, then the chances of humanity are pretty nearly nil. The state, the home, and the church had shifted the responsibility of education upon the schools. The schools today tried to teach children in squads or companies. This way was adopted because it was the easiest and cheapest way. Its errors were obvious.

Japanese Chemist Gets Silver From Common Substances

Tatsuzo Hatori of Minami-hirayanganura, near Kawaguchi-machi, in Saitama Prefecture, has made the startling announcement that by heating certain common substances in a crucible with suitable reagents, he had succeeded in isolating some small silver grains, says a Japanese correspondent of the Journal of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry. These substances did not reveal the presence of silver by the methods ordinarily employed.

The announcement aroused the interest of chemists, many of whom examined Hatori's work. But they could not explain his findings. The inventor himself has not been able to offer a scientific explanation. He is not a college man, but is a trained technician.

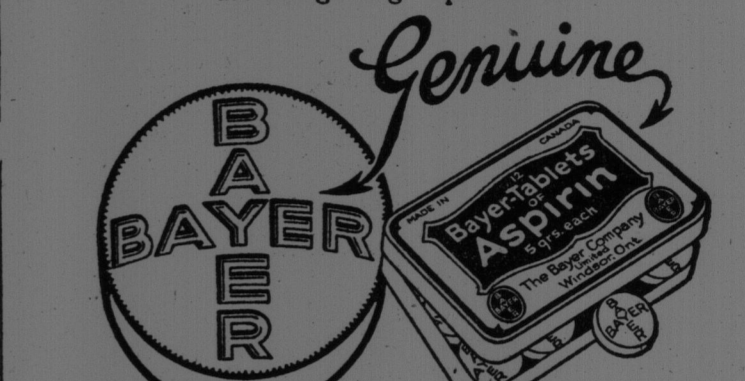

Dr. Tsuneya Maruawa, professor of applied chemistry in the Kyushu Imperial University, and Dr. Sadahiko Sato are conducting investigations with a view to finding the scientific explanation for this discovery. Dr. Sato recently announced that he can isolate silver from some substances which do not yield silver by the usual analytical method, but has not yet advanced a scientific explanation.
